By LINDA DEUTSCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, weeping and straining for breath, recalled for jurors Friday the nightmare scenes of her captivity — a tale of violent abduction, torture and fear that her terrorist kidnapers intended to bury her alive.

Testifying in her own defense at her bank robbery trial, the pale and slender defendant told for the first time in public how she was blindfolded, dragged from her apartment and knocked unconscious, then dumped into the trunk of a car as she heard gunshots and screams behind her.

"Bitch, you'd better be quiet," the fearful Miss Hearst quoted her chief tormentor, Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, as shouting the night he broke into her apartment with two others.

Weaving a tale of horror and degradation, Miss Hearst spent nearly two hours on the witness stand after the prosecution rested its case against her. U.S. Atty. James L. Browning said he felt the government's case had gone well, although he planned to offer a substantial amount of evidence in rebuttal to the defense.

In its effort to convict her of bank robbery, the government used against Miss Hearst its most powerful weapons — her own words of defiance that she tape-recorded using the revolutionary name of "Tania."

The prosecution repeatedly showed jurors the bank camera pictures that showed a carbine-wielding Miss Hearst and the other four armed bandits during the holdup.

The seven women and five men of her jury, who had not heard her testify before, swiveled their chairs in her direction and appeared to hang on every word.

Miss Hearst burst into tears only moments into her testimony as she told of being dragged into the darkness of the radical underground, where she was locked blindfolded in a padded closet for weeks. She recalled her dreaded captor, "Field Marshal Cinque" of the Symbionese Liberation Army, making constant threats:

"If I tried to escape, I'd be killed. If I made any noise, I'd be beaten or they'd hang me up from the ceiling."

Captive in the nearly airless closet, she feared she might have been buried alive.

Soon, she said, Cinque turned to physical abuse. Dissatisfied with her performance on a tape recorded

Top executives resign in Lockheed shakeup

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press

The top two executives of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. stepped down Friday in the midst of the huge aerospace and defense company's problems involving multimillion-dollar payoffs to foreign officials.

Daniel J. Haughton, Lockheed board chairman, and A. Carl Kotchian, vice chairman and chief operating officer, resigned at a special meeting of the Lockheed board of directors in Burbank.

"The board had a difficult meeting this morning at which Haughton and Kotchian saw fit to resign," said a Lockheed spokesman.

The nation's largest defense contractor will be headed temporarily by board member Robert W. Haack of Potomac, Md., who was elected board chairman pro tem.

The board felt that "the company, employees and shareholders would perhaps be better protected if they—Haughton and Kotchian—as potentially controversial people excused themselves from the premises," said Haack.

A. CARL KOTCHIAN

who announced the resignations to reporters while the meeting still was in session.

He said a chief executive office would be created, which would include Roy A. Anderson, 55, as vice chairman and senior financial and administrative officer, and Lawrence O. Kitchen, 52, as president and chief operating officer.

The chief executive office is expected to "facilitate the operations of the company," a spokesman said.

Haughton, the 64-year-old hard-driving chairman who had fought desperately for federally guaranteed loans to save Lockheed a few years ago, had been with Lockheed for 37 years. He and Kotchian, 62, will be retained as advisers and consultants.

Kotchian, a one-time Price, Waterhouse accountant, served as a foil for Haughton during their long and close association. Some industry spokesmen called him Haughton's "alter ego."

Haack, 58, declined to comment on the overseas payments, in which millions of dollars were admittedly paid to officials of foreign governments to influence the sales of Lockheed aircraft, including $12 million to Japan alone.

Haack described the problem as "temporary" and said that to make any comment would "pre-empt the committee of outside directors" that has been formed to investigate the scandal.

When Haack declined to comment on the subject of payoffs, he added, "suffice it to say that the board of directors some time ago formulated, adopted and approved a new policy that has been exposed to the appropriate people in government which will lay down some strictures with which the company will comply."

A company spokesman said that apparently referred to regulations announced by the company last fall on the hiring of overseas agents.

Haack, who emphasized the temporary nature of his appointment, said one

Navy asks Pentagon OK of plan to rebuild fleet

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON—The Navy asked top Pentagon officials Friday to approve a new $55 billion plan to rebuild the fleet, now at its smallest since before Pearl Harbor, to 600 ships by the late 1980s.

Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf and Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of naval operations, urged senior defense officials to add 50 ships and about $20 billion to the tentative long-range shipbuilding plan sent to Congress last month.

That plan called for construction of 111 new frigates, submarines, aircraft carriers and other ships over the next five years at an estimated cost of $35.4 billion.

Pentagon officials acknowledged to Congress that the program would not be big enough to bring the Navy from its present 477 ships to the desired goal of 600, but they indicated that budget constraints held them back from asking more.

However, Middendorf and Holloway, arguing that a rebuilding of the U.S. fleet with fast, modern ships was vital to deal with a steadily growing Soviet navy, received indications from key congressmen that the Senate and House would go along with a larger program than the administration had offered in President Ford's budget for next year.

The Navy went back to the drawing board and came up with a proposal for about 160 new ships. The new plan would take about four years longer to fulfill and would bring the Navy to the 600-ship level by about 1989.

The U.S. fleet has been steadily diminishing from the Vietnam war peak of 976 ships. Old vessels were laid up because they became too costly to operate, and inflation, bringing sharply rising construction costs, has limited the pace of new ship construction for the Navy.

Neither the Navy nor the Defense Department would comment on the new program, presented by Middendorf and Holloway to Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements.

However, some sources said the plan received a favorable reaction from Clements.

The Navy's new proposal must win the approval of Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and President Ford before it can be sent to Congress.

Nigeria crushes coup try

NIAMEY, Niger (AP) — Neighboring Nigeria's seven-month-old military government headed by Gen. Murtala Muhammed crushed an attempted coup Friday by self-proclaimed "young revolutionaries." Lagos radio announced.

There were early reports that Muhammed and several other persons were killed, but radio broadcasts made after loyal troops had recaptured the state radio from the rebels made no mention of any deaths.

Late communiques broadcast by the government said the situation had returned to normal in Lagos, the Nigerian capital, but the airport remained closed. It called on Nigerians to remain calm.

A man at the U.S. Embassy, who answered a telephone call from The Associated Press bureau in Washington and identified himself as the duty officer, said the broadcast also announced a dusk-to-dawn curfew "in the interests of security."

He said the state radio was playing music and because of the curfew "it is unusually quiet."

"There've been reports of shooting, scattered shooting during the day, but they are only reports," he said. "I didn't hear any myself. Certainly there wasn't much."

He was asked about the safety of Americans in

Nigeria and replied, "Everybody's O.K., all Americans are O.K. as far as we know."

The military rebels had seized control of the state radio and in a broadcast at 9:30 a.m. claimed they had overthrown the government because of unexplained "difficulties" with the regime.

They were led by a Lt. Col. Dimka, once head of the army's physical training program.

'Extreme right can't win'

Ford in slap at Reagan

By RANDOLPH SCHMID
Associated Press

President Ford took his strongest slap so far against Ronald Reagan Friday night, implying that his Republican challenger appealed to the "extreme right."

Ford was asked during questioning by reporters as he arrived at the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., airport if he thought the Reagan campaign was harming the party.

"I don't think it's too divisive. It's a good contest," Ford said. But he added: "I'm running on my record. I think it's a good record, and I think it conforms with the moderate Republican philosophy that is necessary to win. Anything to the extreme right of that can't win a national election."

Earlier, Ford said in answer to a question in Orlando about Reagan's criticism of his quest for detente with the Soviet Union that "nit-picking of an American foreign policy doesn't help."

Looking ahead to Florida's March 9 contest, Ford said at a news conference, "I think I will do well in Florida."

When a reporter noted

criticism by Reagan of the administration's efforts to promote detente, Ford responded, "I'm very proud of the accomplishments of our American foreign policy" — raising his voice to emphasize the word "American."

The questioner cited Reagan's remark that he was uncertain about the value of detente beyond being allowed to sell Pepsi-Cola in Siberia.

"I won't comment on any rhetoric that concerns a policy that has been successful," Ford said.

When asked if he felt that Reagan had been violating the GOP's "11th Commandment" that says candidates should not speak ill of a fellow Republican, the President suggested that Reagan's remarks sometimes reflected disappointments the former California governor has suffered. He added that sometimes "people forget what they said at some point" — an apparent reference to the Ford campaign's contention that Reagan flip-flops on major issues.

Reagan, meanwhile, in Kankakee, Ill., said he will make public "total income

New storm may bring showers

Southland residents, who've just barely had a chance to dry off their umbrellas from last week's seven-day storm, may be in for some more rain today.

National Weather Service forecasters said a storm front moving into the area late Friday could bring showers by this morning. They predicted a 40 per cent chance of rain early today, with decreasing cloudiness and the chance of rain dropping to 20 per cent late this afternoon.

Forecasters added that some of the clouds will remain over the Los Angeles basin into Sunday.

Weekend temperatures should reach a high today of about 60, but will be slightly warmer Sunday, the forecasters said.

They said the snow level in Southland mountain areas was expected to remain at about the 7,000 foot level over the weekend, with daytime highs around 40.

Firestone must correct tire ads

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. has agreed to spend at least $750,000 on tire-safety advertising to settle a government complaint that the firm misrepresented the safety qualities of Firestone tires in previous ads. The settlement was announced by the Justice Department which filed the complaint against Firestone and the proposed consent decree in U.S. District Court in Akron, Ohio. The government complaint charged that Firestone violated a 1972 FTC order with ads claiming that certain Firestone tires are safe under all conditions. The ads claimed the tires were of superior quality without having full proof for the claim, the complaint alleged. The proposed settlement requires Firestone to spend at least $550,000 to broadcast a tire safety commercial on television, during the network news, Monday night baseball, NFL football, pro golf tournaments and other programs. Firestone must spend another $100,000 to prepare the TV safety spot and $100,000 to place similar ads in Time magazine, the Reader's Digest and U.S. News & World Report. Firestone also must pay a $50,000 fine.

U.S. tardy on bills

RICHMOND, Va. — A power company complained to the Virginia Corporation Commission on Friday that the White House, Pentagon and other government electric power users "habitually pay late." Furthermore, said Edward Caine, counsel for the Potomac Electric Power Co., they won't submit to the penalty charges normally imposed for late payment. Talks are going on, Caine said, to "encourage" the federal government to speed up payment of electric bills for such places as the Pentagon and 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue — the White House. If the talks fail, Caine said, Pepco intends to begin proceedings before utility regulatory commissions in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia to solve the problem.

Unsubpoenaed information

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sheraton Hotel chain's director of reservations said Friday that contrary to corporate policy, oral requests for information on guests by law enforcement officers have been honored by the chain without court subpoenas. Edward Pritchard, testifying at the windup of a three-day hearing by the Privacy Protection Study Committee on possible abuses of privacy by credit-card firms and hotels, said the oral requests have been few. In 1975, he said, "not more than three subpoenaed requests" were made for records, and a dozen others were made orally. Whether the requests are by subpoena or oral, guests involved are not notified that they are subjects of inquiry, Pritchard told the commission. The commission is conducting hearings in various parts of the country on private record keeping to determine whether the Privacy Act of 1974 should be applied to private organizations. Only federal agencies are now covered by the act.

Britain, France shift on MPLA

LONDON — Britain and France are moving toward diplomatic recognition of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) in Angola, according to diplomatic sources here. The French ambassador to Kenya, Olivier Deleau, said in Nairobi on Friday that recognition will come soon, motivated in great part by the recent decision of the majority of Organization of African Unity to recognize the MPLA and admit Angola as a member. One diplomatic source in London said British recognition could come in "a matter of days." The MPLA is battling two Western-supported factions for control of the former Portuguese territory. The British traditionally set three conditions before diplomatic recognition: a government must be in control of the majority of the country, must have the support of the majority of the population, and must have reasonable prospects of remaining in power.

Paperworkers pact

KAPUSKASING, Canada — A tentative contract agreement was reached Friday between Ontario's Spruce Falls Pulp and Paper Co. and three union locals that have been on strike for five months. Tony Urbas, financial secretary of United Paperworkers and Papermakers Local 256, said the 1,350 workers represented by the three locals probably would vote on the proposed contract Sunday. He declined to give details of the tentative agreement.

Irish strife grows

BELFAST — Roman Catholic militants marked the hunger-strike death of an Irish prisoner with a mortar barrage against a British army base, attacks on army patrols, bombs and arson. An army spokesman said three mortar shells fell on the base Friday night but caused little damage and no casualties. He said two other shells exploded in the same area, around Fort Monagh camp in the Andersonstown district of Belfast, a stronghold of the underground Irish Republican Army (IRA). A bomb went off early today in the doorway of an unoccupied Londonderry shop near a military checkpoint, injuring a soldier in the head and arm, the army said. In Dublin, capital of the Irish republic, bombs damaged British and U.S.-owned department stores and shops and the British-owned Shelbourne hotel. At London's Oxford Circus subway station at the evening rush hour, Scotland Yard's bomb squad defused a 20-pound shrapnel bomb planted in a suitcase.

Moslems, police clash

JERUSALEM — Israeli police, using water cannons, tear gas and night sticks, dispersed a crowd of about 400 protesting Arabs in the walled old city of Jerusalem on Friday. Police said 1,000 Arabs gathered at the Al Aqsa mosque in the old city's Temple Mount after Moslem sabbath worship to protest an Israeli court decision allowing Jewish prayer on the Mount, holy to both Judaism and Islam. About 400 of the demonstrators marched down the narrow Via Dolorosa, the ancient stone path Christ took to Calvary, chanting "Allah Akbar" (God is great) and hurling rocks at Israeli police and soldiers.

People in the news

Weed ousted as witness for publicizing book

Combined News Services

Steven Weed, Patricia Hearst's former fiancé, was scratched as the opening defense witness Friday after he held a news conference to promote his new book about their life together.

Termining Weed's action "irresponsible," defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said his team had tried to dissuade Weed from making any public statements about the case before he testified at the newspaper heiress' bank robbery trial.

But Weed told a gathering of reporters Friday morning, just hours before his scheduled testimony, that he believes Miss Hearst was coerced, but not exactly brainwashed, by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

At the beginning of the session Weed apologized, saying, "This was not intended to be anything resembling a press conference. It was set up two weeks ago. I had absolutely no idea that I, also, would have to testify this morning."

A spokesman for Weed's publisher, Crown Publishers Inc. of New York, said the company was "embarrassed" by the entire incident. "We tried not to make it look like a rah-rah scene and unfortunately it turned out to be just that."

Publicist Joyce Jansen said defense attorney Al Johnson telephoned Weed on Thursday night and told him to be at the courthouse Friday morning. She said two defense team representatives approached Weed just before the news conference and tried to dissuade him from conducting it, and Johnson later phoned to tell him to be at the courthouse at noon.

When asked whether Miss Hearst was brainwashed by the SLA, he said: "She was 19 years old and did have a tendency sometimes to arrive at decisions that were a little unfounded. But I think that if Patty had been the most together person in the world, and if she had been older and if her relationship with me and her parents had been absolutely solid, I think the net result would have been the same."

Commenting on Miss Hearst's defense, Weed said, "I think the attorneys are doing a good job. I wouldn't characterize it as a so-called 100 per cent brainwashing defense."

"A brainwashing defense would mean they actually succeeded in changing her attitudes 100 per cent, and I think a lot of the testimony that has come out so far seemed to indicate that it wasn't entirely an attitude change. 'There was direct coercion, certainly from the beginning,' he said, adding the Miss Hearst was dragged screaming from the Berkely apartment they shared.

In response to a reporter's question, Weed said: "She was always a rebel, but I don't find that a negative part of her character. She was a bit of a paradox, strong willed and impressionable."

When asked about the impact of his newly released book on the case, he said: "If the book spoils any future contact with Patty, it probably wouldn't have worked anyway."

Dancers

After seeing a performance of the new musical revue "Bubbling Brown Sugar" earlier this week, First Lady Betty Ford invited the cast to tour the White House and surprised them by turning up herself Friday to greet them.

President Ford had gone off to Florida on a campaign trip. So the cast even got to see his Oval Office.

Mrs. Ford said the Tuesday evening she and the President spent at the theater seeing the musical, which features the songs of Harlem from the 1920s, was "the best thing for my husband," enabling him "to sit back and relax."

Bess

In Independence, Mo., Bess Wallace Truman spent a quiet 91st birthday with flowers, cards and a telephone call from her daughter, Margaret Truman Daniel, in Washington.

Children from the same elementary school the President's widow attended came at noon to sing "Happy Birthday" and "God Bless America."

Free

One day after he was indicted for threatening the lives of President Ford, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan, Michael Carvin was free on bond Friday in Pompano Beach, Fla. — about 10 miles from a scheduled appearance by Ford.

The Secret Service declined to say whether Carvin would be under surveillance during Ford's visit.

"We have made it clear to his parents that he is to make no telephone calls, write no letters or go anywhere without one of them while the President is in South Florida," Asst. U.S. Atty. Rebekah Poston said.

A federal grand jury returned the indictments against Carvin, who was first arrested Nov. 20 when he accosted Reagan with a toy pistol as the former California governor campaigned in Miami.

Carvin, 20, is charged with making earlier telephoned threats against Ford, Rockefeller and Reagan, and repeating some of those threats in a letter last month to a Miami television station.

Valentine

About 25 girls presented a giant Valentine heart to President Ford when he arrived in Orlando, Fla., Friday at the start of a two-day campaign swing through Florida.

"To our all-American Valentine," read the four-foot-tall card from the members of Orlando Girl Scout Troop 37. Ford posed for pictures with the girls and thanked the crowd of about 1,200 for his airport welcome.

Later at Ford's hotel, retired Baltimore Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas gave the President a signed football to add to his collection of sports memorabilia.

'Finest'

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. said Friday that former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is "one of the finest men among us" and added that he supports the candidacy of the Democratic presidential contender.

King, who spoke to 500 students at Georgia Southwestern College at Americus, Ga., during a Black History Week celebration, criticized recent statements labeling Carter a racist and attacking his sincerity.

Met opera soprano Lily Pons dies at 71

Lily Pons, the French-born coloratura soprano who sang for more than a quarter-century with the New York Metropolitan Opera, died Friday in a Dallas hospital after a long illness. She was 71.

She had been at the hospital since Jan. 11. The nature of her illness was not disclosed, nor was the cause of death.

Miss Pons was a petite woman of great beauty who, while building an international reputation as an opera star, also appeared in a number of motion pictures.

Her principal opera roles included Lucia in "Lucia di Lammermoor," Gilda in "Rigoletto," Rosina in "Barber of Seville," and Lakme in "Lakme." She also was known for performances as Linda in "Linda di Chamonix," Amina in "La Sonnambula," Shemakhan in "Le Coq d'Or," and Marie in "Daughter of the Regiment."

Born in Cannes, France, she received early musical training under Albert di Grestia and made her debut as Lakme at the Mulhouse, France, Municipal Opera in 1928. The "Bell Song" from Lakme came to be considered her theme song.

Miss Pons went to the Metropolitan Opera in 1931, making her debut there in the role of Lucia. Years later, she told of having to sing four arias twice during her Met audition because "they want to see if I am strong enough to last through a performance." She weighed 96 pounds at the time.

Very sick

Arthur Fiedler, 81, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, has been hospitalized in Vancouver, B.C., and is a "very very sick man," his wife said Friday.

Ellen Fiedler, the musician's wife, said doctors reported her husband had developed pneumonia. She said Fiedler's son was en route to Canada to bring his father home.

Computer shorts out L.B. traffic

A short in a computer kept traffic lights over a wide area of Long Beach from changing Friday night and snarled downtown traffic for 45 minutes.

Police said their switchboard was swamped with calls and that the malfunction contributed to two traffic accidents. No serious injuries were reported.

The Public Service Department said the computer, which regulates the control unit for traffic lights, was shorted at 8:45 p.m. It took 45 minutes to correct the problem, and three hours later some lights still weren't working.

Twenty policemen were dispatched to manually switch the signals to blinking red and to control traffic. After half an hour, congestion at the busiest intersections was lessened, officers said.

Long lines formed at many intersections, and traffic was especially snarled along Pacific Coast Highway between Redondo and Atlantic avenues.

Apartment illumination

Are apartment building owners required to have outdoor stairways lighted after dark? The lights over the stairs where I live do not go on until 7 p.m. so we have almost two hours of darkness. I think this is very dangerous. M.B., Long Beach.

My landlord turns off the lights outside my apartment building before he goes to bed and on the nights I work until 2 a.m. I am afraid to go from the carport to the building because it is pitch black. My next-door neighbor had to take her husband to the hospital recently and they couldn't see to get down the stairs. Isn't there a law that says there must be lights on apartment houses? A.W., Long Beach.

A Long Beach city ordinance requires exits and stairways of apartment buildings which have three or more units to be illuminated with lights bright enough to read a newspaper by from dusk to dawn, according to Cyril Blossener, of the Long Beach Building and Safety Department. The lights can be dimmer if there is a device at the top and the bottom of the stairs that allows you to increase the light level before you see the stairs. The law defines an exit as the area between a door and the street. The law does not, however, include carports. If a landlord refuses to conform to the law, the problem can be reported to the department's electrical division, 435-3435, extension 221, and complaints will be investigated, and, if necessary, referred to the city prosecutor for possible legal action.

Bikeways

Could you please find out what plans the City of Long Beach has regarding bike trails? I rode the streets of Long Beach as a youngster but I would be afraid to do the same thing today because of heavy traffic. L.M., Long Beach.

"We have looked at the complete city and have developed a number of subsystems which we hope to implement to ultimately cover the entire city," said Salem Spitz, Long Beach traffic engineer. "We want to build the safest and most efficient system possible," he said. Portions of two of the subsystems — along the Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers — have been completed by the county and the city has completed one in the Recreation Park area. "We are working on plans for three additional subsystems," Spitz said. They are along Clark Avenue, in the Heartwell Park area and in the Palo Verde-Los Coyotes Diagonal area. The third one is being partially financed out of Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) funds. The systems ultimately will link up and provide transportation routes for regional and city users. About $500,000 is currently available for city bike trails and "might be spent this calendar year." You can see maps showing the existing and planned trails at City Hall, Room 403, 245 W. Broadway. For copies of maps showing existing Orange County bike trails, or for a tour guide of the Santa Ana River trail, write Bob Rusby, 400 Civic Center Drive West, Santa Ana, Calif. 92701. New maps are being printed so expect a two-to-three-week delay. You can see maps showing future trails at the Civic Center Drive address.

Beach Boys

My friend and I are the Beach Boys biggest fans. Would you settle a bet we made by telling us when they made their first appearance and how old they were then? Also, where do Carl and Dennis Wilson live? N.N., Long Beach.

The Beach Boys — brothers Brian, Carl and Dennis Wilson, their cousin Mike Love and Alan Jardine — had a lot of musical get-togethers when they were growing up but made their first major appearance in a Los Angeles concert Dec. 31, 1962, according to a spokesman for Rogers and Cowan, the agency that handles public relations for the group. They were in their late teens then, he said, but they "would rather not talk about age" now. "Surfer Safari," their first album etching California's surf and sand, had been released a month before that concert and was on its way to becoming a hit. Numerous hit albums followed. Over the years, the group diversified their music and moved with the times — going from a clean-cut, white-jeaned appearance to a long-haired, bearded look. Current plans for the band include a late spring TV special and a cross-country tour beginning in July. The tour will include a Los Angeles arena concert. A new album, their first in three years, is due out in June. Brian no longer performs with the band but writes songs and produces records for them. Carl and Dennis live in Malibu and you can write to them or the other members of the band in care of Rogers and Cowan, 3005 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 300, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Confident of board support

Hahn pushes county mayor proposal

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said Friday he's confident he can line up the three supervisorial votes needed to put the question of an elected county mayor to the voters on the June 8 primary ballot.

Hahn, however, insisted that a companion proposal to expand the Board of Supervisors to nine members be dealt with as a separate ballot measure in the November general election.

The supervisor said he strongly supports the separation of powers concept called for in a report by the Public Commission on County Government this week. However, his own proposal differs slightly from the commission's, inasmuch as he believes that the top elected official should be known as the county mayor, not the county executive, as suggested by the commission. Hahn also takes issue with the commission's recommendation that the name of the expanded Board of Supervisors should be changed to the County Legislature.

He said such a name change would be misleading and would create confusion in the public's mind because some would think of it as the state Legislature.

Funds due for flood survey

From Our County Bureau

A $4 million federal grant for a comprehensive study of potential flood hazards in Los Angeles County was announced Friday.

Under the plan the county flood control district will conduct a three-year survey to identify areas subject to flooding, how often they can expect to be flooded, and to what depths.

The goal will be to set flood insurance rates on an actuarial basis, hopefully with lower rates. The study also will help to establish a flood management program for eliminating or reducing future losses.

The plans were revealed at a joint press conference by Thomas Brinton, consultation coordination officer for the Federal Insurance Administration and Art Brington, chief engineer for the flood control district.

Man receives 30 years for police shooting

A former Long Beach resident who admitted trying to kill a Garden Grove policeman last May Friday was handed a prison sentence of up to 30 years, then ordered to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville for psychiatric treatment.

Santa Ana Superior Judge James K. Judge pronounced the sentence on James David Dushane, 22, whose jury trial ended with his admission of guilt in the shooting of Officer Fred Aiken.

Aiken, shot as he attempted to investigate a burglary report near the Garden Grove Boy's Club, has recovered from the wound and returned to active duty.

Dushane told the court he shot the officer because he "just wanted to fire a rifle."

While the commission insisted that there should be no expansion of the board without the county-mayor concept, its report urged that the elected mayor and expanded board become one ballot measure.

Although Hahn supports an expanded board, he disagreed with combining the two issues on one ballot measure. "It's enough for the voters to deal with a new elected mayor at one time, and opponents of the measure might use the expanded board concept to defeat the elected mayor issue," he said.

If the measure is to go on the June ballot it requires three votes from the Board of Supervisors. In addition to Hahn, who pioneered the county-mayor concept, Supervisor Ed Edelman has already come out in favor of the idea, and Supervisor Pete Schabarum has indicated a willingness to go along, depending on the language used in the Charter amendment.

Schabarum has indicated that he might support a "very strong" mayor concept only.

Hahn said he was confident that he would get Edelman's and Schabarum's votes to put the mayor concept on the ballot at a meeting Thursday when the board considers these and several other possible Charter amendments.

Hahn released a draft of his plan designating the executive authority of the mayor and giving supervisors legislative responsibility.

His plan calls for a limit in the size of staff for supervisors and the mayor, with the mayor being limited to six deputies and each supervisor restricted to four.

He claimed that this limitation would save $800,000 a year, based on present staffing, but conceded that in practice the personnel eliminated by the measure would simply end up in some other departments of county government because of their civil service protection.

There has been some opposition in the past to his concept of limiting the size of supervisorial staff, and Hahn indicated he might be willing to compromise on this point if it is needed to get the support of other board members for the county mayor concept.

Schorr confirms he released secret report

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS News correspondent Daniel Schorr confirmed Friday that he was responsible for newspaper publication of most of the Select House Intelligence Committee's still-classified secret report.

"I decided that with much of the contents already known I could not be the one responsible for suppressing the report," Schorr said in a detailed statement.

"That decision was entirely mine."

Schorr gave no indication who leaked the report to him.

He said only that "the report became available to me—and apparently not to me alone—at a time when its general release was expected within a few days."

HE SAID he reported highlights extensively on CBS news broadcasts, but the situation changed when the House ordered the intelligence committee by a vote of 246 to 124 Jan. 29 to keep the report secret.

Publication of the report in 21 pages of the Village Voice in New York was arranged by an intermediary provided by a Washington organization that provides legal defense in press-freedom cases, Schorr said.

He said he made that arrangement to provide additional protection for his own source and because "I considered it unthinkable that there would be any personal profit for me."

Schorr accused the organization—the Reporters' Committee for the Freedom of the Press—of breaching confidentiality.

"I am fully aware of the irony of my complaining about leaks," he said.

BUT HE appeared to blame the Reporters' Committee for public disclosure of his role in the publication of the report.

"I deeply regret that the Reporters' Committee has not been able to maintain the confidentiality of the arrangement because there are delicate matters involved that journalists should want to protect in their common interest," he declared.

Schorr said that when he realized that he had a copy of a report that no longer was likely to be made public "I felt myself confronted with an inescapable decision of journalistic conscience."

"It was whether, as possibly the sole possessor of the document outside the government, to cooperate in what might be the total suppression of a report originally meant for public distribution."

HE SAID he "enlisted the confidential cooperation" of the Reporters' Committee, which he said provided an intermediary knowledgeable about publishing "with whom I dealt by telephone."

The intermediary reported back that there was little early prospect for publication as a book and that the best opportunity was an offer from the Village Voice that would be withdrawn in 24 hours.

"I agreed that the offer should be accepted and asked to be kept out of all financial arrangements," Schorr said.

In fact, he said, he had no dealings of any kind with anyone at the Village Voice.

"The question of money was, to my mind, secondary and mainly symbolic to underline an act that I considered essential as a journalist," Schorr said.

SCHORR'S ROLE in publication of the House report was disclosed by

DANIEL SCHORR
"Decision Was Mine"

the Washington Post the day the Village Voice published the report.

The Post article was based on both on-the-record and off-the-record comments by members of the Reporters' Committee, plus statements by Schorr.

Members of the organization later said Schorr had contacted them and asked if they would accept proceeds from publication of the report.

But they said they did not know if the Village Voice publication had been arranged by Schorr—or even if he in fact had a copy of the House committee report.

To fix brake defect GM recalling Chevettes

By GREGORY SKWIRA
Knight News Service

DETROIT—The Chevrolet, General Motors' new minicar, received a double whammy this Friday the 13th—a massive recall, plus a trimming of previously announced production plans.

GM announced Friday that all 36,000 Chevettes sold so far this model year, plus another 10,000 still at dealerships, were being recalled to correct a design defect that could cause the front brakes to fail.

GM said also that it was recalling 34,000 1976-model Chevrolet Monzas, Buick Skyhawks, Oldsmobile Starfires and Pontiac Sunbirds to check for possibly defective front disc brake shoes. The company said it had received no reports of accidents or injuries due to the problem.

And GM President E.M. Estes announced that plans to begin assembling Chevettes at a second site had been scrapped due to lower-than-anticipated sales.

The second planned assembly site, in South Gate, Calif., was to begin turning out 20 Chevettes an hour March 1, a GM spokesman said, along with its regular output of various Buick, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile and Pontiac compact models. Estes said Friday, however, that the two-shift operation at GM's Wilmington, Del., plant "can give us the production needed to meet the current market demand for cars in the sub-compact end of the market."

Meanwhile, the company said, the South Gate plant will begin a three-week shutdown next week for "inventory adjustment." GM said that 2,500 workers were affected. GM had said it planned to close the plant for a week of inventory adjustment and then a week to convert to Chevette production.

In September, GM Vice President Robert Lund targeted Chevette sales for the model year at 275,000 units. With the model year more than one-third over, however, sales have totaled only about 20 per cent of that figure.

A GM spokesman said Friday that the company still hoped to sell "about 250,000" Chevettes this model year.

GM said it was recalling the Chevettes to install a small plastic shield between a front brake hose and a protruding bolt on the front control arm. The company said repeated contact between the two parts could cause the hose to crack or stretch, causing the cars to lose brake fluid.

The company said it began installing the shields on the assembly line in mid-December after a routine maintenance inspection revealed the problem.

The 33,000 Chevettes built since then are not affected by the recall.

The company said it knew of one accident apparently linked to the problem and that minor injuries had resulted.

Car sales hit 3-year high in 10-day period

Knight News Service

DETROIT—The top four domestic automakers started off February with a strong performance, posting sales of 167,608 cars during the first 10 days of the month, the highest for the period in three years.

While the industry fell 13 per cent short of its total for Feb. 1-10 in 1973, it reported a 21-per cent increase over the like 1975 period when the rebate programs were in full swing and a 15-per cent boost over the early February span in 1974.

Continuing to pace the automobile market's recovery from a two-year sales slump, General Motors Corp. sold 31 per cent more cars than a year ago, an improvement that would have been even stronger had it not been for a weak performance by Chevrolet.

Ford Motor Co. reported gains of 27 per cent over last year, while Chrysler Corp. was up 8 per cent and American Motors Corp. 1 per cent after showing a year-to-year decline in the final 10 days of January.

Auto company executives, cheered by the industry's 23 per cent gain over the first 10 days of January, saw signs that the market comeback is strengthening.

"February sales are off to a great start," said the Chrysler sales vice president, Robert B. McCurry, noting that new-car dealers had achieved a sales rate in the most recent period of nine million cars on a 12-month projection.

Iranian oil firm plans price cut

By WILLIAM D. SMITH

NEW YORK — The National Iranian Oil Company will cut the price on its heavy crude oil by 9.5 cents a barrel in a move considered an attempt to recapture some of the heavy crude oil market that Iran has lost in recent months. The move will be announced officially Monday.

Iran has been involved in a major confrontation with the consortium of Western oil companies, charging them with not

Earlier this month Iran proposed its first deficit budget since petroleum prices rose sharply in 1973. Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida cited weak demand for oil as the reason for the $2.4 billion gap between expenditures and revenues in 1976.

THE OIL companies, for their part, contend that, in comparison with similar crudes, Iranian oil has been vastly overpriced in a weak market. Demand for heavy crude oil, which is largely used for residual fuel in industrial and utility operations, has been reduced significantly by the worldwide recession.

THE SHAH of Iran has said that the reduced take of Iranian crude would affect the country's five-year development plans, might require a reduction in its foreign aid and could put in doubt the multibillion dollar economic agreement between it and the United States.

In addition, Iran has put diplomatic pressure on both the United States and British Governments to get them to induce the oil companies to increase the volume of oil they take from Iran.

The new price for heavy export crude is $11.40 a barrel, down from $12.45 a barrel.

The action came as somewhat of a surprise, since some industry experts had not expected Iran to take any action until a number of outstanding issues with the 14 Western oil companies had been settled. Negotiations, which have been going on for several months, are now recessed.

Insists U.S. not hurt by report

Pike refutes Kissinger claims

By JOSEPH VOLZ
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON—Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the defunct House Intelligence Committee, insisted Friday that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was "deeply involved" in certain questionable intelligence operations but that the committee did not set out to discredit him.

Kissinger, in an emotional press conference Thursday charged that the Pike Committee distorted classified information in its report to fit preconceived ideas about him. Accusing the committee of McCarthyism, Kissinger branded the report a "malicious lie."

Pike, in a telephone interview, refused to discuss details of the 338-page committee report, which have leaked out, although the House voted to keep it secret.

Pike said the committee sought to trace where the intelligence dollars were spent and happened to discover Kissinger's involvement. Kissinger was particularly irked at the committee's report that the CIA channeled arms to Kurdish rebels fighting in Iraq. The United States shut off aid abruptly and Kissinger reportedly turned down last-minute pleas for help from the outmaneuvered rebels.

"The secretary of State feels that America has been hurt by the report because it appears to be critical of him," Pike said. "I do not."

Kissinger has repeatedly contended the nation's foreign policy would be impaired by attacks on him. Pike argued that "the question is not the conduct of our foreign policy but of national security. There is nothing in the report which in any way jeopardizes the national security of the United States."

Meanwhile, federal investigators are nearing completion of a probe of former CIA director Richard Helms, now U.S. ambassador to Iran. Either an indictment or an explanation of why there's no indictment will be announced by next Thursday, Justice sources said.

CIA agents and Fairfax, Va., police broke into a photography shop in 1971 without a warrant. The shop was operated by a former Cuban propaganda official who was dating a part-time CIA employee. A federal grand jury has been seeking to determine if Helms authorized the illegal break-in but the five-year statute of limitations ends Thursday. If Helms is not indicted by then, he can never be charged.

He also is being investigated on charges that he committed perjury when he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the CIA made no attempts to overthrow the government of Marxist President Salvador Allende of Chile.

Works bill veto override seen

By JEFFREY ANTEVIL
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON—President Ford vetoed Friday a politically popular $6.1 billion public-works jobs bill, calling it "an election-year pork barrel," but a congressional override of the veto was expected.

In his 46th veto message since taking office in August 1974, Ford charged that claims by supporters that the bill would create 600,000 to 800,000 new jobs were "badly exaggerated."

His veto message, issued by the White House shortly before the President left for two days of political campaigning in Florida, estimated that only 250,000 jobs would be created by the bill—at a cost "probably in excess of $25,000 per job"—with most of them coming in late 1977 or early 1978. By then, Ford said, the recovery will be "far advanced" and the economy will no longer need additional stimulation.

The bill passed the House and Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support, so the veto is likely to be overridden next week when Congress returns from a Lincoln's Birthday recess.

Ford's first veto this year, of a $45 billion health and social-services bill, was overridden last month. A second consecutive victory would be viewed by congressional Democrats as a major boost in their battle with the President over spending priorities.

Both the total number of Ford vetoes and the number of overrides—eight so far—are records for the period of time.

Supporters of the public-works legislation, including the national Conference of Mayors, argue that it would create badly needed jobs at a rapid rate. Key provisions include "countercyclical" or anti-recession grants to help state and local governments preserve public jobs and $2.5 billion for public-works projects which can be started within 90 days.

New York State would get $275 million, including $137 million for the city, under the anti-recession program, which is intended for areas with unemployment over 6 per cent. Its share of the public-works funds would depend on how quickly it could submit projects for approval.

Despite its bipartisan support, Ford took the unusual step of committing himself to veto the bill before it had passed. He charged that it would add $2.5 billion to the federal deficit in the first year and another $1 billion in each of the next two years.

In his veto message, the President said his own "balanced economic policies," based on encouraging growth in the private sector, were succeeding, as seen in last month's 0.5 per cent drop in unemployment.

"My proposed economic policies are expected to foster the creation of 2 to 2.5 million new private-sector jobs in 1976 and more than 2 million additional jobs in 1977," Ford said.

NYC budget deficit leaps another 40 pct.

NEW YORK (AP) —

Mayor Abraham Beame said Friday that the city's budget deficit for the current fiscal year was expected to be over $1 billion—more than 40 per cent higher than anticipated last fall. Beame blamed "recession, inflation and actions of the state and federal governments over which we have no control."

Gov. Hugh L. Carey said after a three-hour session of the Emergency Financial Control Board that despite the increased deficit, "We will meet our payment dates to the federal government."

A loan plan, approved by Congress last November, gave the city $1.8 billion this fiscal year and $2.3 billion in each of the two fiscal years following. Each loan must be repaid before new funds are advanced from Washington.

Carey said the city would ask Washington to explore the possibility of continuing the loan program beyond the three-year period.

The city's budget for the fiscal year ending June 30 is approximately $12 billion. City officials estimated last October that there would be a $724 million deficit for the current year.

Beame said, however, that revised figures show an estimated deficit of $1.021 billion, some $297 million more than the October figure. He said the new estimate did not take into account a proposed $163 million cut in federal aid and $139 million in state aid. Nor, he said, did it include "potential additional funding for pension systems."

Beame said he had told the Control Board, an agency set up by the state legislature to oversee New York's finances through the 1977-78 fiscal year, that planned budget cuts over the next two fiscal years would have to be increased from $524 million to $821 million because of the increased deficit.

The mayor said $200 million already has been cut in the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

It was not clear whether the increased deficit would mean additional layoffs.

Reds pay well on black market

Electronics secrets leaked to Russ

NEW YORK — High electronics technology is flowing illegally from the United States to Soviet bloc nations, Electronics magazine reported this week.

It's a growing problem and one U.S. officials find hard to control, the McGraw-Hill magazine points out.

"For now, at least, the Soviets apparently are concentrating on obtaining production equipment, test instruments and commercial components. There are also indications that embargoed computers and computer peripherals have filtered into the Soviet Union," the publication revealed.

It notes that restricted test instruments, components and other sensitive items are leaving the country in various ways including diplomatic pouch and simple diversion after sales to legitimate customers.

Evidence points to firms in Singapore, Lebanon, Austria, Sweden, Switzerland and other countries, involved in the past or at present, in the flow of embargoed technology.

Acknowledging that the sale of embargoed U.S. electronic equipment and components is a "growing problem and one that we're hard put to control," Charles B. Clements, director of the Commerce Department's Office of Export Administration's Compliance Division, observes that Soviet bloc countries "will use any means possible" to get equipment from this country.

He explains, in the Electronics story, that the Soviets "just put out a shopping list of their requirements in four or five places, and when they have managed to fill the bill they withdraw the list."

Money, says the story, is no object. The Office of Export Administration reports that Eastern bloc countries are paying cash premiums of 180 per cent or more over the net landed cost in Western Europe for certain strategic U.S. products.

A New York analyst, who follows the semiconductor industry worldwide, says rumors are "currently hot and heavy that hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of U.S. components are pouring through Zurich and Stockholm" into more than receptive Eastern bloc countries.

An executive, who says his information comes from sources "whose knowledge I value in these matters" told Electronics several well paid American engineers, experienced in semiconductor production equipment technology, are working for a group in Switzerland that designs and produces equipment sold to the Eastern bloc.

To crack down on illegal sales, the Office of Export Administration has fined and put on probation some European affiliates of American companies for making shipments of strategic electronic test instruments to Communist bloc countries without U.S. government approval.

But the problem continues to grow, with some American executives spotting their company machines in the Soviet Union.

Astronaut 'Pete' Conrad joins McDonnell Douglas

Charles (Pete) Conrad Jr., former astronaut who flew space missions in Gemini, Apollo and Skylab spacecraft, has been named vice president-consultant of McDonnell Douglas Corp., effective March 1.

Conrad assumes the full-time position at McDonnell Douglas after having spent more than two years as vice president and chief operating officer of American Television and Communications Corp., Denver, Colo. He joined the cable television company upon retiring as a captain from the Navy and the astronaut corps in December 1973.

Reporting to Robert C. Little, corporate vice president-marketing, Conrad will make his broad experience in aeronautics and astronautics available wherever required.

Conrad began his career as an astronaut in September 1962 after service as a naval aviator and test pilot. In August 1965 he flew the eight-day Gemini 5 mission. A year later he was the command pilot for the Gemini 11 flight during which he docked his spacecraft with an Agena vehicle and set a world space altitude record of 850 miles.

As spacecraft commander of the Apollo 12 mission in November 1969, Conrad spent nearly eight hours walking on the lunar surface, gathering samples and performing experiments.

On his last space flight, Conrad led the first three-man astronaut team to live in the Skylab Orbital Workshop. When a malfunction caused the loss of the micrometeoroid shield on the Skylab, Conrad and his crew rigged a thermal shade and deployed a jammed solar wing to insure the success of the Skylab mission. ## Land-cost crisis hits housing

DEL MAR — A nationally renowned real estate marketing analyst says America is crossing the threshold of the biggest housing crisis since post-World War II.

Sanford R. Goodkin, chairman of the board of the Sanford R. Goodkin Research Corp., in Del Mar, with offices in Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Miami, says the squeeze is caused by a rapid acceleration of single-family land pricing which will make 1977 single family housing prices climb well above the rate of income appreciation in the United States.

A record low-vacancy level in apartments, plus, surprisingly, the disappearing primary, or non-vacation, condominium and attached housing inventory contributes to the housing shortage.

GOODKIN SAID there were only 268,000 apartments and multi-family units started in 1975. "Compare this with 1974's total of 718,000, and 1,916,000 starts in 1973. The incredible 1.25 million unit drop foretells a great shift in the supply of shelter to Americans."

The decreasing number of mobile homes being built and sold is another contributing factor to the shortage. "These homes, which have been supplying the prime shelter in the under $25,000 category, have suffered as a result of the housing depression and the public's narrow views about allowing zoning for them. It looks as if the final deliveries for 1975 will be under 300,000, compared with over 556,000 in 1972 and 1973."

Goodkin expects 1976 mobile home starts to be little better than last year's disappointing total.

A MORE RAPID acceleration in the cost of land in 1976 will result in the very fast appreciation of single family and apartment supplies, according to Goodkin, who is West Coast economist for the National Association of Home Builders and consultant to the National Apartment Association, as well as many national housing, financial and realty development firms.

"If land prices went up during housing's depression, how can it not be tighter during the recovery?" he asks.

"We are approaching the dawning of the newest American crisis since Watergate, 'housing and the quality of housing supply,'" Goodkin says. "The shortage will result in a 'black market' of people seeking the diminishing supply of rentals, under the table payoffs to get families into apartments and tougher and more selective management."

"It is the old supply versus demand economics landing like a thunderstorm on the public."

Insurers eye policies curb

WASHINGTON — Motorists and home owners may find it more difficult to buy insurance this year as property casualty underwriters seek to stem a flood of red ink by cutting back on new policies, reports Business Week magazine.

"Next month, property-casualty insurers will announce results showing that 1975 was the most calamitous year in their history," the magazine says. "Underwriting losses were so bad for property-casualty companies that they have been turning customers away in droves and even pulling out of business entirely in some states."

"This has made auto and other personal insurance a commodity that is increasingly hard for many people to afford and to buy."

A.M. BEST CO., which tracks insurance industry results, said the industry paid out nearly $108 in claims and expenses for every $100 it earned in premiums last year. This was a worse loss ratio than the industry's record in the depths of the Depression.

Best said the industry lost nearly $4.2-billion in property-casualty policies last year. This came on top of an already weakened financial condition in the industry created by $1.6-billion in underwriting losses in 1974. To make things worse, 1975's debacle was virtually complete, with almost all major lines of property-casualty insurance showing heavy losses.

In the past 18 months, 30 insurers have gone under, including Gateway Insurance Co., a $50-million a year insurer and the largest casualty insurance insolvency on record.

ALTHOUGH A HEALTHY stock market helped cushion underwriting losses — the industry gained 14 per cent on investment income and scored a $4-billion capital gain, against a $6-billion capital loss in the 1974 bear stock market — net earnings of the industry's top five companies fell 52 per cent in the first nine months of 1975.

With surpluses (assets minus liabilities and underwriting loss provisions) at perilous lows, many companies have responded by cutting back on the policies they are willing to write. Unigard Insurance Group of Seattle, for example, notified the New Jersey Insurance Department last month that it would cease operating in the state once the policies of the 10,000 motorists it covers there expire.

The industry's top two consumer marketers, State Farm and Allstate, have both slashed advertising expenditures.

Says Edward B. Rust, president of State Farm: "When you're losing money on the average policy, you can't make it up with more volume."

Callbacks slated by auto plants

Knight News Service

DEPOIT — The four U.S. automakers, planning to operate all but two of their assembly plants next week, will reduce temporary layoffs among their hourly workers to 4,900, a decline from 17,000 during the current week.

The 2,400 hourly workers at Chrysler Corp.'s Jefferson Ave. plant in Detroit and 2,500 at General Motors Corp.'s South Gate, Calif., plant will be idle for the week to reduce oversized dealer inventories of cars produced at these plants.

South Gate also will be down the following week to allow time for converting parts of its facilities to assembly of the Chevrolet Chevette in addition to slow-selling Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick subcompact cars.

The Jefferson Ave. Chrysler plant builds hard-top sedan models in the Chrysler line.

Both American Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. will be operating all their U.S. assembly and manufacturing plants next week.

NEW YORK (AP) — While some of the nation's most important cities have had their bond ratings shaved during the past two years, scores of small and relatively unknown municipal units have had theirs raised to AAA — the very best.

Among them are the Simi Valley, Calif., Assessment District No. 8; the Smithtown, N.Y., Central School District; and the Wayne County, Mich., Sutliff and Kenope Drainage District.

About 150 other units were equally successful in attaining the best rating, which means the best credit terms. In the past 20 months they have borrowed more than $572 million on their AAA ratings, despite a troubled market.

All managed to market their bonds under an insurance program of the Municipal Bond Insurance Association, which guarantees the payment of principal and interest in the event of default.

"We're absolutely swamped with really good business," said John Butler, president of the Municipal Issuers Services Corp., White Plains, N.Y., which is the general manager of the association, a consortium of four big insurers.

THE TWO organizations were formed in the spring of 1974 when a need was recognized to assist smaller municipalities in obtaining financing for essential projects. Many essential projects. Many municipalities at the time were unable to market bonds.

The consortium was formed for that very purpose. It includes The Aetna Casualty and Surety Co., Aetna Insurance Co., St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co. and U.S. Fire Insurance Co., which have combined assets of more than $4 billion.

Any municipal unit accepted and insured by the consortium automatically obtains Standard & Poor's triple-A rating, which almost assures them of acceptability in the market, and at very good terms.

In some instances, for example, a municipality that would have had to pay roughly 9 per cent interest has been able to obtain funds at only 6 per cent. A New York township recently shaved nearly 4 per cent from its cost.

THE INSURANCE costs have varied between about $10 and $20 for each thousand dollars of borrowing but both municipal official and insurers say that fee and more is returned via the savings on interest.

The consortium limits to $20 million the amount which may be guaranteed for any one issuer, but most of the bond issues are for considerably less than that, some not totaling $1 million, and most not reaching $10 million.

The insurance program has now been approved by the insurance departments of almost all 50 states, although the municipalities that so far have borrowed are situated in only 18 states.

Not every town gets accepted. Butler, whose service corporation screens all applications, turns down about one-half of the requests. And of those he passes on to the consortium, about 25 per cent are refused.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

An enterprising nurseryman wanted to interest his customers in buying trees for shade, landscaping and just plain beauty. He had a sign hung across his lath house which read: "A home without a tree just ain't fit for a dog!"

Trees not only provide shade, they furnish oxygen and absorb carbon dioxide and also act as a barrier against smog.

Some gardeners prefer evergreen ornamentals, while others prefer flowering trees. One of the most beautiful of all deciduous trees that provide probably the most blossoms, is the flowering peach.

There are two types of flowering peaches, the single-flower variety and the double.

Personally I would select the double variety because the blossoms last longer than the single flowers. The peaches provide shade throughout the summer.

ONE OF the deciduous fruit trees that is a problem to some gardeners is the fig, because they dry up.

The mature trees need deep watering, at least four feet, and are greedy feeders.

We had an interesting experience with a large twelve-inch (trunk) fig on a gardening job some years ago.

The owner was unhappy because the figs were dry and inedible. We started to work on the tree in October. First, the tree received lots of water. Next, bone meal was applied — one pound per each inch diameter of the trunk — and lightly scratched into the soil. An inch of manure was spread evenly over the soil, then slowly soaked without puddling the manure. A month later, after a deep soaking and a balanced fertilizer containing 6-10-4 formula one pound per each diameter of the tree trunk was evenly scattered over the manure, it was watered well. The tree was then watered as needed.

THE following summer the Brown Turkey fig fruit was luscious, had juiciness, and was exceptionally sweet. The owner's Boston terrier "Bonzo" developed a taste for the fruit and would stand on his hind legs to reach the fruit. The owner had to pick the low-hanging figs before they fully ripened. (Gardener could still help a mature fig tree to produce better fruit by applying the manure and fertilizer.)

Sometimes a fig tree that gets lots of water and good care, and still doesn't produce good tasty juicy fruit, could be suffering from inroot nematodes.

These pests are minute eel-like worms in the soil that burrow into the roots, live in them, and feed on the plant's sap stream. They multiply prodigiously as if it has cancer. Such trees should be dug up and the soil fumigated. Fig varieties such as Brown Turkey, White Pacific and Adriatic need to be pruned annually, because they produce the fruit on the new growth that develops after the trees are pruned.

These trees can still be pruned if done right now. All a gardener needs to do is to cut the last year's growth back to within two buds or scars. Trim out the crossing branches if any, and the tree is pruned.

People and ideas

Are you in right church?

"I quit going to church," said the bitter man, "because I couldn't accept the nonsense they preached and I didn't like the attitude of the people."

The ex-churchman, unless he would really prefer to spend his Sunday mornings at the corner bar, failed to realize that he had options. In America there may be too many options. It is hard to decide what kind of religion, what kind of church one needs.

All Christian churches — there are 250 or so in the circulation area of the I.P.T. — believe they are serving the Lord Christ. But they serve him in 250 different ways.

Here are some of the criteria that should be considered by anyone looking for a happy church home:

DENOMINATION: If you believe in the doctrine and discipline of your denomination but can't stand what is going on at Second Methodist, drive a few miles to Third Methodist. You may find a completely different climate there.

SOCIAL CLASS: We Americans would like to think we are "a classless society." It just isn't so. A doctor of philosophy just doesn't feel at home in a church made up of factory workers. It is easier to associate with people whose language you talk.

These individual problems are important, but more important is doctrinal stance. What kind of Christian are you? What do you actually believe?

FUNDAMENTALISM: Many half-baked, sophomoric "liberals" sneer at Fundamentalism, perhaps because there are so many half-baked Fundamentalists. The sneer is ignorant. The Fundamentalists believe that the Bible is the Word of God, divinely inspired although written by human hands. Some of the half-baked would argue that every comma was inspired. Anyone who has talked to intellectual Fundamentalists, university men with higher degrees, knows that it isn't that way. Such learned men hold that the Bible is history which tells of God's plan for mankind. Fundamentalism, rightly understood, gives meaning to life for millions.

TRADITIONALISM: The word makes one think of candles and incense and sanctus bells and genuflecting and priests in pretty vestments.

But that is not what it is about. Traditionalism means that people should be cognizant of the entire Christian experience, not only the Bible but of all the centuries since Pentecost. And it looks to the future. It is a heritage for sons and sons' sons until the end of time. Communion may sometimes seem routine or stuffy, but for millions it is a reminder that the human race has a divine purpose.

LIBERALISM: "The things you are liable to

MARK CLUTTER
RELIGION EDITOR

read in the Bible ain't necessarily so."

The Liberals, formerly called Modernists, devote themselves too often to extreme literary and historical criticism. Some question the historicity of the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection. But they can't get rid of Jesus. Much of the emphasis is on Christian ethics and good works. Depending on the vision and devotion of individual congregations, good works may range from musicals and lectures to sacrificial efforts for the poor and for social justice.

EXISTENTIALISM: This word is hard to define, especially as it applies to Christianity. It is something like the free spirit's response to the Here and Now. It is perhaps like the "inner light," the voice of conscience of the Quakers. The Unitarians, who deny they are Christians but mostly act like Christians, seem to have an existentialist quality. But we have all known people like this, even in the most rigid denominations.

DISCIPLINE: Until they started fooling around with the Liturgy, one Baptismal Rite accepted the screaming, wet-diapered draftee as "a soldier and servant of Christ until his life's end."

Every church is a "military camp." That is, there is a discipline that must be followed. In some the discipline is very relaxed. It may include cocktail parties. But there are certain patterns of obligatory conduct in all churches.

Some people yearn for precise discipline. They want their lives to be patterned completely.

Perhaps the most disciplined church in modern America is the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints. In addition to church, there are weekly family nights in which the whole family has food, fun and prayer together. The event is patterned. High school kids go to "seminary" an hour each day before regular school. Many young men become missionaries, traveling through the nation and the world. Girls get their assignments too.

A good Mormon shuns tobacco, alcohol, tea, coffee and extramarital sex.

Mormon families are urged to lay in a year's supply of nonperishable food.

Mormons are not pacifists. They believe it is very old American's duty to fight for his country.

The Mormons take care of each other. No good Mormon starves.

It sounds tough, doesn't it? Kind of like the Marine Corps.

So they are making converts at a fantastic rate while many churches are declining in membership. The young especially are attracted although the ideal is to convert whole families. Minors are never baptized without parental consent.

The Seventh-day Adventists, although very different, are parallel. They follow Old Testament dietary laws, worship like Jews on Friday night and Saturday, teach people to quit smoking and are very keen on anything that relates to health and medicine.

Although pacifist, they are loyal Americans. With the help of the Army they teach their young men to be medical soldiers.

SUPERMARKETS: There are churches which attempt to provide for all the cultural, social, psychological, sport, intellectual and even spiritual needs of their widely scattered and diverse parishes. Do you want to play basketball? Do you need marriage counseling? Do you want to study the Bible? Do you want to make a romantic contact? Do you want to bear a concert? Do you want to sit in your car and smoke while you hear a sermon? Do you want pleasant dinners with pleasant people? The "superchurch's" experts can arrange all that. And more.

THE CULTISTS: It has been the style in recent years for young people to flock to the cults, some of them corruptions of Oriental religions, some of them perversions of Christianity.

"I feel so sorry for them," said a monsignor. "Christianity is very old and we have known these things before. We could help them — but they won't ask."

There doesn't seem to be much of anything good to be said about the cults. A cult exists as part of a community. It hopes by precept and example to create a better society. A cult withdraws from society. It disavows patriotism, social responsibility, friendship outside the cult, family ties, and even sex, either by promiscuity or by celibacy.

These witch doctors know how to find gold. The Unification Church of "the Rev." Sun Moon has convinced Americans out of many millions of dollars. He is also accused of ruining many young lives.

SEARCH FOR JOY: A church should be a place of joy. The Apostle Paul, even from prison and under the shadow of death, wrote "Rejoice!" again and again and again. Jesus preached joy. The idea of joy seems to be central in Christian doctrine.

But joy is hard to define. It must be felt. One feels it strongly in some churches, scarcely at all in others.

It seems to have little to do with denominations and their doctrines. Churches of grim intellectual stance may have joy. Nor does it

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

FEB. 16-22, 1976

New winter's hand is on both sea and land.

This is the month of good excuses (too cold, too wet, etc.) ... Washington's Day Feb. 16 (although he was born Feb. 22, 1732) ... Third quarter of the moon Feb. 22 ... The planet "Pluto" discovered Feb. 18, 1930 ... Average length of days for the week, 10 hours, 42 minutes ... First showing of Edison's "talkies" Feb. 17, 1931 ... First Maine sardine cannery opened Feb. 17, 1876 ... The more honestly a man has, the less he affects the saint.

Old Farmer's Riddle: What lives in winter, dies in summer, and grows with its root sticking upward? (Answer below.)

Ask the Old Farmer: I had a "saying" which I liked very much, but we unfortunately lost it in moving. I am trying to find the third line and hope you can help me. It read: "Three things we cannot take back: the spoken word, the unkind thought, the ...?" J.L. St. Paul, Minn.

"The misused hour."

Questionnaire

What Should Men Be?

By MARK CLUTTER

These pages recently had a questionnaire entitled "What Should Men Be?" The response was amazing in the variety and thoughtfulness of the replies, mostly from women.

Many women challenged: "Why don't you ask what men should be?"

These questionnaires are all in intellectual fun. They help readers to face up to their own ideas and emotions. And the answers tell what other readers are thinking. The questionnaires make no claim to scientific accuracy, but they may be straws showing which way the wind is blowing.

This is a "True or False" test, but as in past questionnaires, the questions are not that simple. Readers are urged to express their opinions.

It is important to give these facts about yourself:

SEX:

DENOMINATION:

Results will be published three weeks from today. Please mail your replies this week to:

1. A husband should be head of his household, loving and gentle but the commanding officer.

2. Boys should be taught to be fighters, tough but fair and square. They should get training in boxing, wrestling, football and other rugged combat sports.

3. Parents should encourage sons who show enthusiasm for music, painting, poetry or ballet.

4. A man, although conscious of his duty to family and society, needs the "gentlemanly diversion" of an occasional, discreet love affair.

5. A professional or business career is the most important thing in a man's life. No woman, no matter how beloved, must interfere with that.

6. No man needs to worry about birth control because that is woman's problem.

7. A man should be quick to heed the call to arms when his country needs him.

8. A man and woman should live together in the equality of comradeship — and learn to laugh a lot.

9. A man needs exclusively male companionship from time to time — lodge, poker party, hunting trip, civic club, perhaps a men's Bible class.

10. When a wife, daughter or sister strays from the ways of sexual decency a man should be forgiving.

11. If a wife holds a full-time job, her husband should do half the housework.

12. No matter what his position in life, a man should dress as well as he can, be clean, walk tall and always be courteous. (Remembering, of course, that in some jobs cleanliness and good clothes are impossible during working hours.)

13. In lovemaking a man should be gentle and patient, striving to give his wife total emotional and physical gratification.

14. In our era a father should encourage his daughters as well as his sons to make something of themselves in rewarding and useful careers.

15. The Pope is right in his condemnation of artificial birth control, fornication and adultery, masturbation, homosexuality and abortion.

16. A man should own at least one excellent gun — and know how to use it.

17. A Christian man as head of his household has the duty to study the Bible, perhaps with professional help, so he can guide his family in the right way.

18. A man should never give up sports and athletics, although he will be forced to modify his activities as he gets older.

19. If a man finds his wife boring, cold or a nag, he should divorce her and find a better woman.

20. A man should seek the friendship of women, listen to their ideas, be gentle, respectful and interested. He can learn much from women of all ages.

People, ideas

have much to do with ceremonial custom. Some churches shout ecstatically. Some are very sedate and prim in behavior. Joy can sometimes be found in a Quaker meeting in which not one word is uttered.

What is this Christian joy? It seems to be a communal manifestation of the Summary of the Law — Love God and your neighbor as yourself. When one encounters it, his life is, at least for the time being, enriched.

NO PERFECTION: A person seeking a church should not expect perfection. The people of God are just human beings. They are subject to the Seven Deadly Sins. Sometimes the sins of church people seem more ugly than those of simple, honest pagans. This is easy to understand because the sinning church member is torn two ways.

So a church member needs a measure of cynicism. He will not be happy if he expects perfection of his brothers and sisters. Or of himself. Gentle cynicism is the beginning of mercy and forgiveness.

All Saints Episcopal

'Evangelical and Catholic'

By MARK CLUTTER

Morning worship at All Saints Episcopal Church, Termino Avenue and Colorado street, at 9 or 11 a.m., is an esthetic experience.

One would have to be a dillard indeed not to appreciate the cadenced ceremonial, at once dignified and joyful, with the fine organ music of James Naylor, organist and choirmaster, and the well-trained choir. The organ, a superb instrument, is rather new since the old one was ruined by a fire.

The church, almost inconspicuous from the street, is a work of art in a quiet way. One has to look a little to appreciate fully the details of its beauty.

A Huge Cross bearing the image of the victorious Christ the King dominates sanctuary and nave. The work of Dutch sculptor, it is generally considered to have great artistic merit.

The altar rail is circular, which is a convenience in a cruciform church.

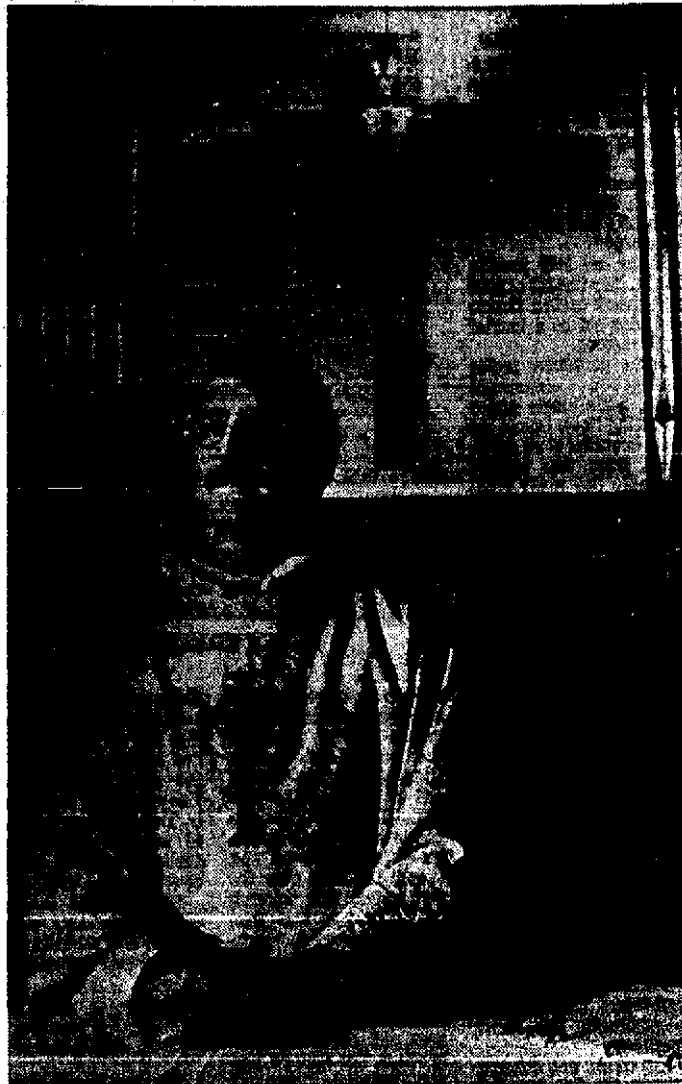

A lovely church in a sedate way — but All Saints is much more than a Sunday morning experience for art lovers.

One begins to realize that when he goes to the traditional after-service coffee. These people are friendly and warm. They are almost a family — but a family eager to acquire new members. They don't try to proselyte you — they just make you know you are welcome.

"All Saints is Catholic and evangelical," said the 29-year-old rector, Father William A. Thompson. "We hold to tradition, but we believe the individual parish should carry the message of Christ to the community and the world. The healthier you are, the more you look outside."

An example of this outward looking is the budget. Of the $92,000, All Saints gives $19,500 to the work of the Diocese of Los Angeles.

"All Saints has a strong sense of dedication," said Father Thompson. "We have tremendous leadership. This is a nurturing, loving community which seeks to know Christ and make Christ known to all men."

ALL SAINTS is also at once progressive and conservative.

It is progressive because it faces up to current problems. It does what needs to be done with vigor. For example, it is now engaged in a $165,000 building program to provide for classrooms, nursery, kitchen and dining space.

The 50-year-old church is conservative in part because of the characteristics of its members. There are many older people, including retired military officers and business and professional people. Many are reasonably prosperous. The educational level is very high. Such people usually do not welcome changes in custom and doctrine.

Opposition to the ordination of women to the priesthood is very strong.

Most members look more favorably on the proposed revision of the Book of Common Prayer of 1928.

All Saints is changing in its membership. "The average age is going down," said the young priest. "We have many more young people than in the past. Perhaps the community is changing, but I attribute this more to a social change in the patterns of youth. So many young people today are looking for the spiritual. They are swinging away from the moral confusion of a few years ago. They want something to believe, something that requires loyalty."

ALL SAINTS is home to Father Thompson. He grew up in the parish and was an acolyte. He was sponsored for seminary by the church. He was educated at Stanford University and at Seabury-Western Theological Seminary. He served as curate at St. Mark's Church, Barrington Hills, Ill. He returned with his wife, Claudia, to serve as assistant at All Saints. The Thompsons have two very young sons. Father Robert C. Woodfield is the associate rector.

Father Thompson became the sixth rector, succeeding the Venerable

Storm Center

Religion Editor:

Religion Editor Mark Clutter last Saturday in your paper criticized The Tidings, newspaper of the Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles, as dull, boring and preoccupied with sex.

The value of Mr. Clutter's comments is ques-

All Saints

Donald R. Behm, archdeacon of the Diocese of Los Angeles.

He has distinguished people to live up to. Reading backward through history, let's look at some of the accomplishments of these rectors.

Father Behm is credited by laymen for his astute handling of the financial problems of a small church. He supervised the acquisition of the new organ. But he also brought intellectual and spiritual vigor to the church by organizing and supervising many study groups. He was rector from 1966 to 1973.

Father James E. Carroll, 1959-1966, supervised the reconstruction of the building into a cruciform church and other physical changes. His emphasis, however, was on spiritual mission, centering on the Eucharist. From here he went to a parish in Reno. He is now dean of the Chicago Cathedral.

Father Ainsley Carlton, 1954-59, improved the organizational pattern and helped the church to grow. A quotation from a sermon tells something about the man: "The Fellowship of the Church is to be found only in the Fellowship of the Christ." He left to become a rector in Seattle.

The rectorship of Father Harry Leigh-Pink (1952-53) was brief but he placed strong emphasis on the development of the Church School and the Navy Chapel Seaman's Institute.

The first rector, Father Augustus Martyr, 1926-52, had the longest tenure. (It would be hard for a novelist to invent a better name for a priest.) The church then met in a bungalow. The present church was begun in 1929, but the Depression and then the 1933 earthquake were serious setbacks. The debt was completely paid in the war year 1943.

All Saints began as a mission founded in 1924 by the late Father Perry Austin, rector of St. Luke's.

tionable in view of his apparent unawareness and insensitivity to the turmoil occurring in the whole area of human sexuality. There has been a devaluation of sex and a consequent dehumanization and depersonalization of human beings. The consequences are affecting all areas of society.

Mr. Clutter criticizes The Tidings for sexy stories, but very strangely withholds the basic facts. What kind of journalism is that?

The stories in the one issue that he chose to criticize dealt with the following:

A news report on pro-life demonstrations locally and nationally January 22 against the Supreme Court's pro-abortion decision.

A doctor's account of witnessing an unborn child's fight against abortion by injection.

A nationally known catechist's counsel to parents on moral sex education.

A report of an attack on the U.S. Catholic Bishops by the president of Planned Parenthood.

A report from a San Fernando Valley community on its fight against pornography. This story was in response to requests for coverage from our readership.

All of these topics are at the storm center of the news today and are too substantial to be superficially dismissed as "sexy." By concealing the specifics of the stories he criticized, Mr. Clutter misrepresented The Tidings as some sensation-striving sexist newspaper.

I must be as frank as Mr. Clutter was and say that I am disappointed that the religion editor of a daily newspaper finds one of the central issues of our time to be boring and dull.

By the way, Mr. Clutter seems not to have checked The Tidings' masthead. Our staff does not consist of "Reverend editors" as he states. We are laymen, newspapermen. We do hope we are reverent.

We do not claim immunity to criticism. Mr. Clutter's comments are a heavy handed putdown that serves only to suffocate rather than enlighten.

Not sexist

Religion Editor:

As a long time subscriber and reader of The Tidings I am sorry that you are displeased with that publication and found it necessary to label it as a Sexist Newspaper while during the many years of my reading I have never found it to be in that category. I think you could find Sexist sheets around town.

I happen to know something about Sexist reading but I suspect that their long time opposition to some social ailments, Abortion, etc. may have rankled you a bit, altho I do not believe as Religion Editor you would not have the necessary space in your newspaper to air your views and opinions if your advertising department could not sell their advertising, since I noted a half page of church advertising on your page. Do you tell them how to run their publications?

I can assure you that I have never found The Tidings boring or resulted in putting me asleep, so Mr. Clutter I am sure that The Tidings will carry on as usual with their ideas, interest in sports and advertising even though you are displeased as is one man's opinion freely expressed in advertising financed newspaper.

Church and sex

Religion Editor:

Since you invited criticism of the critic in your Saturday article on "Let's All Get Angry", I would like to take exception to the tone of your statement that the Roman Catholic Church seems to be obsessed with what people do in their bedrooms.

I agree that the church is, and has been quite vocal on sexual matters, but I do not think it fair or objective to scorn and/or mock this concern by branding it as "obsession" with bedroom activities.

First of all, I know that the Church is dedicated to upholding the dignity and sanctity of human life — if for no other reason than the Christian belief that man is created with an immortal soul in the image and likeness of God. To make this possible, God, in his infinite wisdom and goodness, gave man and woman the joy and beauty of sexual union primarily in order that they could cooperate in his divine plan for perpetuating humanity. Any outside forces and/or influences that tend to downgrade, demean, cheapen, attack, ridicule, or mock the sexual union that leads to the creation of so precious a thing as human life, is quite naturally repugnant to the Church.

I feel that it is fairer to state that the RC Church is vitally concerned with the unholy and unwholesome results of what people do in their bedrooms, whereas it is society that seems to be obsessed with everything that goes on in bedrooms. On the one hand, the Church is trying to uphold the dignity, beauty, spiritual quality, and proper use of the sexual act within the framework of good and secure marriages. On the other hand, so much of modern society outdoes itself in relegating sex to the gutter in every conceivable mocking, ugly, degrading, obscene, pornographic and depraved manner possible. Such bedroom activity as indiscriminate fornication, adultery, abortion, homosexuality, masturbation, sodomy, group sex et al does not exactly enhance the beauty, quality, and dignity of an act designed to assist in the creation of human life, as well as the cementing of wholesome love between a husband and wife.

The Church is well aware that the real strength of any great society or nation rests primarily on the stability of its family unit. For this reason, any influence which tends to distort, weaken, or dilute so important a factor as wholesome sex attitudes in marriage, is bound to be a matter of great import to the church.

In summation, it is my judgement that the Church would be derelict in its duties if it did not display a never-ending and militant stand (Yes, even by propaganda and obsessive emphasis), against the vile distortions of God's plan of LOVE, MARRIAGE, SEX & FAMILY by the money mad merchants of filth who pander unceasingly to the very worst that is in us.

Orthodoxy

Religion Editor:

It is shocking beyond measure to see immorality and corruption spreading through our society at the breath-taking speed at which it is moving today. It is also astounding beyond comprehension to see the breakdown in the stand for Biblical theology among so-called Christian clergymen in this country, who deny the Virgin Birth, the blood Atonement effected on the Cross, the Physical Resurrection of Jesus Christ, etc. It is an affront to both Christians and to God to have clergymen recite the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds, who do not believe them.

In particular I observe the ordination of the LESBIAN (woman homosexual) to the order of Deacons in St. Peter's Episcopal Church in New York City on December 15 by Bishop Paul Moore,

Hearsts get terror note; man jailed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Terrorists issued a communique threatening and taunting the Hearst family Friday and said Patricia Hearst would not have lived to go on trial if she had been released on bail.

The letter signed by the New World Liberation Front was hand-delivered to The Associated Press and other news media by a self-described NWLF courier. The FBI later took into custody the messenger, Jacques Rogiers, and said it believed the communique was authentic.

The FBI said Rogiers, also known as Jack Rogers, 37, was arrested without incident on a Feb. 4 bench warrant charging him with failure to appear before a federal grand jury here in connection with his dissemination of communiques reportedly prepared by the NWLF. He was jailed pending a court appearance Tuesday.

After reading a copy of the letter, Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, sighed: "They're just a bunch of maniacs."

THE LETTER claimed responsibility for Thursday's bombing of the Hearst Castle in San Simeon. It demanded that the Hearst family contribute $250,000 to the defense fund of William and Emily Harris, Symbionese Liberation Army members who escorted Miss Hearst through the terrorist underground after the SLA kidnaped her two years ago.

Attorney E. J. Kleines said Hearst would not comply with the terrorists' demands.

The other demand listed in the communique was: "Stop the lying that is designed to save Patty and bury the Harrises."

The letter gave the Hearsts 48 hours to meet the demands or "Hearst Castle will only be the beginning."

Hearst read it in an elevator at the trial's mid-day break while another of his five daughters, Anne, stood beside him, nervously touching her lower lip.

"It just never seems to stop, does it?" Anne said to her father.

Hearst slumped in a corner of the elevator and replied wearily, "No, it doesn't."

"WE ARE well aware of why it was decided that Patty was not to get out on bail," the letter said. "If she had, she would never have made it to her trial alive!" The "alive" was underlined in the text.

FBI agent Frank Perrone said copies of the letter would be studied and compared with past NWLF communiques claiming responsibility for a number of bombings in the San Francisco Bay area. Little is known about the NWLF.

The blast caused an estimated $1 million damage to a guest house at the castle 150 miles south of here.

LOCKHEED

of his chief priorities was the matter of refinancing the troubled corporation's debt, which now amounts to some $600 million.

Haack has been a Lockheed board member since August 1972, when he resigned as head of the New York Stock Exchange, a position he had held since 1967. He also has served as a board member of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Besides Lockheed, another aerospace firm, the Northrop Corp., has admitted to making payments to foreign officials and then failing to reveal the payments in their financial statements to the Securities and Exchange Commission and the public.

Payments to foreign officials are not, by themselves, illegal under U.S. law, but the failure to disclose them in financial reports is unlawful.

THE SEC also announced Thursday that the Boeing Co. of Seattle is under investigation for possible illegal and improper bribes, kickbacks and political contributions. Boeing denied it has committed wrongdoing either domestically or overseas.

Bribes paid by Lockheed to foreign officials have hurt U.S. industrial efforts overseas, E.H. Bouliouan, president of the Boeing Commercial Airplane Co., a division of the Boeing Co., said Friday in Seattle.

"I think everybody in the United States is going to be hurt, I don't care whether it's the aerospace industry or any other industry," Bouliouan said in a telephone interview.

"This is hurting the foreign people who are getting themselves involved. They are going to be saying, 'there's an American company getting us in trouble.' They don't say to themselves that they were the ones that got themselves in trouble."

DISCLOSURES that Lockheed paid millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials already have had an adverse effect on its financial picture.

According to published reports, Japan canceled a $1.3 billion purchase of 100

Lockheed antisubmarine warfare aircraft after the payoffs there were disclosed.

However, Japanese officials said Thursday that no decision had yet been made on the purchase, and a spokesman for Lockheed said Thursday a contract has not yet been awarded.

LAST Jan. 30 the General Accounting Office reported that Lockheed officials believed the firm's ability to realize its foreign sales potential could be jeopardized seriously if it was forced to disclose the details of its payments to foreign officials.

Since that time the names of some of those receiving money were disclosed through testimony before the subcommittee on multinational corporations.

In addition to the payoffs in Japan, they included alleged payments of more than $1 million to Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, who has denied receiving them.

On Thursday Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, urged the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board to impose a strict month-by-month repayment schedule against Lockheed's $250 million loan guarantee.

PROXMIRE said Lockheed repeatedly has fallen behind schedule in repaying the loan, and that the board has failed to exercise proper supervision over the loan. He said unless such a schedule is adopted he will introduce legislation to phase out the loan guarantee.

Proxmire said he was concerned about a report by the comptroller general, Elmer R. Staats. Staats told Congress earlier this week that Lockheed may not have sufficient revenues to fully repay the government-backed loans on time.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Lockheed's finances had improved since the period covered by Staats' report, and he said the company has a much better chance of repaying its loans on time.

PATTY RECALLS KIDNAPING

"communique," she recalled tearfully, he pinched her in the breasts and groin.

Miss Hearst told during her testimony of DeFreeze's hateful words about her parents.

"He said that my parents had committed crimes against the people and that I was being held for their crimes ... He said that I could be tried for what my parents had done."

MISS HEARST, who had disavowed any radical allegiances during testimony Monday with the jury absent, continued to portray herself as victim, not ally, of kidnapers she identified as DeFreeze, Angela Atwood and William Harris. Only Harris is still alive.

After the playing of the tape recording that began, "Mom, Dad, I'm O.K.," her attorney F. Lee Bailey resumed questioning.

Bailey asked if Cinque had anything to say about her performance on the tape.

A. Yes ... He came over to me and said he'd heard from some of the sisters — the women there — that I wasn't cooperating and that I'd better not do it anymore.

Q. What did he do to you then?

A. He pinched me.

Q. Where?

A. In my breasts and down (pause) ...

Q. Private parts as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And then he left the closet?

A. Yes.

Q. And was the blindfold replaced?

A. Yes.

AT THAT point, the session ended and Miss Hearst, still sniffling, left the stand and was led quickly out of court.

After telling of her abduction, the sounds of gunfire and of Weed screaming, the distraught Miss Hearst drew a vivid picture of her life in the cell-like closet.

"The closet was really hot," she said. "You could tell the difference when they opened the door because fresh air would come in."

She said she had her first exposure to SLA rhetoric from "Cinque" an hour after she came to the closet, sometime after midnight.

"He said that they were the SLA and that I was going to be held as a prisoner of war and that if anything happened to their two comrades the same thing would happen to me."

THE COMRADES, she said, were Joseph Remiro and Russell Little, SLA "soldiers" then imprisoned in the slaying of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

She said DeFreeze indicated her kidnaping was aimed at gaining release for Remiro and Little, who were later convicted of the Foster slaying.

"... I think it was the next day that Cinque came and read me the codes of war and the statement of the aims of the SLA or something ... He told me I was in a people's prison ..."

BEGINNING to cry, her voice barely a whisper, Miss Hearst said the SLA chieftain said "that I'd be treated in accordance with the Geneva Convention," which set forth standards for the treatment of prisoners of war.

Then, she said, he began an "interrogation," asking for data on her mother, father and sisters.

"... The way he was asking them, it sounded as though he already knew the answers but he wanted to make sure I was answering correctly ... It would get to the point where Cinque got mad and said I wasn't answering the questions right and he would close the door for a while and say I better get it straight."

The next day, she said, others joined the interrogation.

"... They were still threatening me and saying things like your father's got insurance on you and it doesn't matter whether you get killed."

IT WAS AFTER several such sessions, she recalled, that they forced her to make the first tape recording, with Cinque dictating her words.

Her account of terror and torment had begun in early afternoon with the narrative of her kidnaping.

"Steve had already opened the door and there was a woman standing there ... She was in a black coat ... It was Angela Atwood. She was saying she hit a car in the basement and could she use the telephone."

"And then two other people burst in behind her ... One man was black and one man was white. They were Donald DeFreeze and William Harris."

"I was in the kitchen and Angela Atwood came up, and I screamed, and she grabbed me and pointed a pistol in my face and told me to keep quiet ... Somebody put me on the floor, and I don't know which one did it. Then William Harris tied my hands behind me."

"I looked at him, and he grabbed my head and put it down. He was straddling me."

"... I was blindfolded and gagged. I bit on the gag so that they couldn't put it far enough. I heard someone say, 'Where's the safe?' and Steve said there wasn't any. I heard him say, 'Take anything you want.'"

WEED WAS left beaten and bleeding by the kidnapers.

Miss Hearst said she heard Angela Atwood say "Let's get out of here."

"... I was taken outside when I heard shots. I was screaming. I was struck in the face and I lost consciousness. I came to and I was being dragged down the stairs ... Somebody grabbed me and then I was in the trunk of a car ..."

"The car moved and then stopped ... It could have been a minute or two minutes, I don't recall ... They opened up the trunk and took me out and put me in another car. It was a station wagon, and I was put on the floor ..."

"DeFreeze, Angela Atwood and Harris were in the back ... Emily (Harris) was driving, and Nancy Ling Perry was in the front seat ..."

"I was on the floor an hour or two ... They told me I'd better be quiet, that if I made any noise, they'd kill me ..."

She said that she was taken up a couple of stairs after the car stopped, down a hallway "and then they started to put me in the closet."

SHE SAID that about an hour or two later, the door was opened and she heard a voice she now recognizes as that of DeFreeze.

"He said they were the SLA and I was going to be held as a prisoner of war," Miss Hearst said.

Stanton jury off for holiday

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

The jury in the perjury trial of Dr. Frank Stanton will continue Tuesday to try to reach a verdict on whether the Long Beach physician lied about bribing former City Councilman Wayne Sharp.

The case went to the jury at 2:10 p.m. Friday, and jurors, failing to reach a verdict after two hours, were sent home for the three-day holiday weekend.

THE DOCTOR is charged with two counts of perjury himself before a 1974 federal grand jury probing alleged bribes to city officials from Ringo, Inc., and the Long Beach Amusement Co., which Stanton headed until a month ago.

Much of the case against Stanton hinges on the testimony of convicted perjurer Sharp, who said he got $1,000 from the amusement company after a prior arrangement with Stanton. The payment was for Sharp's City Council support for a parking-lot lease renewal for the company.

The council voted to lease 5 1/2 acres to the company for $18,000 a year, although the rental was later raised to $42,000.

In final arguments Friday, the defense contended it was not Stanton but the amusement company's general manager, Ben O'Dorisio, and Elmer Velare, a major stockholder in the company and a Pike concessionaire, who bribed Sharp.

Defense counsel George Wise said O'Dorisio and Velare set Stanton up to take the rap for the bribe Sharp testified he got.

But prosecutor James Duff said Sharp had never met Velare and approached O'Dorisio for the money only after Sharp had made a previous arrangement with Stanton.

DUFF SAID Velare and O'Dorisio told identical stories in court when they said that Stanton agreed to pay Sharp for his support.

Duff insisted Sharp did not lie in his testimony during the Stanton trial despite his conviction of lying before the grand jury.

and total tax" figures for his last five years in public office ending in 1974. He said, however, that he will not release figures for 1975 nor issue any statement of net worth.

"I have no way of knowing what my net worth is now," Reagan said. "Because all my assets have been placed in a blind trust I cannot ask nor can they (trustees) tell me how many assets fluctuate."

Ford released a financial statement Thursday showing his net worth to be $323,489. He also paid 42 per cent of his gross income in federal, state and local taxes for 1974.

More unofficial tabulations in Oklahoma's

Democratic delegate-selection process became available, showing Jimmy Carter holding a slim advantage over Fred Harris.

But the largest single block of delegates selected to attend the Feb. 29 county conventions — 41 per cent — were uncommitted to any candidate.

Incomplete returns showed 2,925 uncommitted delegates, or 41.0 per cent; Carter had 1,318 or 18.5 per cent; Harris had 1,185 or 16.6 per cent; Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas had 890 or 12.5 per cent; Alabama Gov. George Wallace had 740 or 10.4 per cent. Other candidates got 1 per cent of the delegates, a total of 74.

Hamill conquers nerves, wins gold

Gold medal performance

freestyle routine in 12th Olympics at Innsbruck.

—AP Wirephoto

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Dorothy Hamill, America's figure skating queen, won a gold medal at the Winter Olympic Games Friday night with a brilliant freestyle routine and Canada's Kathy Kreiner narrowly beat Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany in the women's giant slalom to spoil Rosi's hopes of an Alpine ski grand slam.

Miss Hamill, who cried when she walked into the rink, overcame her famous case of nerves and skated a nearly-perfect program while her even more nervous mother stayed in a hotel room to watch on television.

It was America's third gold medal in these Games and Miss Hamill, of Riverside, Conn., richly deserved it. Dianne de Leeuw, who lives in Paramount but skates for The Netherlands, won the silver medal and Christine Errath of East Germany won the bronze.

Wendy Burge, 18, of Garden Grove finished sixth and 15-year-old Linda Fratianne of Los Angeles was eighth.

Miss de Leeuw, skating last and facing the virtually impossible task of catching Miss Hamill, gave a daring exhibition but stumbled on a double lutz and also on a double axel which cut her scoring.

Miss Hamill got a 5.8 of a possible 6.0 rating on technical excellence from eight of the nine judges. The American judge rated her 5.9. On the artistic part of her program, all judges rated her 5.9.

Miss de Leeuw got five ratings of 5.8 and four of 5.7 on the technical part and seven 5.8 and two 5.7 ratings on artistry.

"I started to cry when I saw a sign that people were holding in the stands," Miss Hamill said. She said she thought the sign had been hoisted by detractors but later realized it had been held by friends to jar her out of pre-competition jitters.

"I thought I owed them so much," she said. "Then I felt better and all the nervousness was gone."

The nervousness did disappear. Her routine was brilliant and 10 times it moved the audience to applause. At the end, four girls helped gather the flowers thrown by admirers in the packed crowd of 9,000.

Miss Hamill's victory gave the surprising United States' squad its 10th medal of these Games. Only twice before have the Americans done better, and the all-time American high of 12 medals is within reach today.

While Miss Hamill was winning, Miss Mittermaier missed by only 12-100ths of a second in her bid to become the first woman to win all three Alpine gold medals in an Olympics.

The loss came at the hands of Miss Kreiner, an unheralded Canadian, in Friday's run of the giant slalom, one in which Americans performed poorly.

Miss Mittermaier, who holds a comfortable lead in the World Cup standings, already had won the downhill and slalom events in these Winter Games.

Miss Kreiner claimed Canada's first gold medal and the Russians won their 12th gold in the biathlon relay. Jan Egil Storholt of Norway won the 1,500-meter men's speed skating race on his 27th birthday.

East Germany took a strong lead on the first day of the two-day four-man bobsled competition.

The Americans failed to get a medal in the first three finals of the day, with Dan Carroll's fifth-place finish in the 1,500 the best showing until Miss Hamill's figure skating victory. Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., who won a gold Thursday at the 1,000 meters, said he was emotionally drained and did not compete as scheduled in the event.

Sharman finds his men

After a two-month search, coach Bill Sharman of the Lakers has found the winning combination.

All the pieces fit Friday night as the Lakers exploded for a 126-112 victory over the New Orleans Saints at the Forum. It was their third win in a row and fifth in the last eight games.

Defensively, the Lakers didn't measure up to past performances, but the pace was fast from the opening buzzer and they found they could win by running and gunning.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar regained his stride, scoring 32 points, and Gail Goodrich continued his brilliant play of late by adding 30 points. Six Lakers scored in double figures.

Sharman, trying various line-ups the past two months, is getting good mileage from two reserves, Kermit Washington and Donnie Freeman. The top seven places seem to be set for the remainder of the season.

Washington provides solid rebounding, helping Abdul-Jabbar launch the fast break, and Freeman provides good defense and more firepower in the backcourt.

Freeman, sidelined three weeks with tender knees, contributed 16

LBCC runs win streak to eight

By PAUL McLEOD

Bill Fraser stood near the Long Beach City College bench immediately after the Vikings struggled to their eighth successive Metropolitan Conference victory, downing visiting East Los Angeles Friday, 78-71.

"This was an exact duplicate of Tuesday," said the LBCC coach in reference to the Vikings' sloppy, 71-67 home court victory over Valley. "I'd sure like to bury someone sometime and take a break from all this, but this conference never allows any breathing room."

Then Fraser got the news and his tone changed. Visiting Mission College had upset Pasadena, 89-82 and dropped the Lancers two games behind the Vikings with four to play.

"Well, I guess this gives us some breathing room," he said with a smile. "That takes a little pressure off us."

The Viking win was marred by the loss of sixth-man Mickey Chislock, removed from the game by stretcher with 8:06 remaining in the first half after hitting a 15-foot jumper that put the Vikings ahead 23-15. On his follow through Chislock landed on the left foot or heel of East L.A.'s Dan Hollearn and, off balance, crashed to the court in agony. He was taken to Lakewood Doctor's Hospital for X-rays to determine if his right ankle was broken. Chislock, whom Fraser has relied upon all season to control the defensive backboards late in the game, was averaging 6.6 points and four rebounds a contest.

'Unknown' shares S.D. Open lead

By DOUG IVES

SAN DIEGO — Until he visited a former Long Beach amateur champion for lessons last fall, Mike Morley was just another golfer on the PGA tour.

Now the 29-year-old from Minot, N. Dak., is the best-playing "unknown" on the circuit with $38,140 in earnings, including a second-place finish in the Crosby and a tie for fourth in Hawaii.

Morley moved into a tie with J.C. Snead for the midway lead in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Friday, carding a 6-under-par 66 at North Torrey Pines for a two-round total of 133, 11-under-par.

It was the 14th time in 25 rounds this year that Morley, an Arizona State graduate who prepped at La Jolla High, has shot in the 60s. His worst finish in five tournaments was a tie for 22nd at Tucson.

Only Johnny Miller, Ben Crenshaw and Bob Gilder have won more than Morley this year and all were tournament winners. Morley has never won and, in fact, had averaged only $18,700 for six years, that figure going up in 1975 when he collected $41,102.

The man behind Morley's success is Joe Nichols, who at age 14 won the Long Beach City Championship in 1930. Nichols lives in Phoenix, hasn't played competitive golf in 20 years but teaches at a driving range.

Nichols' system is so complicated, says Morley, that he finds it almost impossible to explain.

"Everybody used to laugh at the guy because his techniques were so strange... scary, in fact," said Morley, who first visited Nichols in 1974 but needed a full year before he fully understood how to put the teachings into practice.

"I guess the simplest way to put it is that he teaches leverage," explained Mike. "I've been exercising the club the way he tells me and I'm now convinced he knows what he's talking about. But there are a lot of guys who don't think his methods are worth anything."

Another young touring pro who agrees with Morley is Howard Twitty, also from Arizona. Twitty put those teachings to good use in the Phoenix Open, finishing second behind Miller.

"I was fairly well stumped when I went to him," said Morley. "My game had gone about as far as it could go, and that wasn't good. I think Nichols is a genius. He tied all the loose ends together for me."

Morley, whose wedge play has improved dramatically under Nichols' guidance, collected five birdies and 3-putted once for his only bogey on the easier North course, which is only 6,867 yards.

L.B. Rodeo opens; winner? the bull

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

Eight seconds on a ferocious bull can seem like a lifetime.

Larry Smith didn't come close to going the distance on Old Brindle Friday night and probably saw his life pass before his eyes in the process. The Elk Grove cowboy lost his death grip, was tossed, lit on the back of his neck and was jabbed a few times by his riled foe.

Medics carried Smith off on a stretcher with a possible concussion, the lone casualty in the first of three performances of the 14th Long Beach Rodeo.

Entry fees are expensive and Smith's short ride was a costly one. For Tony Medeiros, staying aboard Super Star may prove richly rewarding. He scored 75 points aboard the black beauty with the white face, leading mark in an event boasting a $1,650 purse.

"It could be worth $700 if it holds up the next two days," said the lean youngster from Gustine. Medeiros, who has placed in only one of four rodeos this young season, won't be around to collect his bull riding paycheck, though.

"I'm flying out tonight to ride in San Antonio Saturday, and I've got rodeos in Jackson, Miss., and Reno before going back to San Antonio next weekend."

Such is the hectic life of the circuit-riding cowboy—here today and gone tomorrow—but the brief stopover in Long Beach meant something more to Tony than possibly increasing his bankroll.

The rider may be little more than a novice pro, but the bull is a veteran National Finals Rodeo performer and aptly named.

"That's only the second time I've been on Super Star and the first time I've ridden him. Last year in Hayward, he gored me in the side of the head and shoulder," said Medeiros, pointing to a scar next to his right eye, "so I was really keyed up tonight."

Medeiros, a fuzzy-cheeked 19-year-old, has been riding professionally since leaving high school three years ago. "By going to college I would have had to pass up most of the better rodeos."

Tony didn't make much of a run at

Joe Alexander's single event record of $41,184 last season.

"I earned about $4,700 and I guess I might have come close to breaking even. I got into about 40 rodeos and you need to enter at least 100 to do well."

The bulls decided the cowboys, 7-5, Friday while the bareback broncs won by a 5-2 margin. Lyle Sankey of Rose Hill, Kans., No. 7 money winner among saddle bronc riders this season, took the early lead in bareback competition with a 61-point effort aboard NFR participant Miss Reno.

Wayne Hall of Greenville, Texas, currently the season's third richest bull rider, spurred tough Harlem Bay to a 62-point ride and first place in saddle bronc.

Fresno St. hopes to keep LBSU winless on road

49ers fighting for survival...and title

By JIM MCCORMACK Staff Writer

FRESNO—It is, in the eyes of Dwight Jones, a classic confrontation. "It's what competitive athletics are all about," Jones says of Long Beach State's 7:30 duel with host Fresno State tonight.

"It's one team battling for a championship," continues Jones, "and another battling to survive."

Fresno falls in the latter category; Long Beach State in both.

The 49ers are fighting to survive, but they're also in the thick of things in a bid for a seventh consecutive Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball title.

Jones' oft-times bewildering cagers (3-2) are tied for first place in the loss column with San Diego State (4-2) and Cal State Fullerton (4-2) but must collect their first road victory of the season tonight to remain in contention.

The 49ers are 9-0 in Long Beach, 0-7 on the road and 2-3 in neutral court games.

"The perplexing thing about the record is that we haven't played badly on the road," Jones contends. "We had the ball for a last-second shot at Santa Clara and lost by one; we lost by one at Fullerton; we were one down and had the ball with 30 seconds to go at Brigham Young, and we were tied with Weber State with three minutes to play."

Tonight would seem the ideal opportunity to end the road jinx. The 49ers dismantled Fresno last weekend in Long Beach, 92-67.

"That could be a problem," concedes Jones. "How do you tell a James Dawson, who had 11 rebounds in the first half, that he'll have to play better if we are to win again, or tell a Clarence Ruffen, who scored 25 points, that he's going to have to play better?"

"This will be a much more difficult game. We have to realize that last week was one of those games where everything went right for us and very little went right for them.

"I know Roy Jones, James Robinson, Kenny Barnes, Rodney Shanks and Mark Haddan have too much pride to let us do that to them again."

"They're going to come out full of vinegar and fire and we've got to be able to take it out of them."

Jones (17.2) and Barnes (12.3) were in immediate foul trouble last week and were never really a factor, while Robinson (15.3) has been affected by a facial palsy condition that has greatly bothered his play.

"For the first 16 games of the season he was a 60 per cent shooter," says Fresno coach Ed Gregory, "but this thing has gotten him so worried he hasn't played well in nearly three weeks."

PHILADELPHIA—George McGinnis scored 19 of his 21 points in the first half to lead the 76ers to a 62-44 halftime lead and Fred Carter (32) and Doug Collins (27) picked up the slack in the second half as Philadelphia turned the game into a rout. The 76ers trailed very early at 18-15 but took the lead for good with a 14-6 spree. An 18-7 surge in the third period put the game on ice.

With starter Lucius Allen slowed by the flu, Freeman has been a valuable asset in the modest win streak, the longest since December.

Washington is so aggressive that opponents are finding the Laker middle impossible to penetrate. Sharman saved his highest praise for the young forward.

"He reminds me a lot of Paul Silas," said Sharman. "He is learning his limitations and he is getting the most out of the things he does best, which are rebounding and launching the break."

Goodrich was on the receiving end of several Washington and Abdul-Jabbar passes that resulted in lay-ins.

Although it shot only 33 per cent from the floor in the first half, East L.A. took advantage of 15 Vikings turnovers and trailed only 37-33 at the half.

Following a pattern they've established in their last three wins, the Vikings drove to an early 10-point lead, then failed to hold it, allowing the Huskies to climb within two points, 29-27, on a basket by Ralph Yzguerra at the 4:17 mark of the first half.

But the second half, also a duplicate of past wins, was all Long Beach. Led by 6-4 forward Rod Dalton's career high 26 points and five steals by guard Dean Decker, Long Beach broke the game open midway through the second period. Long Beach led 61-48 with 11 minutes remaining.

Rodeo is measured in inches as well as seconds and breaking the restraining barrier too quickly meant the difference between leading the field in steer wrestling and just another leap from the saddle to stuntman Lee McLean.

He pinned his steer in 6.6 but getting the jump added on a 10-second penalty. Instead, Walter Scott of Lakeview Terrace, with a 7.7 performance, won the first go-round.

Knocking over two barrels cost Anaheim's Sandy Busico a share of first in girls barrel racing. A 10-second penalty there handed the top spot to Jane Martin of Pleasanton and Charlene Jespersen of Hanford in 15.1 seconds.

That was enough to hold off Servite the final quarter. The Friars outscored their hosts 9-2 in field goals.

Angelus standings

But the second half, also a duplicate of past wins, was all Long Beach. Led by 6-4 forward Rod Dalton's career high 26 points and five steals by guard Dean Decker, Long Beach

St. Anthony 61, Servite 56.

Mater Dei 67, St. Paul 56.

Goals down the stretch but also fouled while trying to gain possession. Eleven of St. Anthony's 15 fourth quarter points came on free throws.

Donnelly scored 19 points to lead the Saints; he had 10 in the first quarter. Ramsey bounced back from his worst game to score 14, and Spanier added 13.

Servite trailed 13-10 at the half, but scored 13 points in the second half to win 61-56.

What worried Errion most Friday night was Servite's 1-2 zone trap press that was responsible for eight Saint turnovers and placed pressure on guards Lane Dietrich and Dave Ramsey.

Servite, trailing 14-11 in the early going, rallied to within 34-31 at 4:41 of the third period and seemed to have the momentum with Saint center Jim Donnelly having gone to the bench only 34 seconds earlier with his fourth foul.

But the Saints got two baseline baskets by Tony Spanier

Lynwood rolls past Cerritos

The struggle for the San Gabriel Valley League title will go down to the wire next week, as the top three teams registered victories Friday night.

Lynwood, leading the league with a 11-1 mark, blew Cerritos apart with a 62-point second half effort to grab a 93-57 win over the Dons.

The Knights, plagued by turnovers, trailed by three at the half, but switched to a 2-2-1 zone to roll up advantages of 28-12 and 34-11 in the final two quarters.

Center Darrell Allums led all scorers with 29 for the winners, hitting 10-of-13 from the field and 9-of-10 from the free throw line. He also pulled down 18 rebounds.

Four other Lynwood players hit double figures, led by Tom Freeman with 18. Rodney Miller scored 11 for the Dons, now 4-8.

La Mirada (10-2) stayed hot on Lynwood's heels with a 80-63 win over Paramount. The Matadors trailed by four at the half, but came out shredding the nets with a blistering 82% field goal percentage in the third and fourth quarters.

Jeff Brewer hit on all five of his second half shots (he totaled 13 points) but the big gun was, as usual, Doug Widfield, who scored 35 points, connecting on 16-of-24 from the floor for a respectable 67%.

Paramount's Al Alcaraz had 23 to lead the losers.

Downey stayed within striking distance of the league lead with a 57-51 win over Bellflower. The Vikings (9-3) got a 23-point performance from Steve Driessen to turn away the Buccaneers (4-8).

Driessen hauled down 14 rebounds to lead Downey. Herb Herbst had 10 caroms, and led all scorers with 24, and sparked a third quarter Buc drive that put them up by two going into the final quarter. Downey slowed its rate of turnovers in the fourth quarter and pulled away to the win.

Fourth-place Warren (8-4), idle Friday night, will take on La Mirada Wednesday night, and third-place Downey on Friday. SGVL leader Lynwood will conclude league play with a crucial game against La Mirada Friday.

CERRITOS (9-7): Miller 11, Arnold 10, Smith 9, Hamlett 8, Meloy 8, Wilson 7, Williams 6, Hammond 2. LYNWOOD (10-1): Allums 29, Freeman 18, Nwadike 16, Henderson 16, Ligon 13, Mullins 8, Hardy 5. Cerritos 57, Lynwood 93.

Pole vaults 18-3 1/2, sets indoor record

TORONTO (AP) — Wladyslaw Kozakiewicz of Poland set an indoor record in the pole vault Friday night by soaring 18-3 1/2 at the Toronto Star-Maple Leaf Indoor Games.

Kozakiewicz' leap, on his second attempt at the height, erased the previous mark of 18-3 set last week in Poland by countryman Tadeusz Susarski.

Dan Ripley of the Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach missed his three attempts at 18-3 1/2 to finish second.

Dwight Stones of Long Beach State won the high jump at 7-3, defeating Claude Ferragne of Montreal on fewer misses. Both failed at 7-4 1/2.

In the mile, Eamonn Coghlan of Ireland nipped Rod Dixon of New Zealand by one-tenth of a second, clocking 3:59.3.

'Heady' play earns Artesia 57-51 win

By DAVE FERRELL Staff Writer

Artesia High cruised through three quarters and held off a rally in final minutes to defeat Mayfair, 57-51, in Suburban League play Friday night at Artesia.

The win improved Artesia to 6-2 in league play, two games behind Gahr, and dropped Mayfair to 2-6.

Guards Tom O'Brien and Manuel Robles led a balanced Artesia attack which took a 43-27 advantage into the final period before Mayfair outscored the Pioneers, 24-14.

O'Brien hit 5-of-7 shots for 10 points in the first half and finished with 18 to top Artesia, and Robles also scored in double figures with 11. Each also played a "heady" court game, according to Artesia coach Gordon Ackerman.

"If we shoot well, then we seem to play well, because we're not really a quick team," Ackerman said. "O'Brien and Robles gave us good movement, which took Mayfair out of its zone (defense)."

Rick Diffine scored 21 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and passed for 4 assists to lead Mayfair,

Fountain Valley trims Edison Marina clinches title

Marina High broke out of a two-game Sunset League losing streak Friday night to edge visiting Loara, 57-44.

The win, paired with Fountain Valley's 86-68 defeat of Edison, clinched at least a share of the title for the Vikings (10-2).

Loara, Fountain Valley and Edison are tied for second with 8-4 records.

Marina hit all eight of its free throw attempts in the final quarter and 17 of 21 for the game. Loara outscored Marina from the field, 28-25, but the free throws proved the difference.

All-CIF guard Rich Branning, despite playing on a slightly sprained ankle, scored 32 points, hitting 11 of 19 shots from the field and 10 of 12 from the free throw line.

Guard Mark Roche of Loara (8-4) nearly kept pace with Branning, finishing with 26 points.

Westminster improved its record to 5-7, winning 64-51 over Newport Harbor.

The Lions led by only four going into the final quarter, but Dick Soddors scored 10 of his game-high 20 points to put the game away.

Newport (3-9) was topped by Bill Wilkenson's 18 points.

Carner fires 65 to gain LPGA lead

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — JoAnne Carner, one-putting nine greens for seven birdies and no bogies, fired a seven-under-par 65 Friday to take a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $45,000 Orange Blossom Classic on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Four of Mrs. Carner's birdies in the round of 32-33 were from 12 feet or better. The 65 tied her career best.

Sally Little, who has never won on the tour, was second, two strokes in front of tour veterans Sandra Haynie and Mary Horner.

"I putted as well as I ever have," Mrs. Carner said. "The greens were so grainy that you had to putt well."

By DAVID LEVINSON
Gennady Rozhdestvensky demonstrated as guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Thursday that he can play light music without making it trivial and serious music without making it neurotic.

His conducting of Mendelssohn's overture, "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage" and the Mendelssohn first piano concerto was engagingly cheerful. He approached the orchestra and the music with a beatific smile — and firm if cheerful ideas of what he wanted.

PIANIST Gary Graffman was allowed to shape the concerto his way, which was straightforwardly brilliant, if somewhat subdued, but there was no doubt that Rozhdestvensky was an equal collaborator; and, finally, the interpretation owed most to his genial presence.

He is the gentlest of showmen. He uses no podium but stands level with his musicians. He gets a crescendo with no more than a smile and an outstretched palm. When the crescendo has met his requirements, he nods. After bowing to the first applause, he steps back to share the honors with the orchestra.

The big work of the evening was Shostakovich's eighth symphony. In Rozhdestvensky's hands it seemed Mahlerian not only in its proportions but in its inspiration. It was the most persuasive presentation of a large Shostakovich symphony I have ever heard.

IF THE SMILE was not there for most of this tragic work, the relaxed control was. Sometimes Rozhdestvensky got his effect by leaning slightly into a note or phrase, as a sports car driver feels rather than steers his way around a curve. Once he folded his arms and stood back for a minute or so, listening and enjoying.

The orchestra responded with a performance of power, virtuosity, and — when Shostakovich required a fearful racket from brass and percussion — some of the biggest sounds the Philharmonic has ever made.

The concert will be repeated at the Music Center Pavilion at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Valentine's Day wedding bargain

KANSAS CITY — Jackson County is knocking a dollar off the price of marriage licenses in recognition of Valentine's Day. Steven Glorioso, county records director, said couples applying for a license Wednesday will pay $4 instead of the regular $5. There is a three-day waiting period, so those applying Wednesday can't get licenses until today — Valentine's Day. Glorioso said the licenses will go on the one-day special in an effort to add a light touch to government and because he wants to encourage young couples to take the Big Step.

'Issues and Answers' to begin campaign coverage on Feb. 22By LEE WINFREY
Knight News Service

"Issues and Answers," ABC's long-running weekend discussion show, will begin its television coverage of the 1976 presidential campaign this month by questioning four or five Democrats running in the New Hampshire primary.

Facing questions will be Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, Jimmy Carter of Georgia, Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, and possibly Sargent Shriver, former director of the Peace Corps. The show will be broadcast Feb. 22, two days before the voting in New Hampshire.

Peggy Whedon, producer of "Issues and Answers," outlined the show's campaign coverage plans in a telephone interview.

To try to keep itself from being smothered in campaign fodder during an election year, "Issues and Answers" tries to limit its primary coverage to a basic package of about six or seven shows, most of them leading to some major event during the campaign.

Thus, "Issues" second campaign show of the year will be broadcast

Feb. 29, two days before the voting in the Massachusetts primary. It will feature Democratic candidates who are running in Massachusetts but haven't done much in New Hampshire: Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, and possibly Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Later "Issues" shows concentrating on the campaign will be on April 25, two days before the Pennsylvania primary; June 6, two days before the California primary; and on July 11 and Aug. 15, the Sundays before the Democratic and Republican national conventions.

Ms. Whedon said at least two other campaign shows will probably also be run, their dates not set, starring President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Asked how many presidential campaigns had ever turned down a chance to be on her interview show, Ms. Whedon indicated that that happens about as often as panhandlers turn down free money.

"The problem isn't the acceptance rate," she said.

"It's whether the week you want him is the week he's in town, or in the country, or available."

"Last week, for example, everybody wanted (re-elected) Ambassador Daniel Patrick Moynihan on. We've had him on before and he's a good guest. But last week he wasn't going to do anything no matter what."

Ms. Whedon said she has seen no indication herself of the fabled apathy among the voters that so many pundits have been talking about this year.

"We have every reason to believe the opposite," she said. "We had over 200 requests for transcripts on the (Sen. Hubert) Humphrey show we did last month. That's twice as many as usual."

About 760 "Issues and Answers" shows have been broadcast since the question-and-answer series began more than 15 years ago. Ms. Whedon said Humphrey held the record for most appearances, with 23, followed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in second place with 16.

Firm seeks 'stripping' ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission is being asked to ban multiple episodes such as game shows in the same week of television programs during the first hour of prime time, when network TV is restricted.

Former FCC Commissioner Kenneth A. Cox, attorney for Sandy Frank Program Sales Inc., said loading the hour with such episodes reduces diversity of programming and "shrinks the number of independent producers and distributors," such as Frank, which can survive.

The petition filed with the FCC this week objects to multiple showing — called "stripping" — of such programs as "Beat the Clock," "Hollywood Squares," "Let's Make a Deal," "Merv Griffin" and others.

It would exempt news and public affairs programs and apply only to the top 50 markets.

Frank informally made the proposal while the FCC was deciding over a year ago to ban network television, except for children's, documentary and public affairs, between 7 and 8 p.m. Eastern and Pacific Time and between 6 and 7 p.m. Central and Mountain Time.

The commission said then the proposal was not made in time to be considered in the proceeding, but invited Frank to make the proposal later.

"This is to a degree an interesting idea, and one which might appeal to numerous persons, without any axe to grind as one which should be adopted," the FCC said then.

"However, it is a radical departure, and might well be labeled, perhaps properly, as an 'elitist' kind of commission action — telling a viewer he cannot watch his favorite accessorial program two or five nights a week, but may view it only once and be content with less appealing fare ... on the other nights. Obviously, this would require substantial exploration before it could be considered for action," the FCC said.

In view of those comments, Cox said Frank has "decided to submit this formal request for rule-making in order to get its proposal before the public for comment and eventual adoption by the commission."

The petition said the prime time rule has achieved much of its goal of opening up the first hour of prime time to local programs or programs independently produced for national syndication.

But the independent producers who sell their program on a market-by-market basis "do not have the advantage of the networks' monolithic clearance and distribution systems" for such programs, the petition said.

"In these circumstances," Frank said, "the growth of the multiple exposure and stripping of programs — which is an easy way out for lazy station licensees — has both inhibited the healthy growth of the independent television program industry and retarded the optimum use of access time for local, community-oriented public affairs programs."

Frank said its study shows that out of 1,500 half hours in the top 50 markets about 428 are now occupied by programs which are stripped three or more times a week, and an additional 134 half hours are devoted to two episodes.

Tricounty Amtrak service faces new delays

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The start of train service sponsored by three counties to link Los Angeles and San Diego, as well as a separate intercity train sponsored by Los Angeles County alone, may be delayed because of escalating costs.

In a meeting Friday in Santa Ana, Amtrak officials told directors of the County Transportation Service Organization (CTSO), a confederation of Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego counties, of the rising costs.

Amtrak officials said train service cost has been raised from $366,000 annually for two trains to $410,000 yearly for only one train per day.

The revised cost estimates revealed at the meeting seemed to stun CTSO directors. Baxter Ward of Los Angeles, Ralph Clark of Anaheim and Louis Conde of San Diego, all supervisors in their respective counties.

They began a search for new funding, since Amtrak had warned for months that passenger service would not pay operating costs.

Starting dates for the intercity train service have been delayed many times, and may be deferred once more from the planned starting dates of April 25 for the tricounty project and April 26 for the Los Angeles County-sponsored train.

Ward had conceived the Los Angeles County-owned train and, in the face of mounting financial hurdles, recently submitted new funding proposals which are under study.

Amtrak estimated costs of $9.98 per train mile and revenues of $3.51 per train mile, based on 225 passengers per train each way.

The CTSO would face an annual deficit of $615,000, Amtrak estimated, and would need new sources of funding from federal and state governments to guarantee operating costs.

Both the tri-county and Los Angeles County services would be on Amtrak-controlled lines owned by the Santa Fe Railway, which once operated commuter service on its own.

The three-county venture into the mass transit business came after governmental leaders complained that Santa Fe service was inadequate and the successor, Amtrak, also does not operate enough trains to meet passenger needs.

If CTSO started April 25, its operating budget would be $110,000 in the red by the end of the fiscal year. It would expand to a $615,000 deficit for the 1976-77 fiscal year, the estimate said.

The Los Angeles County train's costs would also soar, and be compounded by Amtrak's notation that its crew would have to stay overnight in San Diego, thus adding lodging and meals costs to the already-high operating estimates. It might be as high as $13 per train mile, it was estimated, with the result that operating deficits would mount.

Filings for election will begin Monday

From Our L.A. Bureau

The filing period for statewide and local elections opens Monday, County Registrar-Recorder Leonard Panish said Friday.

Although Monday is an official county holiday, he said his offices would be open at 8 a.m. to handle the anticipated initial rush to file papers.

FILING will remain open from Monday through March 12 at 5 p.m. However, if an incumbent for any Senate, Assembly, judicial or county office fails to file by that deadline, the law extends the filing period for an extra five days.

Partisan offices to be filled include that of U.S. senator, the seat held by Democrat John Tunney, as well as 17 congressional seats, four of which are shared with neighboring counties.

Other partisan offices to be filled include eight senatorial seats and 30 Assembly seats.

Nonpartisan offices to be filled include 56 Superior Court judgeships, 71 Municipal Court judgeships and one judgeship of the justice court for Catalina Island.

OTHER nonpartisan offices up for election are those of district attorney, held by incumbent John Van de Kamp; Second District supervisor, held by Kenneth Hahn; Fourth District supervisor, held by James Hayes, and Fifth District supervisor, held by Baxter Ward.

The registrar's office has been accepting declarations of intention to run for state legislative and judicial offices. That filing period ended Wednesday.

In the Long Beach area the following candidates had filed intentions to run for state offices, before the Wednesday closing:

Senate District 31—Long Beach Councilwoman Renee Simon, Democrat, and Sen. George Deukmejian, Republican.

Deukmejian currently represents the 37th Senatorial District, but the district lines have been redrawn and he must seek re-election to the Senate in the new district.

Senate District 33—Cecil Green, Norwalk; Louis Albert Newsome, Norwalk; Betty Wilson, Santa Fe Springs; Lawrence Walsh, Downey, and Gerald Olivet, Whittier, all Democrats, and Andy Harrison, Whittier; William Campbell, Hacienda Heights; Angel Luis Soto, Cerritos, and Phil Ortiz, Downey, all Republicans.

ASSEMBLY District 57—Incumbent Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, and Harold Ward, Long Beach, Republican.

Assembly District 58—Incumbent Fred W. Chel, D-Long Beach, and Jack W. Bentley, Long Beach; Dale L. Dykema, Long Beach; and James L. Wright, Long Beach, all Republicans.

Assembly District 54—Incumbent Frank Valencia, D-Paramount; Olan F. Thompson, Lynwood, Democrat, and Richard G. Coxson, Bellflower, Republican.

Lecture series set on Asian refugees

"Getting to Know Southeast Asians," a free forum series for local residents and refugees, begins next week at the Jefferson Junior High library, 750 Euclid Ave., Long Beach.

The series, to be held Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m., is designed to introduce Americans to the history, culture, language and unique problems of Cambodian and Vietnamese refugees.

"This meeting of east and west is designed to diminish refugees' cultural shock and help them adjust to new lives in Long Beach," said Betty Seal, resource teacher in English as a second language and bilingual education.

Speakers include Chin Nou, former member of the Cambodian diplomatic corps, and Nghi Trinh, former overseas information officer for the Vietnamese Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Both men are trilingual and have extensive experience in assisting refugees.

Topics for the five weekly forums are:

—Feb. 18, "Who Are We? Part I," a look at the historical background of Southeast Asians.

—Feb. 25, "Who Are We? Part II," a review of the cultural heritage of Southeast Asians.

—March 3, "Language Skills," an introduction to Vietnamese, Cambodian and English as a second language.

—March 10, "What Do We Do Next?" Presentations on short range problem-solving, cultural interaction and educational opportunities.

—March 17, "The Future of Southeast Asian Americans," longer-range problem-solving, vocational training and planning for jobs and citizenship.

Reservations for the course may be made by calling the Long Beach School for Adults.

Harbor Drive contract awarded

A $119,814 contract to beautify Harbor Scenic Drive next to drill sites J-1, J-2 and J-3 on Pier J has been awarded by the Long Beach City Council to Moulder Brothers of Glendale.

The drill sites are along the south side of Harbor Scenic Drive, across from the Queen Mary parking lot and in the area where the Freedom Train was parked during its Long Beach visit.

Work to be done under the contract includes construction of an 8-foot redwood fence, portions of which can be removed to provide access to the drill sites by heavy equipment, and the installation of a sprinkler system and landscaping.

Quartet mans Marina fireboat 3

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

When Johnny Olsen and Lee Adams were in the fifth grade together at Seaside Elementary School, they would skip school and play hide-and-seek on the double-deck Pine Avenue pier.

Olsen has a small sepia-toned picture in his scrap book of a tow-headed kid in a tanktop bathing suit standing in front of the pier.

"That's me," he said with a twinkle in his blue eyes. "I don't have any of Lee in this scrap book. Actually, we stopped hanging around together for a while...I think it was after we found out we were both going out with the same girl."

But that was years ago and time and circumstances have thrown the two together again.

Along with firemen Claude Vatter and Thurston Vance, the two are part of a Long Beach Fire Department crew that protects the most expensive property (per acre) in the city—the marina.

Adams is the captain of the four-man crew. Olsen holds Long Beach Fire Department badge number 1 which signifies he has more seniority than any of the other 450 firemen in Long Beach.

Outside the fire house, 221 Marina Dr., fireboat number 3 is parked in its slip.

The 38-foot craft has been in service since 1941 when it became the first of three fireboats in the Long Beach fleet.

A red turret capable of shooting 1,000 gallons of water per minute is mounted on the bow of the white-cedar-plank boat. Sophisticated equipment able to detect dangerous gas vapors is stored inside the wheelhouse, along with a resuscitator and other conventional fire-fighting equipment.

"We're trained to fight fires both at sea and on land," Adams said. "In fact, our jurisdiction stretches over a number of zones which includes the Marina Pacifica complex and houses that border the Alamitos Bay area.

"Gasoline vapors are the biggest fire danger at sea," Adams said. "One of the worst fires I can remember was the time a cabin cruiser blew up. We thought we had the fire out and were mopping up when the cabin exploded sending one of our men flying into the air. He landed in the water a few hundred feet away—dazed, but not a scratch on him. Man, that was one scary fire."

"One cup of gasoline has the explosive power of three sticks of dynamite," Adams continued. "I think boat owners sometimes forget how dangerous a little bit of gas really is."

Canvas pants with the cuffs neatly folded over yellow boots sat at the side of each bed in the bunkroom.

"It takes us exactly one minute from the time we hear the fire alarm to get into our fire-fighting pants and boots and onto the boat with lines untied and ready to go," Vatter said.

Vatter has been a fireboat operator for 18 years, including five years on the Long Beach Harbor patrol.

The tall, muscular fire fighter walked through the fire station, pausing in a garage attached to the main building.

"This is where I sleep," he said pointing to a small bed in the corner of the garage. "I'm a light sleeper and I just can't stand the snoring that thunders through the bunkroom at night."

Olsen and Vance sat at a long table in the combined dining area and kitchen.

While Olsen told about plans for entering the 45-foot-mast head sloop he just finished building in an upcoming race, Vance looked hungrily toward the refrigerator.

It was Adams' turn to cook dinner and he had promised his speciality—chicken fried steak with mashed potatoes and gravy.

Redevelopment agency

15 suing to curb Lakewood auto mall

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

The Lakewood city redevelopment agency and several officials were sued Friday by 15 residents who have asked for an injunction halting a proposed auto mall.

The suit, filed by Long Beach attorney Norman Gottlieb, asks the Norwalk Superior Court to find that the agency's actions violate state redevelopment law, to void a pending lease agreement with Cannon Chevrolet and to prevent the issuance of $2.1 million in redevelopment bonds.

The city council, voting 4-1 as the agency board, in January approved a plan by City Manager Milton Farrell that would use the bonds to purchase 5.53 acres of land at the southwest corner of Lakewood Boulevard and Hardwick Street.

The land, mostly owned by financier S. Mark Taper, would be leased by Cannon, which is now located at the northwest corner of Hardwick Street and Lakewood Boulevard, for $54,000 annually.

Approximately $500,000 worth of the land would be immediately resold, according to the plan. No exact acreage was available.

The action was taken by the city to keep Cannon from leaving the city and taking $70,000 annually in sales tax funds with him. The agreement commits Cannon to build a new showroom worth a minimum of $850,000.

Gottlieb said that the lease does not conform to the original purpose of the auto mall and constitutes an illegal gift of public funds. This, the suit claims, is because public funds are being used for the gain of a private corporation.

Additionally, the agency allegedly failed to hold hearings required by the state, the complaint charges.

The suit, which came as a surprise to city officials, was filed in the middle of a council race involving three of the four who voted for the agency.

Farrell, when informed of the accusations, said they were "obviously not true." He had not seen the suit documents and could not respond specifically.

He noted, however, that the required hearings had been held and that there was no gift of public funds involved, as the money was being used to keep Lakewood economically healthy.

"This is sad news," Farrell said, "because it's nothing more than harassment. It's discouraging."

He did not know what immediate impact the suit could have on the complex auto mall deal.

The suit says that the net return to the city was only $54,000 in lease payments. Farrell pointed out that the improvements would attract another $30,000 in sales tax and that some of the property tax increases could be used for purposes other than retiring the bonds.

Named as defendants were the city council, the redevelopment agency, Cannon Chevrolet, Lakewood Center, Mark Hannaford, Wayne Piercy, Sheila Pokras, Charles Schweitzer, William Young and Larry Van Nostran.

Hannaford, now a Long Beach congressman, and Schweitzer, defeated in 1972, were on the council when it originally enacted the redevelopment statute.

Veterans Hospital officials plead for brain scanner

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Officials at the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital are spending thousands of dollars to obtain services from a community hospital because they lack much-needed equipment, a physician told a Congressional hearing in Long Beach Friday.

Dr. H. F. Pribram, chief of the radiology service at the hospital, said the Veterans Hospital badly needs a CAT brain scanner—a device termed by many doctors as one of this century's major medical advances. Pribram termed the device the beginning of the jet age in radiology.

The scanner is an X-ray device that shows the brain area through a new technique known as computerized tomography. The procedure is also known as computed axial tomography.

But since the facility doesn't have one because of lack of funds, it must send certain selected patients all the way to Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance for a brain scan, Pribram said.

Taxicab fare alone for these patients comes to about $25, he said. Then there is the loss of six hours for an attendant. All told,

Pribram figures it costs $700 a patient to obtain a brain scan for diagnostic purposes.

Pribram was one of more than 15 persons who appeared before Rep. David E. Satterfield, D-Va., and Rep. Mark W. Hannaford, D-Lakewood, in the recreation hall at the hospital. The congressmen are members of the subcommittee on Veterans Affairs.

The doctor, whose specialty is neuroradiology, said that 100 patients have been sent to the Torrance hospital in the last five months. He added that the figure represents "a fraction of what we should be sending."

Pribram said every patient who has a seizure should have the benefit of a brain scan, to rule out possibility of a tumor, and every patient who enters the psychiatry service deserves the same test. The brain scan would show whether an organic illness might be responsible for any particular mental episode.

He said the hospital also needs a linear accelerator for the treatment of cancer. Instead, the hospital is working with "one of the first cobalt units ever to be installed."

Dr. Stanley van den Noort, dean of UC Irvine College of Medicine, said research facilities at that hospital "are totally inadequate." A proposed research building has been deferred, but even that would now be inadequate, he added.

Hospital Director Edwin J. Klag said it's true the research building plans were shelved after an estimated $500,000 was spent in designing it.

However, he said, an outpatient building costing $9.4 million is scheduled for construction.

Klag denied accusations by veterans' spokesmen that there is a waiting list for admission to the hospital.

He added that the CAT brain scanner will cost $501,000 and is the top equipment priority for the hospital at the present time.

A nuclear medicine computer costing $96,000 also is needed, the hospital director told the congressmen.

Dr. Allan M. Warner, associate chief of the psychiatry service, voiced concern about budgetary cuts for the hospital's alcoholism program.

He said that only $190,000 is being requested but noted that 15 to 20 per cent of patients have some involvement with alcohol.

Monday ???????

Forecast for Sunday

Your birthday today: From many of the experimental or speculative moves now under way you gain priceless experience that can be organized into a practical success formula in the last quarter of the year. Meanwhile, avoid overoptimism and expansion promises. Stay with what you can handle as circumstances change drastically in several episodes. Today's natives form an image that is more glamorous than their actions really deserve.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Cheerfully relinquish yesterday's tensions. Early and late hours are productive. The middle of the day is good for loafing.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Give some thought to your property and possessions and take inventory. Get in a few brief visits, or invite someone you haven't seen for awhile.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You have many well-wishers as long as you don't ask for definite help. Travel is favored unless you're fighting a tight schedule.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): If you'll leave others to their own devices, you have a chance to catch up on many minor personal items. Daydreams are normal; just come back to reality tonight.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Present a conservative public image, but forget about the shoplark. Take out loved ones for an entertaining evening. Communications open belatedly and spread good news.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Enterprises slow down as your energy dwindles. Let matters stand while you think over progress made to date. Don't announce future plans.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends are eager to launch a new venture and anxious to share it. Look to see what they have in mind; it's likely to be harmless fun. Put off household repairs.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What you have taken for granted turns out to be essential to your happiness. Something sensible must be done to bring about a workable balance.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on amusements and outdoor expenditures if conditions permit. Take along as many as you can. Let them earn or pay their own way.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accept today's slow pace as a blessing. Devote energy you have to getting your home in tip-top order. Get rid of unconstructive habits.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A candid discussion clears off yesterday's disagreements, and advances personal enterprises. Once that's over and settled, pursue lighter pastimes.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Conditions improve if you let go of the past, focus on the present and try to be cooperative. Home life runs smoothly if you don't rush anyone.

Sobbing Patty recalls kidnaping, torture

By LINDA DEUTSCH

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, weeping and straining for breath, recalled for jurors Friday the nightmare scenes of her captivity — a tale of violent abduction, torture and fear that her terrorist kidnapers intended to bury her alive.

Testifying in her own defense at her bank robbery trial, the pale and slender defendant told for the first time in public how she was blindfolded, dragged from her apartment and knocked unconscious, then dumped into the trunk of a car as she heard gunshots and screams behind her.

"Bitch, you'd better be quiet," the tearful Miss Hearst quoted her chief tormentor, Donald "Cinque" DeFreeze, as shouting the night he broke into her apartment with two others.

Weaving a tale of horror and degradation, Miss Hearst spent nearly two hours on the witness stand after the prosecution rested its case against her. U.S. Atty. James L. Browning said he felt the government's case had gone well, although he planned to offer a substantial amount of evidence in rebuttal to the defense.

"Irresponsible" Steven Weed is dropped as a witness for Patty Hearst after calling news conference Friday to publicize book. Story, Page A-2.

In its effort to convict her of bank robbery, the government used against Miss Hearst its most powerful weapons — her own words of defiance that she tape-recorded using the revolutionary name of "Tania."

The prosecution repeatedly showed jurors the bank camera pictures that showed a carbine-wielding Miss Hearst and the other four armed bandits during the holdup.

The seven women and five men of her jury, who had not heard her testify before, swiveled their chairs in her direction and appeared to hang on every word.

Miss Hearst burst into tears only moments into her testimony as she told of being dragged into the darkness of the radical underground, where she was locked blindfolded in a padded closet for weeks. She recalled her dreaded captor, "Field Marshal Cinque" of the Symbionese Liberation Army, making constant threats:

"If I tried to escape, I'd be killed. If I made any noise, I'd be beaten or they'd hang me up from the ceiling."

Captive in the nearly airless closet, she feared she might have been buried alive.

Soon, she said, Cinque turned to physical abuse. Dissatisfied with her performance on a tape recorded

Top executives resign in Lockheed shakeup

Associated Press

The top two executives of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. stepped down Friday in the midst of the huge aerospace and defense company's problems involving multimillion-dollar payoffs to foreign officials.

Daniel J. Haughton, Lockheed board chairman, and A. Carl Kotchian, vice chairman and chief operating officer, resigned at a special meeting of the Lockheed board of directors in Burbank.

"The board had a difficult meeting this morning at which Haughton and Kotchian saw fit to resign," said a Lockheed spokesman.

The nation's largest defense contractor will be headed temporarily by board member Robert W. Haack of Potomac, Md., who was elected board chairman pro tem.

The board felt that "the company, employees and shareholders would perhaps be better protected if they—Haughton and Kotchian—as potentially controversial people excused themselves from the premises," said Haack,

Operations Chief

DANIEL HAUGHTON
Board Chairman

who announced the resignations to reporters while the meeting still was in session.

He said a chief executive office would be created, which would include Roy A. Anderson, 55, as vice chairman and senior financial and administrative officer, and Lawrence O. Kitchin, 52, as president and chief operating officer.

The chief executive office is expected to "facilitate the operations of the company," a spokesman said.

Haughton, the 64-year-old hard-driving chairman who had fought desperately for federally guaranteed loans to save Lockheed a few years ago, had been with Lockheed for 37 years. He and Kotchian, 62, will be retained as advisers and consultants.

Kotchian, a one-time Price, Waterhouse accountant, served as a foil for Haughton during their long and close association. Some industry spokesmen called him Haughton's "alter ego."

Haack, 58, declined to comment on the overseas payments, in which millions of dollars were admittedly paid to officials of foreign governments to influence the sales of Lockheed aircraft, including $12 million to Japan alone.

Haack described the problem as "temporary" and said that to make any comment would "pre-empt the committee of outside directors" that has been formed to investigate the scandal.

When Haack declined to comment on the subject of payoffs, he added, "suffice it to say that the board of directors some time ago formulated, adopted and approved a new policy that has been exposed to the appropriate people in government which will lay down some strictures with which the company will comply."

A company spokesman said that apparently referred to regulations announced by the company last fall on the hiring of overseas agents.

Haack, who emphasized the temporary nature of his appointment, said one

Navy asks Pentagon OK of plan to rebuild fleet

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON—The Navy asked top Pentagon officials Friday to approve a new $55 billion plan to rebuild the fleet, now at its smallest since before Pearl Harbor, to 600 ships by the late 1980s.

Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf and Adm. James L. Holloway, chief of naval operations, urged senior defense officials to add 50 ships and about $20 billion to the tentative long-range shipbuilding plan sent to Congress last month.

That plan called for construction of 111 new frigates, submarines, aircraft carriers and other ships over the next five years at an estimated cost of $35.4 billion.

Pentagon officials acknowledged to Congress that the program would not be big enough to bring the Navy from its present 477 ships to the desired goal of 600, but they indicated that budget constraints held them back from asking more.

However, Middendorf and Holloway, arguing that a rebuilding of the U.S. fleet with fast, modern ships was vital to deal with a steadily growing Soviet navy, received indications from key congressmen that the Senate and House would go along with a larger program than the administration had offered in President Ford's budget for next year.

The Navy went back to the drawing board and came up with a proposal for about 160 new ships. The new plan would take about four years longer to fulfill and would bring the Navy to the 600-ship level by about 1989.

The U.S. fleet has been steadily diminishing from the Vietnam war peak of 976 ships. Old vessels were laid up because they became too costly to operate, and inflation, bringing sharply rising construction costs, has limited the pace of new ship construction for the Navy.

Neither the Navy nor the Defense Department would comment on the new program, presented by Middendorf and Holloway to Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements.

However, some sources said the plan received a favorable reaction from Clements.

The Navy's new proposal must win the approval of Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld and President Ford before it can be sent to Congress.

Nigeria crushes coup try

NIAMEY, Niger (AP) —

Neighboring Nigeria's seven-month-old military government headed by Gen. Murtala Muhammed crushed an attempted coup Friday by self-proclaimed "young revolutionaries," Lagos radio announced.

There were early reports that Muhammed and several other persons were killed, but radio broadcasts made after loyal troops had recaptured the state radio from the rebels made no mention of any deaths.

Late communiques broadcast by the government said the situation had returned to normal in Lagos, the Nigerian capital, but the airport remained closed. It called on Nigerians to remain calm.

A man at the U.S. Embassy, who answered a telephone call from The Associated Press bureau in Washington and identified himself as the duty officer, said the broadcast also announced a dusk-to-dawn curfew "in the interests of security."

He said the state radio was playing music and because of the curfew "it is unusually quiet."

"There've been reports of shooting, scattered shooting during the day, but they are only reports," he said. "I didn't hear any myself. Certainly there wasn't much."

He was asked about the safety of Americans in

Nigeria and replied, "Everybody's O.K., all Americans are O.K. as far as we know."

The military rebels had seized control of the state radio and in a broadcast at 9:30 a.m. claimed they had overthrown the government because of unexplained "difficulties" with the regime.

They were led by a Lt. Col. Dimka, once head of the army's physical training program.

'Extreme right can't win' Ford in slap at Reagan

By RANDOLPH SCHMID
Associated Press

President Ford took his strongest slap so far against Ronald Reagan Friday night, implying that his Republican challenger appealed to the "extreme right."

Ford was asked during questioning by reporters as he arrived at the Fort Lauderdale, Fla., airport if he thought the Reagan campaign was harming the party.

"I don't think it's too divisive. It's a good contest," Ford said. But he added: "I'm running on my record. I think it's a good record, and I think it conforms to the moderate Republican philosophy that is necessary to win. Anything to the extreme right of that can't win a national election."

Earlier, Ford said in answer to a question in Orlando about Reagan's criticism of his quest for detente with the Soviet Union that "nit-picking of an American foreign policy doesn't help."

Looking ahead to Florida's March 9 contest, Ford said at a news conference, "I think I will do well in Florida."

When a reporter noted

criticism by Reagan of the administration's efforts to promote detente, Ford responded, "I'm very proud of the accomplishments of our American foreign policy" — raising his voice to emphasize the word "American."

The questioner cited Reagan's remark that he was uncertain about the value of detente beyond being allowed to sell Pepsi-Cola in Siberia.

"I won't comment on any rhetoric that concerns a policy that has been successful," Ford said.

When asked if he felt that Reagan had been violating the GOP's "11th Commandment" that says candidates should not speak ill of a fellow Republican, the President suggested that Reagan's remarks sometimes reflect disappointments the former California governor has suffered. He added that sometimes "people forget what they said at some point" — an apparent reference to the Ford campaign's contention that Reagan flip-flops on major issues.

Reagan, meanwhile, in Kankakee, Ill., said he will make public "total income

Industrial output climbs; inflation spiral slowing

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON—The nation's economy continued its recovery from recession in January, and there was further gradual progress in reducing the rate of inflation, government reports said Friday.

The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production last month rose by seven-tenths of 1 per cent, a continuation of the regular and sometimes strong monthly increases that began last May.

The Labor Department reported that the Wholesale Price Index, after adjustment for normal seasonal increases in some prices, showed no change in January, following a small decline in December, and no change in November.

THESE encouraging results reflected mainly a softening in farm and food prices, which are erratic. In the key industrial sector of the index, prices rose last month by four-tenths of 1 per cent, the smallest increase since last July on a seasonally adjusted basis.

In another report Friday, the Commerce Department said total business inventories declined by about $500 million in December as strong Christmas sales depleted retail inventories. After a massive decline in the first half of the year — a key aspect of the recession — inventories showed small increases in both the third and fourth quarters, in dollar-value terms.

For 1975 as a whole, inventories declined by $5.5 billion after a huge buildup amounting to $46.6 billion in 1974.

The report on industrial production included a small upward revision in the index for November. The figures now show that the output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities increased six-tenths of 1 per cent in November, nine-tenths in December and seven-tenths in January — a strong though not spectacular advance.

THE index has risen 8.5 per cent since the recession low of last April.

Friday's report said, "The January increase reflected continued gains in all major components of the index." The index was 119.3 with 1967 production taken as 100.

The Wholesale Price Index has had problems of seasonal adjustment, and the adjustment method will be changed starting with the index for March. Meanwhile, some analysts are using the unadjusted figures for each month as possibly more meaningful than the adjusted index.

On an unadjusted basis, the index rose by four-tenths of 1 per cent in January, contrasted with no change, seasonally adjusted. In a number of recent months, the unadjusted increase has been less than the adjusted.

The January index showed a decline of 1.8 per cent, seasonally adjusted, in the category of farm products and processed foods and feeds, the third consecutive monthly drop.

However, the index did not reflect the recent upward movement of grain's prices on the commodity markets as a result of drought conditions in the West.

There were declines in January in such agricultural sections as fresh vegetables, poultry, cattle, pork, eggs and bakery products.

New storm may bring showers

Southland residents, who've just barely had a chance to dry off their umbrellas from last week's seven-day storm, may be in for some more rain today.

National Weather Service forecasters said a storm front moving into the area late Friday could bring showers by this morning. They predicted a 40 per cent chance of rain early today, with decreasing cloudiness and the chance of rain dropping to 20 per cent late this afternoon.

Forecasters added that some of the clouds will remain over the Los Angeles basin into Sunday.

Weekend temperatures should reach a high today of about 60, but will be slightly warmer Sunday, the forecasters said.

They said the snow level in Southland mountain areas was expected to remain at about the 7,000 foot level over the weekend, with daytime highs around 40.

Firestone must correct tire ads

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — The Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. has agreed to spend at least $750,000 on tire-safety advertising to settle a government complaint that the firm misrepresented the safety qualities of Firestone tires in previous ads. The settlement was announced by the Justice Department which filed the complaint against Firestone and the proposed consent decree in U.S. District Court in Akron, Ohio. The government complaint charged that Firestone violated a 1972 FTC order with ads claiming that certain Firestone tires are safe under all conditions. The ads claimed the tires were of superior quality without having full proof for the claim, the complaint alleged. The proposed settlement requires Firestone to spend at least $550,000 to broadcast a tire safety commercial on television, during the network news, Monday night baseball, NFL football, pro golf tournaments and other programs. Firestone must spend another $100,000 to prepare the TV safety spot and $100,000 to place similar ads in Time magazine, the Reader's Digest and U.S. News & World Report. Firestone also must pay a $50,000 fine.

U.S. tardy on bills

RICHMOND, Va. — A power company complained to the Virginia Corporation Commission on Friday that the White House, Pentagon and other government electric power users "habitually pay late." Furthermore, said Edward Caine, counsel for the Potomac Electric Power Co., they won't submit to the penalty charges normally imposed for late payment. Talks are going on, Caine said, to "encourage" the federal government to speed up payment of electric bills for such places as the Pentagon and 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue — the White House. If the talks fail, Caine said, Pepco intends to begin proceedings before utility regulatory commissions in the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia to solve the problem.

Unsubpoenaed information

NEW YORK (AP) — The Sheraton Hotel chain's director of reservations said Friday that contrary to corporate policy, oral requests for information on guests by law enforcement officers have been honored by the chain without court subpoenas. Edward Pritchard, testifying at the windup of a three-day hearing by the Privacy Protection Study Committee on possible abuses of privacy by credit-card firms and hotels, said the oral requests have been few. In 1975, he said, "not more than three subpoenaed requests" were made for records, and a dozen others were made orally. Whether the requests are by subpoena or oral, guests involved are not notified that they are subjects of inquiry, Pritchard told the commission. The commission is conducting hearings in various parts of the country on private record keeping to determine whether the Privacy Act of 1974 should be applied to private organizations. Only federal agencies are now covered by the act.

Britain, France shift on MPLA

LONDON — Britain and France are moving toward diplomatic recognition of the Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) in Angola, according to diplomatic sources here. The French ambassador to Kenya, Olivier Deleau, said in Nairobi on Friday that recognition will come soon, motivated in great part by the recent decision of the majority of Organization of African Unity to recognize the MPLA and admit Angola as a member. One diplomatic source in London said British recognition could come in "a matter of days." The MPLA is battling two Western-supported factions for control of the former Portuguese territory. The British traditionally set three conditions before diplomatic recognition: a government must be in control of the majority of the country, must have the support of the majority of the population, and must have reasonable prospects of remaining in power.

Paperworkers pact

KAPUSKASING, Canada — A tentative contract agreement was reached Friday between Ontario's Spruce Falls Pulp and Paper Co. and three union locals that have been on strike for five months. Tony Urbas, financial secretary of United Paperworkers and Papermakers Local 256, said the 1,350 workers represented by the three locals probably would vote on the proposed contract Sunday. He declined to give details of the tentative agreement.

Irish strife grows

BELFAST — Roman Catholic militants marked the hunger-strike death of an Irish prisoner with a mortar barrage against a British army base, attacks on army patrols, bombs and arson. An army spokesman said three mortar shells fell on the base Friday night but caused little damage and no casualties. He said two other shells exploded in the same area, around Fort Monagh camp in the Andersonstown district of Belfast, a stronghold of the underground Irish Republican Army (IRA). A bomb went off early today in the doorway of an unoccupied Londonderry shop near a military checkpoint, injuring a soldier in the head and arm, the army said. In Dublin, capital of the Irish republic, bombs damaged British and U.S.-owned department stores and shops and the British-owned Shelbourne hotel. At London's Oxford Circus subway station at the evening rush hour, Scotland Yard's bomb squad defused a 20-pound shrapnel bomb planted in a suitcase.

Moslems, police clash

JERUSALEM — Israeli police, using water cannons, tear gas and night sticks, dispersed a crowd of about 400 protesting Arabs in the walled old city of Jerusalem on Friday. Police said 1,000 Arabs gathered at the Al Aqsa mosque in the old city's Temple Mount after Moslem sabbath worship to protest an Israeli court decision allowing Jewish prayer on the Mount, holy to both Judaism and Islam. About 400 of the demonstrators marched down the narrow Via Dolorosa, the ancient stone path Christ took to Calvary, chanting "Allah Akbar" (God is great) and hurling rocks at Israeli police and soldiers.

People in the news

Weed ousted as witness for publicizing book

Combined News Services

Steven Weed, Patricia Hearst's former fiancé, was scratched as the opening defense witness Friday after he held a news conference to promote his new book about their life together.

Terming Weed's action "irresponsible," defense attorney F. Lee Bailey said his team had tried to dissuade Weed from making any public statements about the case before he testified at the newspaper heiress' bank robbery trial.

But Weed told a gathering of reporters Friday morning, just hours before his scheduled testimony, that he believes Miss Hearst was coerced, but not exactly brainwashed, by her Symbionese Liberation Army captors.

At the beginning of the session Weed apologized, saying, "This was not intended to be anything resembling a press conference. It was set up two weeks ago. I had absolutely no idea that I also would have to testify this morning."

A spokesman for Weed's publisher, Crown Publishers Inc. of New York, said the company was "embarrassed" by the entire incident. "We tried not to make it look like a rah-rah scene and unfortunately it turned out to be just that," Publicist Joyce Jansen said.

Defense attorney Al Johnson telephoned Weed on Thursday night and told him to be at the courthouse Friday morning. She said two defense team representatives approached Weed just before the news conference and tried to dissuade him from conducting it, and Johnson later phoned to tell him to be at the courthouse at noon.

When asked whether Miss Hearst was brainwashed by the SLA, he said: "She was 19 years old and did have a tendency sometimes to arrive at decisions that were a little unfounded. But I think that if Patty had been the most together person in the world, and if she had been older and if her relationship with me and her parents had been absolutely solid, I think the net result would have been the same."

Commenting on Miss Hearst's defense, Weed said, "I think the attorneys are doing a good job. I wouldn't characterize it as a so-called 100 per cent brainwashing defense."

"A brainwashing defense would mean they actually succeeded in changing her attitudes 100 per cent, and I think a lot of the testimony that has come out so far seemed to indicate that it wasn't entirely an attitude change. There was direct coercion, certainly from the beginning," he said, adding the Miss Hearst was dragged screaming from the Berkeley apartment they shared.

In response to a reporter's question, Weed said: "She was always a rebel, but I don't find that a negative part of her character. She was a bit of a paradox, strong willed and impressionable."

When asked about the impact of his newly released book on the case, he said: "If the book spoils any future contact with Patty, it probably wouldn't have worked anyway."

Dancers

After seeing a performance of the new musical revue "Bubbling Brown Sugar" earlier this week, First Lady Betty Ford invited the cast to tour the White House and surprised them by turning up herself Friday to greet them.

President Ford had gone off to Florida on a campaign trip. So the cast even got to see his Oval Office.

Mrs. Ford said the Tuesday evening she and the President spent at the theater seeing the musical, which features the songs of Harlem from the 1920s, was "the best thing for my husband," enabling him "to sit back and relax."

Bess

In Independence, Mo., Bess Wallace Truman spent a quiet 91st birthday with flowers, cards and a telephone call from her daughter, Margaret Truman Daniel, in Washington.

Children from the same elementary school the President's widow attended came at noon to sing "Happy Birthday" and "God Bless America."

Free

One day after he was indicted for threatening the lives of President Ford, Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan, Michael Carvin was free on bond Friday in Pompano Beach, Fla. — about 10 miles from a scheduled appearance by Ford.

The Secret Service declined to say whether Carvin would be under surveillance during Ford's visit.

"We have made it clear to his parents that he is to make no telephone calls, write no letters or go anywhere without one of them while the President is in South Florida," Asst. U.S. Atty. Rebekah Poston said.

A federal grand jury returned the indictments against Carvin, who was first arrested Nov. 20 when he accosted Reagan with a toy pistol as the former California governor campaigned in Miami.

Carvin, 20, is charged with making earlier telephoned threats against Ford, Rockefeller and Reagan, and repeating some of those threats in a letter last month to a Miami television station.

Valentine

About 25 girls presented a giant Valentine heart to President Ford when he arrived in Orlando, Fla., Friday at the start of a two-day campaign swing through Florida.

"To our all-American Valentine," read the four-foot-tall card from the members of Orlando Girl Scout Troop 37. Ford posed for pictures with the girls and thanked the crowd of about 1,200 for his airport welcome.

Later at Ford's hotel, retired Baltimore Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas gave the President a signed football to add to his collection of sports memorabilia.

'Finest'

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. said Friday that former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter is "one of the finest men among us" and added that he supports the candidacy of the Democratic presidential contender.

King, who spoke to 500 students at Georgia Southwestern College at Americus, Ga., during a Black History Week celebration, criticized recent statements labeling Carter a racist and attacking his sincerity.

Met opera soprano Lily Pons dies at 71

Lily Pons, the French-born coloratura soprano who sang for more than a quarter-century with the New York Metropolitan Opera, died Friday in a Dallas hospital after a long illness. She was 71.

She had been at hospitalized since Jan. 11. The nature of her illness was not disclosed; nor was the cause of death.

Miss Pons was a petite woman of great beauty who, while building an international reputation as an opera star, also appeared in a number of motion pictures.

Her principal opera roles included Lucia in "Lucia di Lammermoor," Gilda in "Rigoletto," Rosina in "Barber of Seville," and Lakme in "Lakmé." She also was known for performances as Linda in "Linda di Chamounix," Aminta in "La Sonnambula," Shemakhan in "Le Coq d'Or," and Marie in "Daughter of the Regiment."

Born in Cannes, France, she received early musical training under Albert di Grootlaga and made her debut as Lakme at the Mulhouse, France, Municipal Opera in 1928. The "Bell Song" from Lakme came to be considered her theme song.

Miss Pons went to the Metropolitan Opera in 1931, making her debut there in the role of Lucia. Years later, she told of having to sing four arias twice during her Met audition because "they want to see if I am strong enough to last through a performance." She weighed 96 pounds at the time.

Very sick

Arthur Fiedler, 81, conductor of the Boston Pops orchestra, has been hospitalized in Vancouver, B.C., and is a "very very sick man," his wife said Friday.

Ellen Fiedler, the musician's wife, said doctors reported her husband had developed pneumonia. She said Fiedler's son was en route to Canada to bring his father home.

Computer shorts out L.B. traffic

A short in a computer kept traffic lights over a wide area of Long Beach from changing Friday night and snarled downtown traffic for 45 minutes.

Police said their switchboard was swamped with calls and that the malfunction contributed to two traffic accidents. No serious injuries were reported.

The Public Service Department said the computer, which regulates the control unit for traffic lights, was shorted at 8:45 p.m. It took 45 minutes to correct the problem, and three hours later some lights still weren't working.

Twenty policemen were dispatched to manually switch the signals to blinking red and to control traffic. After half an hour, congestion at the busiest intersections was lessened, officers said.

Long lines formed at many intersections, and traffic was especially snarled along Pacific Coast Highway between Redondo and Atlantic avenues.

Apartment illumination

Are apartment building owners required to have outdoor stairways lighted after dark? The lights over the stairs where I live do not go on until 7 p.m. so we have almost two hours of darkness. I think this is very dangerous. M.B., Long Beach.

My landlord turns off the lights outside my apartment building before he goes to bed and on the nights I work until 2 a.m. I am afraid to go from the carport to the building because it is pitch black. My next-door neighbor had to take her husband to the hospital recently and they couldn't see to get down the stairs. Isn't there a law that says there must be lights on apartment houses? A.W., Long Beach.

A Long Beach city ordinance requires exits and stairways of apartment buildings which have three or more units to be illuminated with lights bright enough to read a newspaper by from dusk to dawn, according to Cyril Blessemmer, of the Long Beach Building and Safety Department. The lights can be dimmer if there is a device at the top and the bottom of the stairs that allows you to increase the light level before you use the stairs. The law defines an exit as the area between a door and the street. The law does not, however, include carports. If a landlord refuses to conform to the law, the problem can be reported to the department's electrical division, 435-3435, extension 221, and complaints will be investigated and, if necessary, referred to the city prosecutor for possible legal action.

Bikeways

Could you please find out what plans the City of Long Beach has regarding bike trails? I rode the streets of Long Beach as a youngster but I would be afraid to do the same thing today because of heavy traffic. L.M., Long Beach.

"We have looked at the complete city and have developed a number of subsystems which we hope to implement to ultimately cover the entire city," said Salem Spitz, Long Beach traffic engineer. "We want to build the safest and most efficient system possible," he said. Portions of two of the subsystems — along the Los Angeles and San Gabriel rivers — have been completed by the county and the city has completed one in the Recreation Park area. "We are working on plans for three additional subsystems," Spitz said. They are along Clark Avenue, in the Heartwell Park area and in the Palo Verde-Los Coyotes Diagonal area. The third one is being partially financed out of Southern California Association of Governments (SCAG) funds. The systems ultimately will link up and provide transportation routes for regional and city users. About $500,000 is currently available for city bike trails and "might be spent this calendar year." You can see maps showing the existing and planned trails at City Hall, Room 403, 205 W. Broadway. For copies of maps showing existing Orange County bike trails, or for a tour guide of the Santa Ana River trail, write Bob Rusby, 400 Civic Center Drive West, Santa Ana, Calif. 92701. New maps are being printed so expect a two-to-three-week delay. You can see maps showing future trails at the Civic Center Drive address.

Beach Boys

My friend and I are the Beach Boys biggest fans. Would you settle a bet we made by telling us when they made their first appearance and how old they were then? Also, where do Carl and Dennis Wilson live? N.N., Long Beach.

The Beach Boys — brothers Brian, Carl and Dennis Wilson, their cousin Mike Love and Alan Jardine — had a lot of musical get-togethers when they were growing up but made their first major appearance in a Los Angeles concert Dec. 31, 1962, according to a spokesman for Rogers and Cowan, the agency that handles public relations for the group. They were in their late teens then, he said, but they "would rather not talk about age" now. "Surfin' Safari," their first album exalting California's surf and sand, had been released a month before that concert and was on its way to becoming a hit. Numerous hit albums followed. Over the years, the group diversified their music and moved with the times — going from a clean-cut, white-beaned appearance to a long-haired, bushy-bearded look. Current plans for the band include a late spring TV special and a cross-country tour beginning in July. The tour will include a Los Angeles area concert. A new album, their first in three years, is due out in June. Brian no longer performs with the band but writes songs and produces records for them. Carl and Dennis live in Malibu and you can write to them or the other members of the band in care of Rogers and Cowan, 9645 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 200, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Confident of board support

Hahn pushes county mayor proposal

By NOEL SWANN
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said Friday he's confident he can line up the three supervisorial votes needed to put the question of an elected county mayor to the voters on the June 8 primary ballot.

Hahn, however, insisted that a companion proposal to expand the Board of Supervisors to nine members be dealt with as a separate ballot measure in the November general election.

The supervisor said he strongly supports the separation of powers concept called for in a report by the Public Commission on County Government this week. However, his own proposal differs slightly from the commission's, inasmuch as he believes that the top elected official should be known as the county mayor, not the county executive, as suggested by the commission. Hahn also takes issue with the commission's recommendation that the name of the expanded Board of Supervisors should be changed to the County Legislature.

He said such a name change would be misleading and would create confusion in the public's mind because some would think of it as the state Legislature.

Funds due for flood survey

From Our County Bureau

A $4 million federal grant for a comprehensive study of potential flood hazards in Los Angeles County was announced Friday.

Under the plan, the county flood control district will conduct a three-year survey to identify areas subject to flooding, how often they can expect to be flooded, and to what depths.

The goal will be to set flood insurance rates on an actuarial basis, hopefully with lower rates. The study also will help to establish a flood management program for eliminating or reducing future losses.

The plans were revealed at a joint press conference by Thomas Brinton, consultation coordination officer for the Federal Insurance Administration and Ari Brington, chief engineer for the flood control district.

Man receives 30 years for police shooting

A former Long Beach resident who admitted trying to kill a Garden Grove policeman last May Friday was handed a prison sentence of up to 30 years, then ordered to the California Medical Facility at Vacaville for psychiatric treatment.

Santa Ana Superior Judge James K. Judge pronounced the sentence on James David Dushane, 22, whose jury trial ended with his admission of guilt in the shooting of Officer Fred Aiken.

Aiken, shot as he attempted to investigate a burglary report near the Garden Grove Boy's Club, has recovered from the wound and returned to active duty.

Dushane told the court he shot the officer because he "just wanted to fire a rifle."

While the commission insisted that there should be no expansion of the board without the county mayor concept, its report urged that the elected mayor and expanded board become one ballot measure.

Although Hahn supports an expanded board, he disagreed with combining the two issues on one ballot measure. "It's enough for the voters to deal with a new elected mayor at one time, and opponents of the measure might use the expanded board concept to defeat the elected mayor issue," he said.

If the measure is to go on the June ballot it requires three votes from the Board of Supervisors. In addition to Hahn, who pioneered the county mayor concept, Supervisor Ed Edelman has already come out in favor of the idea, and Supervisor Pete Schabarum has indicated a willingness to go along, depending on the language used in the Charter amendment.

Schabarum has indicated that he might support a "very strong" mayor concept only.

Hahn said he was confident that he would get Edelman's and Schabarum's votes to put the mayor concept on the ballot at a meeting Thursday when the board considers these and several other possible Charter amendments.

Hahn released a draft of his plan designating the executive authority of the mayor and giving supervisors legislative responsibility.

His plan calls for a limit in the size of staff for supervisors and the mayor, with the mayor being limited to six deputies and each supervisor restricted to four.

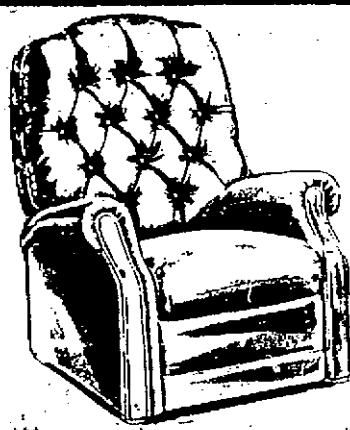

He claimed that this limitation would save $880,000 a year, based on present staffing, but conceded that in practice the personnel eliminated by the measure would simply end up in some other departments of county government because of their civil service protection.

There has been some opposition in the past to his concept of limiting the size of supervisorial staff, and Hahn indicated he might be willing to compromise on this point if it is needed to get the support of other board members for the county mayor concept.

Schorr confirms he released secret report

WASHINGTON (AP) — CBS News correspondent Daniel Schorr confirmed Friday that he was responsible for newspaper publication of most of the Select House Intelligence Committee's still-classified secret report.

"I decided that with much of the contents already known I could not be the one responsible for suppressing the report," Schorr said in a detailed statement.

"That decision was entirely mine."

Schorr gave no indication who leaked the report to him.

He said only that "the report became available to me—and apparently not to me alone—at a time when its general release was expected within a few days."

HE SAID he reported highlights extensively on CBS news broadcasts, but the situation changed when the House ordered the intelligence committee by a vote of 246 to 124 Jan. 29 to keep the report secret.

Publication of the report in 21 pages of the Village Voice in New York was arranged by an intermediary provided by a Washington organization that provides legal defense in press-freedom cases, Schorr said.

He said he made that arrangement to provide additional protection for his own source and because "I considered it unthinkable that there would be any personal profit for me."

Schorr accused the organization—the Reporters' Committee for the Freedom of the Press—of breaching confidentiality.

"I am fully aware of the irony of my complaining about leaks," he said.

BUT HE appeared to blame the Reporters' Committee for public disclosure of his role in the publication of the report.

"I deeply regret that the Reporters' Committee has not been able to maintain the confidentiality of the arrangement because there are delicate matters involved that journalists should want to protect in their common interest," he declared.

Schorr said that when he realized that he had a copy of a report that no longer was likely to be made public "I felt myself confronted with an inescapable decision of journalistic conscience."

"It was whether, as possibly the sole possessor of the document outside the government, to cooperate in what might be the total suppression of a report originally meant for public distribution."

HE SAID he "enlisted the confidential cooperation" of the Reporters' Committee, which he said provided an intermediary knowledgeable about publishing "with whom I dealt by telephone."

The intermediary reported back that there was little early prospect for publication as a book and that the best opportunity was an offer from the Village Voice that would be withdrawn in 24 hours.

"I agreed that the offer should be accepted and asked to be kept out of all financial arrangements," Schorr said.

In fact, he said, he had no dealings of any kind with anyone at the Village Voice.

"The question of money was, to my mind, secondary and mainly symbolic to underline an act that I considered essential as a journalist," Schorr said.

SCHORR'S ROLE in publication of the House report was disclosed by

DANIEL SCHORR
"Decision Was Mine"

the Washington Post the day the Village Voice published the report.

The Post article was based on both on-the-record and off-the-record comments by members of the Reporters' Committee, plus statements by Schorr.

Members of the organization later said Schorr had contacted them and asked if they would accept proceeds from publication of the report.

But they said they did not know if the Village Voice publication had been arranged by Schorr—or even if he in fact had a copy of the House committee report.

To fix brake defect GM recalling Chevettes

By GREGORY SKWIRA
Knight News Service

DETROIT—The Chevrolet General Motors' new minicar, received a double whammy this Friday the 13th—a massive recall, plus a trimming of previously announced production plans.

GM announced Friday that all 58,000 Chevettes sold so far this model year, plus another 10,000 still at dealerships, were being recalled to correct a design defect that could cause the front brakes to fail.

GM said also that it was recalling 34,000 1978-model Chevrolet Monzas, Buick Skyhawks, Oldsmobile Starfires and Pontiac Sunbirds to check for possibly defective front disc brake shoes. The company said it had received no reports of accidents or injuries due to the problem.

And GM President E.M. Estes announced that plans to begin assembling Chevettes at a second site had been scrapped due to lower-than-anticipated sales.

The second planned assembly site, in South Gate, Calif., was to begin turning out 20 Chevettes an hour March 1, a GM spokesman said, along with its regular output of various Buick, Chevrolet, Oldsmobile and Pontiac compact models. Estes said Friday, however, that the two-shift operation at GM's Wilmington, Del., plant "can give us the production needed to meet the current market demand for cars in the sub-compact end of the market."

Meanwhile, the company said, the South Gate plant will begin a three-week shutdown next week for "inventory adjustment." GM said that 2,500 workers were affected. GM had said it planned to close the plant for a week of inventory adjustment and then a week to convert to Chevette production.

In September, GM Vice President Robert Lund targeted Chevette sales for the model year at 275,000 units. With the model year more than one-third over, however, sales have totaled only about 20 per cent of that figure.

A GM spokesman said Friday that the company still hoped to sell "about 250,000" Chevettes this model year.

GM said it was recalling the Chevettes to install a small plastic shield between a front brake hose and a protruding bolt on the front control arm. The company said repeated contact between the two parts could cause the hose to crack or stretch, causing the cars to lose brake fluid.

The company said it began installing the shields on the assembly line in mid-December after a routine maintenance inspection revealed the problem.

The 33,000 Chevettes built since then are not affected by the recall. The company said it knew of one accident apparently linked to the problem and that minor injuries had resulted.

Iranian oil firm plans price cut

By WILLIAM D. SMITH

NEW YORK — The National Iranian Oil Company will cut the price on its heavy crude oil by 9.5 cents a barrel in a move considered an attempt to recapture some of the heavy crude oil market that Iran has lost in recent months. The move will be announced officially Monday.

Iran has been involved in a major confrontation with the consortium of Western oil companies, charging them with not

Earlier this month Iran proposed its first deficit budget since petroleum prices rose sharply in 1973. Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida cited weak demand for oil as the reason for the $2.4 billion gap between expenditures and revenues in 1976.

THE OIL companies, for their part, contend that, in comparison with similar crudes, Iranian oil has been vastly overpriced in a weak market. De-producing enough oil from Iranian fields.

THE SHAH of Iran has said that the reduced take of Iranian crude would affect the country's five-year development plans, might require a reduction in its foreign aid and could put in doubt the multibillion dollar economic agreement between it and the United States.

In addition, Iran has put diplomatic pressure on both the United States and British Governments to get them to induce the oil companies to increase the volume of oil they take from Iran.

maund for heavy crude oil, which is largely used for residual fuel in industrial and utility operations, has been reduced significantly by the worldwide recession.

The new price for heavy export crude is $11.40 a barrel, down from $11.495 a barrel.

The action came as somewhat of a surprise, since some industry experts had not expected Iran to take any action until a number of outstanding issues with the 14 Western oil companies had been settled. Negotiations, which have been going on for several months, are now recessed.

Car sales hit 3-year high in 10-day period

Knight News Service

DETROIT—The top four domestic automakers started off February with a strong performance, posting sales of 167,608 cars during the first 10 days of the month, the highest for the period in three years.

While the industry fell 13 per cent short of its total for Feb. 1-10 in 1973, it reported a 21-per cent increase over the like 1975 period when the rebate programs were in full swing and a 15-per cent boost over the early February span in 1974.

Continuing to pace the automobile market's recovery from a two-year sales slump, General Motors Corp. sold 31 per cent more cars than a year ago, an improvement that would have been even stronger had it not been for a weak performance by Chevrolet.

Ford Motor Co. reported gains of 27 per cent over last year, while Chrysler Corp. was up 8 per cent and American Motors Corp. 1 per cent after showing a year-to-year decline in the final 10 days of January.

Auto company executives, cheered by the industry's 23 per cent gain over the first 10 days of January, saw signs that the market comeback is strengthening.

"February sales are off to a great start," said the Chrysler sales vice president, Robert B. McCurry, noting that new-car dealers had achieved a sales rate in the most recent period of nine million cars on a 12-month projection.

Insists U.S. not hurt by report

Pike refutes Kissinger claims

By JOSEPH VOLZ
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON—Rep. Otis Pike, D-N.Y., chairman of the defunct House Intelligence Committee, insisted Friday that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger was "deeply involved" in certain questionable intelligence operations but that the committee did not set out to discredit him.

Kissinger, in an emotional press conference Thursday charged that the Pike Committee distorted classified information in its report to fit preconceived ideas about him. Accusing the committee of McCarthyism, Kissinger branded the report a "malicious lie."

Pike, in a telephone interview, refused to discuss details of the 338-page committee report, which have leaked out, although the House voted to keep it secret.

Pike said the committee sought to trace where the intelligence dollars were spent and happened to discover Kissinger's involvement. Kissinger was particularly irked at the committee's report that the CIA channeled arms to Kurdish rebels fighting in Iraq. The United States shut off aid abruptly and Kissinger reportedly turned down last-minute pleas for help from the outmaneuvered rebels.

"The secretary of State feels that America has been hurt by the report because it appears to be critical of him," Pike said. "I do not."

Kissinger has repeatedly contended the nation's foreign policy would be impaired by attacks on him. Pike argued that "the question is not the conduct of our foreign policy but of national security. There is nothing in the report which in any way jeopardizes the national security of the United States."

Meanwhile, federal investigators are nearing completion of a probe of former CIA director Richard Helms, now U.S. ambassador to Iran. Either an indictment or an explanation of why there's no indictment will be announced by next Thursday, Justice sources said.

CIA agents and Fairfax, Va., police broke into a photography shop in 1971 without a warrant. The shop was operated by a former Cuban propaganda official who was dating a part-time CIA employee. A federal grand jury has been seeking to determine if Helms authorized the illegal break-in but the five-year statute of limitations ends Thursday. If Helms is not indicted by then, he can never be charged.

He also is being investigated on charges that he committed perjury when he told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the CIA made no attempts to overthrow the government of Marxist President Salvador Allende of Chile.

Works bill veto override seen

By JEFFREY ANTEVIL
Knight News Service

WASHINGTON—President Ford vetoed Friday a politically popular $6.1 billion public-works jobs bill, calling it "an election-year pork barrel," but a congressional override of the veto was expected.

In his 46th veto message since taking office in August 1974, Ford charged that claims by supporters that the bill would create 600,000 to 800,000 new jobs were "badly exaggerated."

His veto message, issued by the White House shortly before the President left for two days of political campaigning in Florida, estimated that only 250,000 jobs would be created by the bill — at a cost "probably in excess of $25,000 per job" — with most of them coming in late 1977 or early 1978. By then, Ford said, the recovery will be "far advanced" and the economy will no longer need additional stimulation.

The bill passed the House and Senate with overwhelming bipartisan support, so the veto is likely to be overridden next week when Congress returns from a Lincoln's Birthday recess.

Ford's first veto this year, of a $45 billion health and social-services bill, was overridden last month. A second consecutive victory would be viewed by congressional Democrats as a major boost in their battle with the President over spending priorities.

Both the total number of Ford vetoes and the number of overrides—eight so far—are records for the period of time.

Supporters of the public-works legislation, including the national Conference of Mayors, argue that it would create badly needed jobs at a rapid rate. Key provisions include "countercyclical" or anti-recession grants to help state and local governments preserve public jobs and $2.5 billion for public-works projects which can be started within 90 days.

New York State would get $78 million, including $137 million for the city, under the anti-recession program, which is intended for areas with unemployment over 6 per cent. Its share of the public-works funds would depend on how quickly it could submit projects for approval.

Despite its bipartisan support, Ford took the unusual step of committing himself to veto the bill before it had passed. He charged that it would add $2.5 billion to the federal deficit in the first year and another $1 billion in each of the next two years.

In his veto message, the President said his own "balanced economic policies," based on encouraging growth in the private sector, were succeeding, as seen in last month's 0.5 per cent drop in unemployment.

"My proposed economic policies are expected to foster the creation of 2 to 2.5 million new private-sector jobs in 1976 and more than 2 million additional jobs in 1977," Ford said.

NYC budget deficit leaps another 40 pct.

NEW YORK (AP) —

Mayor Abraham Beame said Friday that the city's budget deficit for the current fiscal year was expected to be over $1 billion — more than 40 per cent higher than anticipated last fall. Beame blamed "recession, inflation and actions of the state and federal governments over which we have no control."

Gov. Hugh L. Carey said after a three-hour session of the Emergency Financial Control Board that despite the increased deficit, "We will meet our payment dates to the federal government."

A loan plan, approved by Congress last November, gave the city $1.8 billion this fiscal year and $2.3 billion in each of the two fiscal years following. Each loan must be repaid before new funds are advanced from Washington.

Carey said the city would ask Washington to explore the possibility of continuing the loan program beyond the three-year period.

The city's budget for the fiscal year ending June 30 is approximately $1.2 billion. City officials estimated last October that there would be a $724 million deficit for the current year.

Beame said, however, that revised figures show an estimated deficit of $1,021 million, some $297 million more than the October figure. He said the new estimate did not take into account a proposed $163 million cut in federal aid and $139 million in state aid. Nor, he said, did it include "potential additional funding for

Beame said he had told the Control Board, an agency set up by the state legislature to oversee New York's finances through the 1977-78 fiscal year, that planned budget cuts over the next two fiscal years would have to be increased from $524 million to $821 million because of the increased deficit.

The mayor said $200 million already has been cut in the current fiscal year which ends June 30.

It was not clear whether the increased deficit would mean additional layoffs.

While big cities' bond ratings dip, small towns do quite well

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While some of the nation's most important cities have had their bond ratings shaved during the past two years, scores of small and relatively unknown municipal units have had theirs raised to AAA — the very best.

Among them are the Simi Valley, Calif., Assessment District No. 8; the Smithtown, N.Y., Central School District; and the Wayne County, Mich., Sutliff and Kenope Drainage District.

About 150 other units were equally successful in attaining the best rating, which means the best credit terms. In the past 20 months they have borrowed more than $572 million on their AAA ratings, despite a troubled market.

All managed to market their bonds under an insurance program of the Municipal Bond Insurance Association, which guarantees the payment of principal and interest in the event of default.

"We're absolutely swamped with really good business," said John Butler, president of the Municipal Issuers Service Corp., White Plains, N.Y., which is the general manager of the association, a conglomeration of four big insurers.

THE TWO organizations were formed in the spring of 1974 when a need was recognized to assist smaller municipalities in obtaining financing for essential projects. Man-pose. It includes The Aetna Casualty and Surety Co., Aetna Insurance Co., St. Paul Fire and Marine Insurance Co. and U.S. Fire Insurance Co., which have combined assets of more than $4 billion.

Any municipal unit accepted and insured by the consortium automatically obtains Standard & Poor's triple-A rating, which almost assures them of acceptability in the market and at very good terms.

In some instances, for example, a municipality that would have had to pay roughly 9 per cent interest has been able to obtain funds at only 6 per cent. A New York town ship recently shaved nearly 4 per cent from its cost.

THE INSURANCE cost have varied between about $10 and $20 for each thousand dollars of borrowing but both municipal official and insurers say that fee and more is returned via the savings on interest.

The consortium limits to $20 million the amount which may be guaranteed for any one issuer, but most of the bond issues are for considerably less than that, some not totaling $1 million, and most not reaching $10 million.

The insurance program has now been approved by the insurance departments of almost all 50 states; although the municipalities that so far have borrowed are situated in only 18 states.

Not every town gets accepted. Butler, whose service corporation screens all applications, turns down about one-half of the requests. And of those he passes on to the consortium, about 25 per cent are refused.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

An enterprising nurseryman wanted to interest his customers in buying trees for shade, landscaping and just plain beauty. He had a sign hung across his lath house which read: "A home without a tree just ain't fit for a dog!"

Trees not only provide shade, they furnish oxygen and absorb carbon dioxide and also act as a barrier against smog.

Some gardeners prefer evergreen ornamental trees, while others prefer flowering trees. One of the most beautiful of all deciduous trees that provide probably the most blossoms, is the flowering peach.

There are two types of flowering peaches, the single-flower variety and the double.

Personally I would select the double variety because the blossoms last longer than the single flowers. The peaches provide shade throughout the summer.

ONE OF the deciduous fruit trees that is a problem to some gardeners is the fig, because they dry up.

The mature trees need deep watering, at least four feet, and are greedy feeders.

We had an interesting experience with a large twelve-inch (trunk) fig on a gardening job some years ago.

The owner was unhappy because the figs were dry and inedible. We started to work on the tree in October. First, the tree received lots of water. Next, bone meal was applied — one pound per each inch diameter of the trunk — and lightly scratched into the soil. An inch of manure was spread evenly over the soil, then slowly soaked without puddling the manure. A month later, after a deep soaking and a balanced fertilizer containing 6-10-4 formula one pound per each diameter of the tree trunk was evenly scattered over the manure, it was watered well. The tree was then watered as needed.

THE following summer the Brown Turkey fig fruit was luscious, had juiciness, and was exceptionally sweet. The owner's Boston terrier "Bonzo" developed a taste for the fruit and would stand on his hind legs to reach the fruit. The owner had to pick the low-hanging figs before they fully ripened. (Gardener could still pick a mature fig tree to produce better fruit by applying the manure and fertilizer.)

Sometimes a fig tree that gets lots of water and good care, and still doesn't produce good tasty juicy fruit, could be suffering from inroot nematodes.

These pests are minute eel-like worms in the soil that burrow into the roots, live in them, and feed on the plant's sap stream. They multiply prodigiously. Tree becomes debilitated as if it has cancer. Such trees should be dug up and the soil fumigated.

Fig varieties such as Brown Turkey, White Pacific and Adriatic need to be pruned annually, because they produce the fruit on the new growth that develops after the trees are pruned.

These trees can still be pruned if done right now. All a gardener needs to do is to cut the last year's growth back to within two buds or scars. Trim out the crossing branches if any, and the tree is pruned.

People and ideas

Are you in right church?

"I quit going to church," said the bitter man, "because I couldn't accept the nonsense they preached and I didn't like the attitude of the people."

The ex-churchman, unless he would really prefer to spend his Sunday mornings at the corner bar, failed to realize that he had options. In America there may be too many options. It is hard to decide what kind of religion, what kind of church one needs.

All Christian churches — there are 250 or so in the circulation area of the I.P.T. — believe they are serving the Lord Christ. But they serve him in 250 different ways.

Here are some of the criteria that should be considered by anyone looking for a happy church home:

DENOMINATION: If you believe in the doctrine and discipline of your denomination but can't stand what is going on at Second Methodist, drive a few miles to Third Methodist. You may find a completely different climate there.

SOCIAL CLASS: We Americans would like to think we are "a classless society." It just isn't so. A doctor of philosophy just doesn't feel at home in a church made up of factory workers. It is easier to associate with people whose language you talk.

These individual problems are important, but more important is doctrinal stance. What kind of Christian are you? What do you actually believe?

FUNDAMENTALISM: Many half-baked, sophomoric "liberals" sneer at Fundamentalism, perhaps because there are so many half-baked Fundamentalists. The sneer is ignorant. The Fundamentalists believe that the Bible is the Word of God, divinely inspired although written by human hands. Some of the half-baked would argue that every comma was inspired. Anyone who has talked to intellectual Fundamentalists, university men with higher degrees, knows that it isn't that way. Such learned men hold that the Bible is history which tells of God's plan for mankind. Fundamentalism, rightly understood, gives meaning to life for millions.

TRADITIONALISM: The word makes one think of candles and incense and sanctus bells and genuflecting and priests in pretty vestments.

But that is not what it is about. Traditionalism means that people should be cognizant of the entire Christian experience, not only the Bible but of all the centuries since Pentecost. And it looks to the future. It is a heritage for sons and sons' sons until the end of time. Communion may sometimes seem routine or stuffy, but for millions it is a reminder that the human race has a divine purpose.

LIBERALISM: "The things you are liable to

MARK CLUTTER

read in the Bible ain't necessarily so."

The Liberals, formerly called Modernists, devote themselves too often to extreme literary and historical criticism. Some question the historicity of the Virgin Birth and the Resurrection. But they can't get rid of Jesus. Much of the emphasis is on Christian ethics and good works. Depending on the vision and devotion of individual congregations, good works may range from musicals and lectures to sacrificial efforts for the poor and for social justice.

EXISTENTIALISM: This word is hard to define, especially as it applies to Christianity. It is something like the free spirit's response to the Here and Now. It is perhaps like the "inner light," the voice of conscience of the Quakers.

The Unitarians, who deny they are Christians but mostly act like Christians, seem to have an existentialist quality. But we have all known people like this, even in the most rigid denominations.

DISCIPLINE: Until they started fooling around with the Liturgy, one Baptismal Rite accepted the screaming, wet-diapered draftee as "a soldier and servant of Christ until his life's end."

Every church is a "military camp." That is, there is a discipline that must be followed. In some the discipline is very relaxed. It may include cocktail parties. But there are certain patterns of obligatory conduct in all churches.

Some people yearn for precise discipline. They want their lives to be patterned completely.

Perhaps the most disciplined church in modern America is the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints. In addition to church, there are weekly family nights in which the whole family has food, fun and prayer together. The event is patterned. High school kids go to "seminary" an hour each day before regular school. Many young men become missionaries, traveling through the nation and the world. Girls get their assignments too.

concert? Do you want to sit in your car and smoke while you hear a sermon? Do you want pleasant dinners with pleasant people? The "superchurches" experts can arrange all that. And more.

THE CULTISTS: It has been the style in recent years for young people to flock to the cults, some of them corruptions of Oriental religions, some of them perversions of Christianity.

"I feel so sorry for them," said a monsignor. "Christianity is very old and we have known these things before. We could help them — but they won't ask."

There doesn't seem to be much of anything good to be said about the cults. A church exists as part of a community. It hopes by precept and example to create a better society. A cult withdraws from society. It disavows patriotism, social responsibility, friendship outside the cult, family ties, and even sex, either by promiscuity or by celibacy.

These witch doctors know how to find gold. The Unification Church of "the Rev." Sun Moon has convinced Americans out of many millions of dollars. He is also accused of ruining many young lives.

SEARCH FOR JOY: A church should be a place of joy. The Apostle Paul, even from prison and under the shadow of death, wrote "Rejoice!" again and again and again. Jesus preached joy. The idea of joy seems to be central in Christian doctrine.

But joy is hard to define. It must be felt. One feels it strongly in some churches, scarcely at all in others.

It seems to have little to do with denominations and their doctrines. Churches of grim intellectual stance may have joy. Nor does it

What Should Men Be?

By MARK CLUTTER

These pages recently had a questionnaire entitled "What Should Women Be?" The response was amazing in the variety and thoughtfulness of the replies, mostly from women.

Many women challenged: "Why don't you ask what men should be?"

These questionnaires are all in intellectual fun. They help readers to face up to their own ideas and emotions. And the answers tell what other readers are thinking. The questionnaires make no claim to scientific accuracy, but they may be straws showing which way the wind is blowing.

This is a "True or False" test, but as in past questionnaires, the questions are not that simple. Readers are urged to express their opinions.

It is important to give these facts about yourself:

1. A husband should be head of his household, loving and gentle but the commanding officer.

2. Boys should be taught to be fighters, tough but fair and square. They should get training in boxing, wrestling, football and other rugged combat sports.

3. Parents should encourage sons who show enthusiasm for music, painting, poetry or ballet.

4. A man, although conscious of his duty to family and society, needs the "gentlemanly diversion" of an occasional, discreet love affair.

5. A professional or business career is the most important thing in a man's life. No woman, no matter how beloved, must interfere with that.

6. No man needs to worry about birth control because that is woman's problem.

7. A man should be quick to heed the call to arms when his country needs him.

8. A man and woman should live together in the equality of comradeship — and learn to laugh a lot.

9. A man needs exclusively male companionship from time to time — lodge, poker party, hunting trip, civic club, perhaps a men's Bible class.

10. When a wife, daughter or sister strays from the ways of sexual decency a man should be forgiving.

11. If a wife holds a full-time job, her husband should do half the housework.

12. No matter what his position in life, a man should dress as well as he can, be clean, walk tall and always be courteous. (Remembering, of course, that in some jobs cleanliness and good clothes are impossible during working hours.)

13. In lovemaking a man should be gentle and patient, striving to give his wife total emotional and physical gratification.

14. In our era a father should encourage his daughters, as well as his sons to make something of themselves in rewarding and useful careers.

15. The Pope is right in his condemnation of artificial birth control, fornication and adultery, masturbation, homosexuality and abortion.

16. A man should own at least one excellent gun — and know how to use it.

17. A Christian man as head of his household has the duty to study the Bible, perhaps with professional help, so he can guide his family in the right way.

18. A man should never give up sports and athletics, although he will be forced to modify his activities as he gets older.

19. If a man finds his wife boring, cold or a nag, he should divorce her and find a better woman.

20. A man should seek the friendship of women, listen to their ideas, be gentle, respectful and interested. He can learn much from women of all ages.

People, ideas

have much to do with ceremonial custom. Some churches shout ecstatically. Some are very sedate and prim in behavior. Joy can sometimes be found in a Quaker meeting in which not one word is uttered.

What is this Christian joy? It seems to be a communal manifestation of the Summary of the Law — Love God and your neighbor as yourself. When one encounters it, his life is, at least for the time being, enriched.

NO PERFECTION: A person seeking a church should not expect perfection. The people of God are just human beings. They are subject to the Seven Deadly Sins. Sometimes the sins of church people seem more ugly than those of simple, honest pagans. This is easy to understand because the sinning church member is torn two ways.

So a church member needs a measure of cynicism. He will not be happy if he expects perfection of his brothers and sisters. Or of himself. Gentle cynicism is the beginning of mercy and forgiveness.

All Saints Episcopal

'Evangelical and Catholic'

By MARK CLUTTER

Morning worship at All Saints Episcopal Church, Terminal Avenue and Colorado street, at 9 or 11 a.m., is an esthetic experience.

One would have to be a dillard indeed not to appreciate the cadenced ceremonial, at once dignified and joyful, with the fine organ music of James Naylor, organist and choirmaster, and the well-trained choir. The organ, a superb instrument, is rather new since the old one was ruined by a fire.

The church, almost inconspicuous from the street, is a work of art in a quiet way. One has to look a little to appreciate fully the details of its beauty.

A Huge Cross bearing the image of the victorious Christ the King dominates sanctuary and nave. The work of Dutch sculptor, it is generally considered to have great artistic merit.

The altar rail is circular, which is a convenience in a cruciform church.

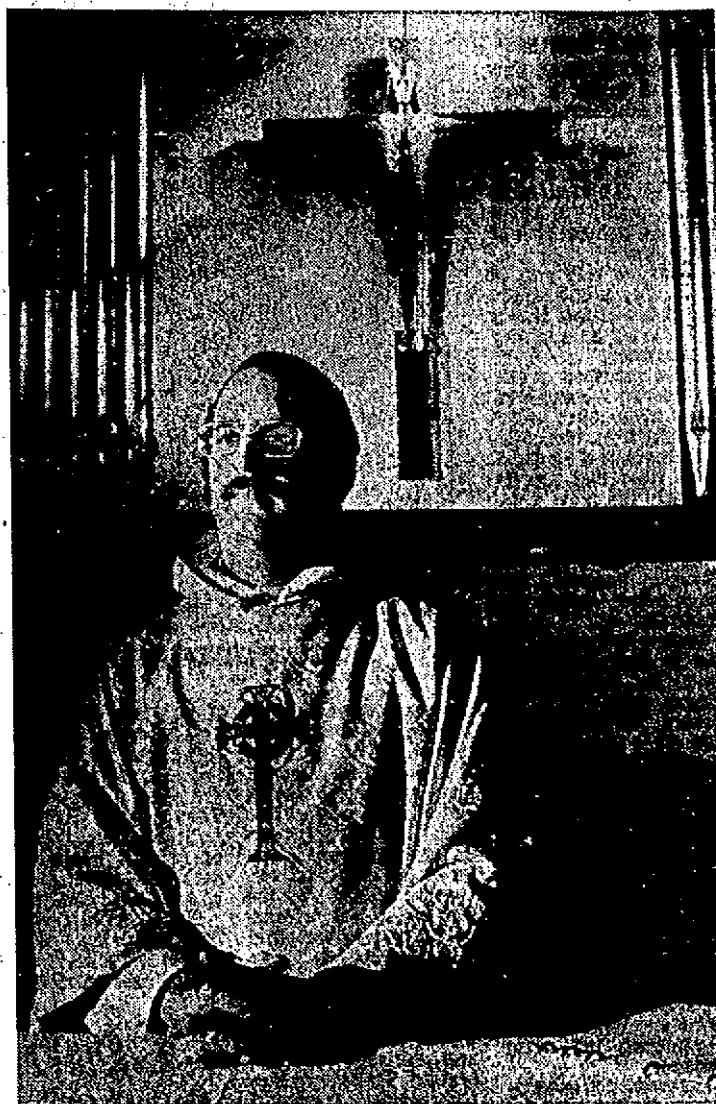

A lovely church in a sedate way — but All Saints is much more than a Sunday morning experience for art lovers.

One begins to realize that when he goes to the traditional after-service coffee. These people are friendly and warm. They are almost a family — but a family eager to acquire new members. They don't try to proselyte you — they just make you know you are welcome.

"All Saints is Catholic and evangelical," said the 29-year-old rector, Father William A. Thompson. "We hold to tradition, but we believe the individual parish should carry the message of Christ to the community and the world. The healthier you are, the more you look outside."

An example of this outward looking is the budget. Of the $92,000, All Saints gives $19,500 to the work of the Diocese of Los Angeles.

"All Saints has a strong sense of dedication," said Father Thompson. "We have tremendous leadership. This is a nurturing, loving community which seeks to know Christ and make Christ known to all men."

ALL SAINTS is also at once progressive and conservative.

It is progressive because it faces up to current problems. It does what needs to be done with vigor. For example, it is now engaged in a $165,000 building program to provide for classrooms, nursery, kitchen and dining space.

The 50-year-old church is conservative in part because of the characteristics of its members. There are many older people, including retired military officers and business and professional people. Many are reasonably prosperous. The educational level is very high. Such people usually do not welcome changes in custom and doctrine.

Opposition to the ordination of women to the priesthood is very strong. Most members look more favorably on the proposed revision of the Book of Common Prayer of 1928.

All Saints is changing in its membership. "The average age is going down," said the young priest. "We have many more young people than in the past. Perhaps the community is changing, but I attribute this more to a social change in the patterns of youth. So many young people today are looking for the spiritual. They are swinging away from the moral confusion of a few years ago. They want something to believe, something that requires loyalty."

ALL SAINTS is home to Father Thompson. He grew up in the parish and was an acolyte. He was sponsored for seminary by the church. He was educated at Stanford University and at Seabury Western Theological Seminary. He served as curate at St. Mark's Church, Barrington Hills, Ill. He returned with his wife, Claudia, to serve as assistant at All Saints. The Thompsons have two very young sons. Father Robert C. Woodfield is the associate rector.

Father Thompson became the sixth rector, succeeding the Venerable

Storm Center

Religion Editor:

Religion Editor Mark Clutter last Saturday in your paper criticized The Tidings, newspaper of the Catholic Archdiocese of Los Angeles, as dull, boring and preoccupied with sex.

The value of Mr. Clutter's comments is ques-

Donald R. Behm, archdeacon of the Diocese of Los Angeles.

He has distinguished people to live up to. Reading backward through history, let's look at some of the accomplishments of these rectors.

Father Behm is credited by laymen for his astute handling of the financial problems of a small church. He supervised the acquisition of the new organ. But he also brought intellectual and spiritual vigor to the church by organizing and supervising many study groups. He was rector from 1966 to 1975.

Father James E. Carroll, 1959-1966, supervised the reconstruction of the building into a cruciform church and other physical changes. His emphasis, however, was on spiritual mission, centering on the Eucharist. From here he went to a parish in Reno. He is now dean of the Chicago Cathedral.

Father Ansley Carlton, 1954-59, improved the organizational pattern and helped the church to grow. A quotation from a sermon tells something about the man: "The Fellowship of the Church is to be found only in the Fellowship of the Christ." He left to become a rector in Seattle.

The rectorship of Father Harry Leigh-Pink (1952-53) was brief but he placed strong emphasis on the development of the Church School and the Navy Chapel Seaman's Institute.

The first rector, Father Augustus Martyr, 1926-52, had the longest tenure. (It would be hard for a novelist to invent a better name for a priest.) The church then met in a bungalow. The present church was begun in 1929, but the Depression and then the 1933 earthquake were serious setbacks. The debt was completely paid in the war year 1943.

All Saints began as a mission founded in 1924 by the late Father Perry Austin, rector of St. Luke's.

tionable in view of his apparent unawareness and insensitivity to the turmoil occurring in the whole area of human sexuality. There has been a devaluation of sex and a consequent dehumanization and depersonalization of human beings. The consequences are affecting all areas of society.

Mr. Clutter criticizes The Tidings for sexy stories, but very strangely withholds the basic facts. What kind of journalism is that?

The stories in the one issue that he chose to criticize dealt with the following:

A news report on pro-life demonstrations locally and nationally January 22 against the Supreme Court's pro-abortion decision.

A doctor's account of witnessing an unborn child's fight against abortion by injection.

A nationally known catechist's counsel to parents on moral sex education.

A report of an attack on the U.S. Catholic Bishops by the president of Planned Parenthood.

A report from a San Fernando Valley community on its fight against pornography. This story was in response to requests for coverage from our readership.

All of these topics are at the storm center of the news today and are too substantial to be superficially dismissed as "sexy." By concealing the specifics of the stories he criticized, Mr. Clutter misrepresented The Tidings as some sensation-seeking sexist newspaper.

I must be as frank as Mr. Clutter was and say that I am disappointed that the religion editor of a daily newspaper finds one of the central issues of our time to be boring and dull.

By the way, Mr. Clutter seems not to have checked The Tidings' masthead. Our staff does not consist of "Reverend editors" as he states. We are laymen, newspapermen. We do hope we are reverent.

We do not claim immunity to criticism. Mr. Clutter's comments are a heavy handed putdown that serves only to suffocate rather than enlighten.

Al Antezak
Managing Editor

Not sexist

Religion Editor:

As a long time subscriber and reader of the Tidings I am sorry that you are displeased with that publication and found it necessary to label it as a Sexist Newspaper while during the many years of my reading I have never found it to be in that category. I think you could find Sexist sheets around town.

I happen to know something about Sexist reading but I suspect that their long time opposition to some social ailments, Abortion, etc. may have rankled you a bit, although I do not believe as Religion Editor you would not have the necessary space in your newspaper to air your views and opinions if your advertising department could not sell their advertising, since I noted a half page of church advertising on your page. Do you tell them how to run their publications?

I can assure you that I have never found The Tidings boring or resulted in putting me asleep, so Mr. Clutter I am sure that The Tidings will carry on as usual with their ideas, interest in sports and advertising even though you are displeased as is one man's opinion freely expressed in advertising financed newspaper.

Church and sex

Religion Editor:
Since you invited criticism of the critic in your Saturday article on "Let's All Get Angry", I would like to take exception to the tone of your statement that the Roman Catholic Church seems to be obsessed with what people do in their bedrooms.

I agree that the church is, and has been quite vocal on sexual matters, but I do not think it fair or objective to scorn and/or mock this concern by branding it as "obsession" with bedroom activities.

First of all, I know that the Church is dedicated to upholding the dignity and sanctity of human life — if for no other reason than the Christian belief that man is created with an immortal soul in the image and likeness of God. To make this possible, God, in his infinite wisdom and goodness, gave man and woman the joy and beauty of sexual union primarily in order that they could cooperate in his divine plan for perpetuating humanity. Any outside forces and/or influences that tend to downgrade, demean, cheapen, attack, ridicule, or mock the sexual union that leads to the creation of so precious a thing as human life, is quite naturally repugnant to the Church.

I feel that it is fairer to state that the RC Church is vitally concerned with the unholy and unwholesome results of what people do in their bedrooms, whereas it is society that seems to be obsessed with everything that goes on in bedrooms. On the one hand, the Church is trying to uphold the dignity, beauty, spiritual quality, and proper use of the sexual act within the framework of good and secure marriages. On the other hand, so much of modern society outdoes itself in relegating sex to the gutter in every conceivable form: obscene, pornographic and depraved manner possible. Such bedroom activity as indiscriminate fornication, adultery, abortion, homosexuality, masturbation, sodomy, group sex et al does not exactly enhance the beauty, quality, and dignity of an act designed to assist in the creation of human life, as well as the cementing of wholesome love between a husband and wife.

The Church is well aware that the real strength of any great society or nation rests primarily on the stability of its family unit. For this reason, any influence which tends to distort, weaken, or dilute so important a factor as wholesome sex attitudes in marriage, is bound to be a matter of great import to the church.

In summation, it is my judgement that the Church would be derelict in its duties if it did not display a never-ending and militant stand (Yes, even by propaganda and obsessive emphasis), against the vile distortions of God's plan of LOVE, MARRIAGE, SEX & FAMILY by the money mad merchants of filth who pander unceasingly to the very worst that is in us.

William McCaughey

Orthodoxy

Religion Editor:

It is shocking beyond measure to see immorality and corruption spreading through our society at the breath-taking speed at which it is moving today. It is also astounding beyond comprehension to see the breakdown in the stand for Biblical theology among so-called Christian clergymen in this country, who deny the Virgin Birth, the blood Atonement effected on the Cross, the Physical Resurrection of Jesus Christ, etc. It is an affront to both Christians and to God to have clergymen recite the Apostles' and Nicene Creeds, who do not believe them.

In particular I observe the ordination of the LESBIAN (woman homosexual) to the order of Deacons in St. Peter's Episcopal Church in New York City on December 15 by Bishop Paul Moore, Bishop of New York. Bishop Moore has attempted to defend this action by admitting that there have been many homosexual priests in the Church. It is known now both to the Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church and to many others that there currently are a number of homosexuals in the priesthood and among Episcopal seminary students.

Add to these things many others, the sensitivity program being espoused by the Church, its assistance of black guerrillas in Africa through the World Council of Churches, the phasing out of the Book of Common Prayer, the so-called "new morality", which is nothing but the old immorality, the ordaining of women into Holy Orders, permissiveness in the areas of drugs and sex, so-called "jazz" and "folk" masses, one wonders how much further the so-called Churches of Jesus Christ can go and still consider themselves Christian, and how much longer Christian people will continue to attend them and support them.

Needless to say, The Anglican Orthodox Church, founded on faith in Jesus Christ as God's Son come in the Flesh, and on the Scriptures as God's Word, and on Biblical morality, and which uses only the Book of Common Prayer of the Episcopal Church, 1928 edition, is unequivocally opposed to the things mentioned above. This Church was organized in 1963 to preserve the Episcopal-Anglican worship, heritage, Sacraments, and traditions, and has become a worldwide Church in less than fifteen years. We wish to voice our opposition to the many changes that are being made in the Churches' teachings and practices.

An old-fashioned revival of preaching and music will be presented, beginning Monday, 7:30 p.m., by Evangelist and Mrs. Dan Hawtree at the Baptist Community Bible Church, 12226 Alondra Blvd., Norwalk. The Rev. and Mrs. Duane Strader, missionaries to the Cape Verde Islands, now home on leave, are visiting various Nazarene churches. Rev. Strader will speak Wednesday, 7 p.m., in the North Long Beach Church of the Nazarene, 37 E. Mountain View St.

The Denham sisters — Sandy, Debbie and Linda — will present a concert Sunday, 10:45 a.m., at Community Grace Brethren Church, 5885 Downey Ave. They will repeat the concert Sunday, 6:30 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Lakewood, 5336 Arbor Road.

and denounce them as the work of Satan.

We want to let the people of this country know that there is at least one Church of the Apostolic Succession, adhering to Biblical doctrine and celebrating the ancient Sacraments in existence in opposition to the forces that are destroying both Christianity and morality.

Hearsts get terror note; man jailed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Terrorists issued a communique threatening and taunting the Hearst family Friday and said Patricia Hearst would not have lived to go on trial if she had been released on bail.

The letter signed by the New World Liberation Front was hand-delivered to The Associated Press and other news media by a self-described NWLF courier. The FBI later took into custody the messenger, Jacques Rogiers, and said it believed the communique was authentic.

The FBI said Rogiers, also known as Jack Rogers, 37, was arrested without incident on a Feb. 4 bench warrant charging him with failure to appear before a federal grand jury here in connection with his dissemination of communiques reportedly prepared by the NWLF. He was jailed pending a court appearance Tuesday.

After reading a copy of the letter, Miss Hearst's father, newspaper executive Randolph Hearst, sighed: "They're just a bunch of maniacs."

THE LETTER claimed responsibility for Thursday's bombing of the Hearst Castle in San Simeon. It demanded that the Hearst family contribute $250,000 to the defense fund of William and Emily Harris, Symbionese Liberation Army members who escorted Miss Hearst through the terrorist underground after the SLA kidnaped her two years ago.

Attorney E. J. Kleines said Hearst would not comply with the terrorists' demands.

The other demand listed in the communique was: "Stop the lying that is designed to save Patty and bury the Harrises."

The letter gave the Hearsts 48 hours to meet the demands or "Hearst Castle will only be the beginning."

Hearst read it in an elevator at the trial's mid-day break while another of his five daughters, Anne, stood beside him, nervously touching her lower lip.

"It just never seems to stop, does it?" Anne said to her father.

Hearst slumped in a corner of the elevator and replied wearily, "No, it doesn't."

"WE ARE well aware of why it was decided that Patty was not to get out on bail," the letter said. "If she had, she would never have made it to her trial alive!" The "alive" was underlined in the text.

FBI agent Frank Perrone said copies of the letter would be studied and compared with past NWLF communiques claiming responsibility for a number of bombings in the San Francisco Bay area. Little is known about the NWLF.

The blast caused an estimated $1 million damage to a guest house at the castle 150 miles south of here.

LOCKHEED

of his chief priorities was the matter of refinancing the troubled corporation's debt, which now amounts to some $600 million.

Haack has been a Lockheed board member since August 1972, when he resigned as head of the New York Stock Exchange, a position he had held since 1967. He also has served as a board member of Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Besides Lockheed, another aerospace firm, the Northrop Corp., has admitted to making payments to foreign officials and then failing to reveal the payments in their financial statements to the Securities and Exchange Commission and the public.

Payments to foreign officials are not, by themselves, illegal under U.S. law, but the failure to disclose them in financial reports is unlawful.

THE SEC also announced Thursday that the Boeing Co. of Seattle is under investigation for possible illegal and improper bribes, kickbacks and political contributions. Boeing denied it has committed wrongdoing either domestically or overseas.

Bribes paid by Lockheed to foreign officials have hurt U.S. industrial efforts overseas, E.H. Boullion, president of the Boeing Commercial Airplane Co., a division of the Boeing Co., said Friday in Seattle.

"I think everybody in the United States is going to be hurt, I don't care whether it's the aerospace industry or any other industry," Boullion said in a telephone interview.

"This is hurting the foreign people who are getting themselves involved. They are going to be saying, 'there's an American company getting us in trouble.' They don't say to themselves that they were the ones that got themselves in trouble."

DISCLOSURES that Lockheed paid millions of dollars in bribes to foreign officials already have had an adverse effect on its financial picture.

According to published reports, Japan canceled a $1.3 billion purchase of 100

Lockheed antisubmarine warfare aircraft after the payoffs there were disclosed.

However, Japanese officials said Thursday that no decision had yet been made on the purchase, and a spokesman for Lockheed said Thursday a contract has not yet been awarded.

LAST Jan. 30 the General Accounting Office reported that Lockheed officials believed the firm's ability to realize its foreign sales potential could be jeopardized seriously if it was forced to disclose the details of its payments to foreign officials.

Since that time the names of some of those receiving money were disclosed through testimony before the subcommittee on multinational corporations.

In addition to the payoffs in Japan, they included alleged payments of more than $1 million to Prince Bernhard of The Netherlands, who has denied receiving them.

On Thursday Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate Banking Committee, urged the Emergency Loan Guarantee Board to impose a strict month-by-month repayment schedule against Lockheed's $250 million loan guarantee.

PROXMIRE said Lockheed repeatedly has fallen behind schedule in repaying the loan, and that the board has failed to exercise proper supervision over the loan. He said unless such a schedule is adopted he will introduce legislation to phase out the loan guarantee.

Proxmire said he was concerned about a report by the comptroller general, Elmer R. Staats. Staats told Congress earlier this week that Lockheed may not have sufficient revenues to fully repay the government-backed loans on time.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said Lockheed's finances had improved since the period covered by Staats' report, and he said the company has a much better chance of repaying its loans on time.

PATTY RECALLS KIDNAPING

"communique," she recalled tearfully, he punched her in the breasts and groin.

THE YOUNG heiress testified with her parents and four sisters looking on, their faces anguished as they heard once more the first tape recording of Miss Hearst sent from the underground just two years ago. As the tape played for jurors, Randolph Hearst sat with his left hand shielding his eyes.

Miss Hearst told during her testimony of DeFreeze's hateful words about her parents.

"He said that my parents had committed crimes against the people and that I was being held for their crimes ... He said that I could be tried for what my parents had done."

MISS HEARST, who had disavowed any radical allegiances during testimony Monday with the jury absent, continued to portray herself as victim, not ally, of kidnapers she identified as DeFreeze, Angela Atwood and William Harris. Only Harris is still alive.

After the playing of the tape recording that began, "Mom, Dad, I'm O.K.," her attorney F. Lee Bailey resumed questioning.

Bailey asked if Cinque had anything to say about her performance on the tape.

A. Yes ... He came over to me and said he'd heard from some of the sisters — the women there — that I wasn't cooperating and that I'd better not do it anymore.

Q. What did he do to you then?

A. He pinched me.

Q. Where?

A. In my breasts and down (pause) ...

Q. Private parts as well?

A. Yes.

Q. And then he left the closet?

A. Yes.

Q. And was the blindfold replaced?

A. Yes.

AT THAT point, the session ended and Miss Hearst, still sniffling, left the stand and was led quickly out of court.

After telling of her abduction, the sounds of gunfire and of Weed screaming, the distraught Miss Hearst drew a vivid picture of her life in the cell-like closet.

"The closet was really hot," she said. "You could tell the difference when they opened the door because fresh air would come in."

She said she had her first exposure to SLA rhetoric from "Cinque" an hour after she came to the closet, sometime after midnight.

"He said that they were the SLA and that I was going to be held as a prisoner of war and that if anything happened to their two comrades the same thing would happen to me."

THE COMRADES, she said, were Joseph Remiro and Russell Little, SLA "soldiers" then imprisoned in the slaying of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

She said DeFreeze indicated her kidnaping was aimed at gaining release for Remiro and Little, who were later convicted of the Foster slaying.

"... I think it was the next day that Cinque came and read me the codes of war and the statement of the aims of the SLA or something ... He told me I was in a people's prison ..."

BEGINNING to cry, her voice barely a whisper, Miss Hearst said the SLA chieftain said "that I'd be treated in accordance with the Geneva Convention," which set forth standards for the treatment of prisoners of war.

Then, she said, he began an "interrogation," asking for data on her mother, father and sisters.

"... The way he was asking them, it sounded as though he already knew the answers but he wanted to make sure I was answering correctly ... It would get to the point where Cinque got mad and said I wasn't answering the questions right and he would close the door for a while and say I better get it straight."

The next day, she said, others joined the interrogation.

"... They were still threatening me and saying things like your father's got insurance on you and it doesn't matter whether you get killed."

IT WAS AFTER several such sessions, she recalled, that they forced her to make the first tape recording, with Cinque dictating her words.

Her account of terror and torment had begun in early afternoon with the narrative of her kidnaping.

"Steve had already opened the door and there was a woman standing there ... She was in a black coat ... It was Angela Atwood. She was saying she hit a car in the basement and could she use the telephone."

"And then two other people burst in behind her ... One man was black and one man was white. They were Donald DeFreeze and William Harris."

"I was in the kitchen and Angela Atwood came up, and I screamed, and she grabbed me and pointed a pistol in my face and told me to keep quiet ... Somebody put me on the floor, and I don't know which one did it. Then William Harris tied my hands behind me."

Stanton jury off for holiday

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

The jury in the perjury trial of Dr. Frank Stanton will continue Tuesday to try to reach a verdict on whether the Long Beach physician lied about bribing former City Councilman Wayne Sharp.

The case went to the jury at 2:10 p.m. Friday, and jurors, failing to reach a verdict after two hours, were sent home for the three-day holiday weekend.

THE DOCTOR is charged with two counts of perjury himself before a 1974 federal grand jury, probing alleged bribes to city officials from Ringo, Inc., and the Long Beach Amusement Co., which Stanton headed until a month ago.

Much of the case against Stanton hinges on the testimony of convicted perjurer Sharp, who said he got $1,000 from the amusement company after a prior arrangement with Stanton. The payment was for Sharp's City Council support for a parking-lot lease renewal for the company.

The council voted to lease 5½ acres to the company for $18,000 a year, although the rental was later raised to $42,000.

In final arguments Friday, the defense contended it was not Stanton but the amusement company's general manager, Ben O'Dorisio, and Elmer Velare, a major stockholder in the company and a Pike concessionaire, who bribed Sharp.

Defense counsel George Wise said O'Dorisio and Velare set Stanton up to take the rap for the bribe Sharp testified he got.

But prosecutor James Duff said Sharp had never met Velare and approached O'Dorisio for the money only after Sharp had made a previous arrangement with Stanton.

DUFF SAID Velare and O'Dorisio told identical stories in court when they said that Stanton agreed to pay Sharp for his support.

and total tax" figures for his last five years in public office ending in 1974. He said, however, that he will not release figures for 1975 nor issue any statement of net worth.

"I have no way of knowing what my net worth is now," Reagan said. "Because all my assets have been placed in a blind trust I cannot ask nor can they (trustees) tell me how many assets fluctuate."

Ford released a financial statement Thursday showing his net worth to be $323,489. He also paid 42 per cent of his gross income in federal, state and local taxes for 1974.

More unofficial tabulations in Oklahoma's

Democratic delegate-selection process became available, showing Jimmy Carter holding a slim advantage over Fred Harris.

But the largest single block of delegates selected to attend the Feb. 29 county conventions — 41 per cent — were uncommitted to any candidate.

Incomplete returns showed 2,925 uncommitted delegates, or 41.0 per cent; Carter had 1,318 or 18.5 per cent; Harris had 1,185 or 16.6 per cent; Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas had 890 or 12.5 per cent; Alabama Gov. George Wallace had 740 or 10.4 per cent. Other candidates got 1 per cent of the delegates, a total of 74.

Hamill conquers nerves, wins gold

INNSBRUCK (AP) — Dorothy Hamill, America's figure skating queen, won a gold medal at the Winter Olympic Games Friday night with a brilliant freestyle routine and Canada's Kathy Kreiner narrowly beat Rosi Mittermaier of West Germany in the women's giant slalom to spoil Rosi's hopes of an Alpine ski grand slam.

Miss Hamill, who cried when she walked into the rink, overcame her famous case of nerves and skated a nearly-perfect program while her even more nervous mother stayed in a hotel room to watch on television.

It was America's third gold medal in these Games and Miss Hamill, of Riverside, Conn., richly deserved it. Dianne de Leeuw, who lives in Paramount but skates for The Netherlands, won the silver medal and Christine Errath of East Germany won the bronze.

Wendy Burge, 18, of Garden Grove finished sixth and 15-year-old Linda Fratianne of Los Angeles was eighth.

Miss de Leeuw, skating last and facing the virtually impossible task of catching Miss Hamill, gave a daring exhibition but stumbled on a double lutz and also on a double axel which cut her scoring.

Miss Hamill got a 5.8 of a possible 6.0 rating on technical excellence from eight of the nine judges. The American judge rated her 5.9. On the artistic part of her program, all judges rated her 5.9.

Miss de Leeuw got five ratings of 5.8 and four of 5.7 on the technical part and seven 5.8 and two 5.7 ratings on artistry.

"I started to cry when I saw a sign that people were holding in the stands," Miss Hamill said. She said she thought the sign had been hoisted by detractors but later realized

While Miss Hamill was winning, Miss Mittermaier missed by only 12-100ths of a second in her bid to become the first woman to win all three Alpine gold medals in an Olympics.

The loss came at the hands of Miss Kreiner, an unheralded Canadian, in Friday's run of the giant slalom, one in which Americans performed poorly.

Miss Kreiner claimed Canada's first gold medal, and the Russians won their 12th gold in the biathlon relay. Jan Egil Storholt of Norway won the 1,500-meter men's speed skating race on his 27th birthday.

East Germany took a strong lead on the first day of the two-day four-man bobsled competition.

The Americans failed to get a medal in the first three finals of the day, with Dan Carroll's fifth-place finish in the 1,500 the best showing until Miss Hamill's figure skating victory. Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis., who won a gold Thursday at the 1,000 meters, said he was emotionally drained and did not compete as scheduled in the event.

Sharman finds his men

After a two-month search, coach Bill Sharman of the Lakers has found the winning combination.

All the pieces fit Friday night as the Lakers exploded for a 126-112 victory over the New Orleans Saints at the Forum. It was their third win in a row and fifth in the last eight games.

Defensively, the Lakers didn't measure up to past performances, but the pace was fast from the opening buzzer and they found they could win by running and gunning.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar regained his stride, scoring 32 points, and Gail Goodrich continued his brilliant play of late by adding 30 points. Six Lakers scored in double figures.

Sharman, trying various line-ups the past two months, is getting good mileage from two reserves, Kermit Washington and Donnie Freeman. The top seven places seem to be set for the remainder of the season.

Washington provides solid rebounding, helping Abdul-Jabbar launch the fast break, and Freeman provides good defense and more firepower in the backcourt.

Freeman, sidelined three weeks with lender knees, contributed 18

LBCC runs win streak to eight

By PAUL McLEOD

Bill Fraser stood near the Long Beach City College bench immediately after the Vikings struggled to their eighth successive Metropolitan Conference victory, downing visiting East Los Angeles Friday, 78-71.

"This was an exact duplicate of Tuesday," said the LBCC coach in reference to the Vikings' sloppy, 71-67 home court victory over Valley. "I'd sure like to bury someone sometime and take a break from all this, but this conference never allows any breathing room."

Then Fraser got the news and his tone changed. Visiting Mission College had upset Pasadena, 89-82 and dropped the Lancers two games behind the Vikings with four to play.

"Well, I guess this gives us some breathing room," he said with a smile. "That takes a little pressure off us."

The Viking win was marred by the loss of sixth-man Mickey Chislock, removed from the game by stretcher with 8:06 remaining in the first half after hitting a 15-foot jumper that put the Vikings ahead 23-15. On his follow through Chislock landed on the left foot or heel of East L.A.'s Dan Holleard and, off balance, crashed to the court in agony. He was taken to Lakewood

Doctor's Hospital for X-rays to determine if his right ankle was broken. Chislock, whom Fraser has relied upon all season to control the defensive backboards late in the game, was averaging 6.6 points and four rebounds a contest.

'Unknown' shares S.D. Open lead

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — Until he visited a former Long Beach amateur champion for lessons last fall, Mike Morley was just another golfer on the PGA tour.

Now the 29-year-old from Minot, N. Dak., is the best-playing "unknown" on the circuit with $38,140 in earnings, including a second-place finish in the Crosby and a tie for fourth in Hawaii.

Morley moved into a tie with J.C. Snead for the midway lead in the Andy Williams-San Diego Open Friday, carding a 6-under-par 66 at North Torrey Pines for a two-round total of 133, 11-under-par.

It was the 14th time in 25 rounds this year that Morley, an Arizona State graduate who prepped at La Jolla High, has shot in the 60s. His worst finish in five tournaments was a tie for 22nd at Tucson.

Only Johnny Miller, Ben Crenshaw and Bob Gilder have won more than Morley this year and all were tournament winners. Morley has never won and, in fact, had averaged only $18,700 for six years, that figure going up in 1975 when he collected $41,102.

The man behind Morley's success is Joe Nichols, who at age 14 won the Long Beach City Championship in 1930. Nichols lives in Phoenix, hasn't played competitive golf in 20 years but teaches at a driving range.

Nichols' system is so complicated, says Morley, that he finds it almost impossible to explain.

"Everybody used to laugh at the guy because his techniques were so strange... scary, in fact," said Morley, who first visited Nichols in 1974 but needed a full year before he fully understood how to put the teachings into practice.

"I guess the simplest way to put it is that he teaches leverage," explained Mike. "I've been exercising the club the way he tells me and I'm now convinced he knows what he's talking about. But there are a lot of guys who don't think his methods are worth anything."

Another young touring pro who agrees with Morley is Howard Twitty, also from Arizona. Twitty put those teachings to good use in the Phoenix Open, finishing second behind Miller.

"I was fairly well stumped when I went to him," said Morley. "My game had gone about as far as it could go, and that wasn't good. I think Nichols is a genius. He tied all the loose ends together for me."

Morley, whose wedge play has improved dramatically under Nichols' guidance, collected five birdies and 3-putted once for his only bogey on the easier North course, which is only 6,567 yards.

L.B. Rodeo opens; winner? the bull

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

Eight seconds on a ferocious bull can seem like a lifetime.

Larry Smith didn't come close to going the distance on Old Brindle Friday night and probably saw his life pass before his eyes in the process. The Elk Grove cowboy lost his death grip, was tossed, lit on the back of his neck and was jabbed a few times by his riled foe.

Medics carried Smith off on a stretcher with a possible concussion, the lone casualty in the first of three performances of the 14th Long Beach Rodeo.

Entry fees are expensive and Smith's short ride was a costly one. For Tony Medeiros, staying aboard Super Star may prove richly rewarding. He scored 75 points aboard the black beauty with the white face, leading mark in an event boasting a $1,850 purse.

"It could be worth $700 if it holds up the next two days," said the lean youngster from Gustine. Medeiros, who has placed in only one of four rodeos this young season, won't be around to collect his bull riding paycheck, though.

"I'm flying out tonight to ride in San Antonio Saturday, and I've got rodeos in Jackson, Miss., and Reno before going back to San Antonio next weekend."

Such is the hectic life of the circuit-riding cowboy—here today and gone tomorrow—but the brief stopover in Long Beach meant something more to Tony than possibly increasing his bankroll.

The rider may be little more than a novice pro, but the bull is a veteran National Finals Rodeo performer and aptly named.

"That's only the second time I've been on Super Star and the first time I've ridden him. Last year in Hayward, he gored me in the side of the head and shoulder," said Medeiros, pointing to a scar next to his right eye, "so I was really keyed up tonight."

Medeiros, a fuzzy-cheeked 19-year-old, has been riding professionally since leaving high school three years ago. "By going to college I would have had to pass up most of the better rodeos."

Tony didn't make much of a run at

Joe Alexander's single event record of $41,184 last season.

"I earned about $4,700 and I guess I might have come close to breaking even. I got into about 40 rodeos and you need to enter at least 100 to do well."

The bulls decisioned the cowboys, 7-5, Friday while the bareback brones won by a 5-2 margin. Lyle Sankey of Rose Hill, Kans., No. 7 money winner among saddle bronc riders this season, took the early lead in bareback competition with a 61-point effort aboard NFR participant Miss Reno.

Wayne Hall of Greenville, Texas, currently the season's third richest bull rider, spurred tough Harlem Bay to a 62-point ride and first place in saddle bronc.

Shabbiest Olympiad since 1896? Summer Games: trouble, rubble

By GEORGE PUSCAS
Knight News Service

Looking at the mess in Montreal, one cannot help but gasp in wonder.

What is happening there likely will change the Olympic Games for many years to come, for not soon again will multi-million dollar promises be made by countries seeking to host the activity.

Montreal is the latest and most disturbing example yet of the excesses inspired by the world's greatest sports carnival.

Always the fight has been hot among the world's sporting nations to become the presenter of the Games.

There are many reasons. Pride is one, for the host city and country gain such attention through the Olympics they are able to show off their very best attributes to the world.

Sometimes the Olympics are money-makers for the host cities, although there is yet a stronger reason why the Games are so coveted.

The desire is to use the Olympics to help rebuild a city...a giant stadium and accompanying sports facilities, newly created businesses, athletic domes that become public housing for thousands.

Much of it is funded by

Deadline: July 17

the federal government. It is so in every Olympic host city, and they all gain what amounts to a nearly free face-lift. But Montreal is in a heap of trouble and rubble, buried deep in debt and unable to fulfill its promises as the Summer Olympics approach.

The grandiose stadium designs have been altered so drastically, construction has fallen so far behind schedule, that Montreal likely will present the shabbiest Olympics since the Games were rejuvenated in 1896.

Worse, the government's money problems have become so severe it likely will be years before the stadium is completed to plan, if it ever is.

In July, the main stadium will lack permanent toilet facilities. Hundreds of portable units are on order and maybe they will be installed, maybe not.

A high percentage of the stadium seats will be temporary installations, and there is no guarantee there will be 76,000 seats, as sold. There is no firm guarantee even at this late date that the stadium will be ready.

Before these Games expire, somebody in Montreal likely will go to jail, for charges of official bribery, conniving among construction leaders, of cost overcharges and theft are made almost daily in the Paris of the West.

Originally, the Olympic Games facilities and production carried a budget of $310 million. The costs have soared, according to some reports, to an astounding $1.2 billion — that much for an uncompleted project which will require still more money.

The Olympics will start July 17, end Aug. 1. Maybe.

giant slalom that she would not talk to newsmen, and America's biathlon relay, and four-man bobs teams finished near the bottom of the pack.

The Soviet Union has a firm stranglehold on the medal standings with 12 golds and a total of 28 medals in 31 events. East Germany is second with six golds and 16 total, and the U.S. third with three golds and a total of 10.

The young U.S. hockey team can add to that total today when it meets West Germany. An American victory would clinch the bronze.

Miss Mittermaier said she thought one slight error cost her the Olympic ski triple crown. "I didn't think I would ski on the safe side, but I didn't take one gate round enough. That's where I lost time. It was a tiny mistake."

But 12-hundredths of a second is one tiny blink of an eyelash, and on such margins are ski races won.

Miss Kreiner skied first on a light layer of new snow and said, "I think it was an advantage. It was easier to hang on in that type of snow." Miss Mittermaier skied fourth and the times got progressively slower as the skiers passed down the snow.

"I'm glad I was as close as I was," she said. "It would be very unfitting if I was not satisfied with two gold medals and a silver."

Danielle Debernard of France won the bronze medal with a time of 1:29.95 on the 1,225-meter trail with a drop of 385 meters.

THE HIGHEST placed American was Lindy Cochran, 22, of Richmond, Vt., who was 12th in 1:31.33. Mary Seaton, 19, of Hancock, Mich., was 17th in 1:31.58. Miss Nelson, 20, who won a bronze in the downhill, toured the course in 1:32.02 while winding up 21st. Leslie Smith, 17, of Killington, Vt., was 27th in 1:34.54.

"I'm disappointed with the performances of all four of our girls," said U.S. ski coach Hank Tauber. "It was the first race in which none of them did well. But I'm happy the Canadian girl won."

At the speed skating rink, scores of Norwegians leaped out of the stands, waving flags, cheering and singing in glee over Storbolt's gold medal in the 1,500-meter race. Russia's Yuri Kondakov was second and Hans Van Helten of The Netherlands was third.

Storbolt set an Olympic record of 1:53.38. The first seven finishers beat the old mark of 2:02.96, set by Ard Schenk of The Netherlands in 1972.

Expert marksmanship by Russian cross country skiers helped give them a gold medal in the biathlon relay, an event in which contestants ski 30 kilometers (18.6 miles) cross country, stopping to shoot at targets.

THE SOVIET quartet of Aleksandr Elizarov, Ivan Baikov, Nikolai Kruglov and Aleksandr Tikhonov covered the distance in 1 hour, 57 minutes, 55.64 seconds. Finland was second and East Germany third.

The U.S. team of Lyle Nelson, Boise, Idaho; Dennis Donahue, Worcester, Vt.; John Morton, Anchorage, Alaska; and Peter Dascoulias, Tilton, N.H., was 11th in 2:10:17.72.

East Germany took a commanding lead at the halfway point in the four-man bobsled competition which ends today. The East Germans, with Meinhard Nehmer steering, had an aggregate time of 1:49.07 for two runs. West Germany was second and Switzerland third.

The top U.S. sled, piloted by James Morgan of Saranac Lake, N.Y., was 14th in 1:52.17. The other American sled, driven by William Hellock of Lake Placid, N.Y., was 19th in 1:53.47.

Cerritos advances to finals

Dave Patterson hurled a two-hitter and Cerritos scored three runs in the third inning Friday to advance to the finals of the Casey Stengel tournament with a 4-1 victory over defending champion Hancock.

Cerritos will meet Cal Poly Pomona junior varsity, a 7-1 victor over Saddleback, in the finals at Golden West College today at 2:30.

Patterson, who struck out six, did not allow a ball out of the infield and 18 grounders were turned into outs. He yielded singles in the first and eighth innings, and the lone Hancock run was unearned.

Jim Wilson and Mike Carpenter knocked in runs for Cerritos in the third inning when the Falcons took advantage of two Hancock errors for the winning rally.

U.S. hockey team 'peaks'

Associated Press

Left wing Steve Jensen, fastest shooter on the U.S. Olympic ice hockey team, will be gunning for the West German goal and a bronze medal today in the 12th Winter Games.

"I think all the guys are mentally prepared for a big victory," Jensen said Friday. "We seem to be peaking, gaining more confidence, while the other teams are getting weaker."

To win the bronze medal, the U.S. team needs at least a tie with West Germany, the other surprise team in the six-nation round-robin tournament.

"Maybe it's their German blood, but for some reason they're a little more aggressive and hit harder than the other European teams," Jensen said of the United States' final opponent. "The Germans also have constant flow on the ice—not stop and go but continuous circulation—and they're a good passing club."

Great day for kites, but . . .

U.S. speedskater Dan Carroll, on the 40 mph winds that hampered the competition: "It was like a lottery. The wind was the decisive factor. A half dozen people could have won it depending on the wind at the time of the race," Carroll was fifth.

Said seventh-place finisher Eric Heiden of Madison Wis.: "I was blown backward when I turned into the stretch. I had a hard time going those last 80 yards." Heiden got a starting assignment when teammate Charles Gilmore of Anaheim pulled out.

Schotting takes his best shot

On the subject of speedskating, the U.S. coach, Peter Schotting, said he would not return unless there is improvement in financial guarantees and improved facilities.

"Unless we can get a track suitable for training 180 days a year, there is no future for this sport in the United States," said the 32-year-old native of The Netherlands.

Under Schotting, the U.S. speed skating team has won six of America's nine medals at the Games including golds by Sheila Young of Detroit and Peter Mueller of Mequon, Wis.

'Yankee si, Cuba no!'

It's good to hear cheers instead of boos and catcalls for American athletes in the Winter Olympic Games, says the president of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"It's such a contrast to the experience we had in the Pan American Games at Mexico City last October," Philip Krumm added. "Down there, the crowds were generally hostile to our team. They whistled and hooted and made a point of cheering for our rivals, especially Cuba. I can't understand why they were cheering so much for Cuba. Nobody ever goes to Cuba."

Waldheim to attend

United Nations secretary-general Kurt Waldheim is expected to attend Sunday's closing ceremony of the XII Winter Olympics. Waldheim will go on to Vienna on Monday to oversee peace talks between Greek-Cypriot negotiator Glafkos Clerides and Turkish-Cypriot leader Rauf Denkash.

Winter Games heat up

For the organizers of the Innsbruck Olympics, today, the final full day of competition, shapes up as the "hottest" with four medal finals running simultaneously. The men's slalom, speed skating, four-man bobs and ice hockey will be contested.

Speedy induction

Kathy Kreiner, who won the gold medal in the women's giant slalom Friday, immediately was selected to the Canadian Sports Hall of Fame.

Midwinter Regatta unfurls sails today

The 47th Southern California Yachting Association's Midwinter Regatta, the annual kickoff for the sailing season, begins today with 14 clubs acting as hosts to nearly 100 classes.

The majority of the action will center in Long Beach-Los Angeles harbors.

Serving as hosts in Long Beach will be the Alamitos Bay Yacht Club (470; International-14; Lido-14 A, B, C; National One-Design; Snipe A and B, Force 5, Laser A and B), Little Ships Fleet of Long Beach (PCC, PHRF A, B, C; Ranger-26; Columbia-22 and Day Sailer) and the Long Beach Yacht Club (Cal-29, Cal-25, Santana-27, Excalibur-26; Coronado-25; Cal 20 A and B).

As regatta officials were readying for today's events, word came from Manzanillo, Mexico, that Ragtime, the famed 62-foot sloop representing the Long Beach Yacht Club, made a clean sweep in the San Diego-Manzanillo race that ended earlier this week.

Ragtime not only was the first yacht to finish, taking a trophy for that, but also took top honors in corrected time for Class A and the entire fleet. Dr. Bill White and Bill Pasquini, co-owners and co-skipper, hoisted a battered broom to Ragtime's masthead late Wednesday, signifying the triple victory. The time from San Diego to Manzanillo was 7 days, 16 hours, 35 minutes and 51 seconds.

Jolie (San Diego YC) was second in Class A, with Endless Summer (British Columbia YC) taking third place. Dandelion, Richard Reagan's yacht also representing LBVC, was in Class C but her time at this writing had not been computed.

Will the Trojans win another game this season?

What remaining followers coach Bob Boyd's beleaguered troopers have in their corner may get an answer to that question tonight when USC engages Washington State in the L.A. Sports Arena at 8 o'clock.

With six games remaining, the frustration of losing mounts. It's no secret the Trojans are feeling the strain of their eight-game plunge in Pacific-8 play.

"I guess fatigue is a factor and our young players can't seem to sustain their concentration over the complete game," Boyd said after the Trojans' setback to Washington on Thursday.

"In the whole game we played well about 17 minutes. It looks like the game is too long for us. We go in long streaks where the game gets away from us."

Looking ahead to tonight's encounter, Boyd said, "We have to get a win and this team has to maintain a degree of positiveness in the position we find ourselves if we're going to win."

Although Washington State lost to UCLA by 26 points two days ago, even the hardest Trojan backers are reluctant to predict a win tonight. Coach George Raveling's Cougars defeated USC 80-72 a week ago and are 4-4 in Pac-8 play and 13-6 over-all.

After watching USC's record sag to 11-10 for the season, Boyd was critical of Marv Safford's performance against the Huskies. The Trojans' leading scorer (18.5 point average) was held to four points.

"I don't have any excuse for Safford's play; there's no explanation for his ineffectiveness. He was playing with hesitancy. He wasn't aggressive, he wasn't attacking the goal."

However, Boyd can't explain the over-all losing syndrome.

"Our whole bench was alive during the Washington game and very active. We had excellent practices this week. We had a good attitude. That's what makes it so hard."

Raveling said before the start of the two-game Southland invasion that "to get back into the race, we must win both games in Los Angeles."

Eagle earns Morley tie

The highlight of his round was an eagle-3 on the ninth hole, which was the 18th for Mike. He hit a drive, 3-wood and dropped a 40-foot putt. Of the five birds, the longest putt was 10 feet.

Snead, who won here in a playoff last year, posted a 4-under 68 on the South, the course which will be used for the final 36 holes. Because of continued soggy conditions, winter rules will remain in effect, a decided bonus for all the golfers.

Still carrying his four-leaf clover, Snead said he didn't play as well as he did Thursday when he posted a 68. But he putted better. He had to since he missed five greens. He got the ball up-and-down for pars each time.

Snead's best shot was a chip-in for a bird on No. 14. A day earlier he holed out an 8-iron for an eagle.

Australian Bruce Crampton backed up his first-round 66 with a 68 and is in third place at 134-under-par, one stroke ahead of Don January (65) and Don Bies (66) and Jim Masserini (67). January shot his 65 on the tough South course which measures 7,047 yards.

Rookie Jerry Pate and Great Britain's Pete Oosterveld, 66 shooters on Thursday, settled for 71s Friday and are deadlocked.

Kings take on Montreal

MONTREAL (Special)—The Kings run into an opponent this afternoon that is on fire.

The Montreal Canadiens, who hold a commanding 26-point lead over coach Bob Pulford's Kings skaters, are burned up after absorbing their first loss to Vancouver in regular season play dating back to 1970. The defeat was only the Canadiens' second at home this season (23-2-4) and their eighth over-all (40-8-8).

Surprisingly, the Kings are flushed with success after their 7-4 conquest of the Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday as Marcel Dionne popped in three third-period goals to move into fourth place among NHL scorers with 70 points.

Today's match will be televised over KTLA (5) at 11:30 a.m. The Kings embarrassed the Canadiens 7-3 two weeks ago in Los Angeles.

The Kings, 1-0-1 in their four-game trip, lead third-place Pittsburgh by 10 points and hold a 19-point advantage over Detroit, which is struggling to claim the third and last playoff spot in the Norris Division. The Kings play in Pittsburgh Sunday.

Rozhdestvensky levels with the Philharmonic

By DAVID LEVINSON

Gennady Rozhdestvensky, demonstrated as guest conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Thursday that he can play light music without making it trivial and serious music without making it neurotic.

His conducting of Mendelssohn's overture, "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage" and the Mendelssohn first piano concerto was engagingly cheerful. He approached the orchestra and the music with a beatific smile — and firm if cheerful ideas of what he wanted.

PIANIST Gary Graffman was allowed to shape the concerto his way, which was straightforwardly brilliant, if somewhat subdued, but there was no doubt that Rozhdestvensky was an equal collaborator; and, finally, the interpretation owed most to his genial presence.

He is the gentlest of showmen. He uses no podium but stands level with his musicians. He gets a crescendo with no more than a smile and an outstretched palm. When the crescendo has met his requirements, he nods. After bowing to the first applause, he steps back to share the honors with the orchestra.

The big work of the evening was Shostakovich's eighth symphony. In Rozhdestvensky's hands it seemed Mahlerian not only in its proportions but in its inspiration. It was the most persuasive presentation of a large Shostakovich symphony I have ever heard.

IF THE SMILE was not there for most of this tragic work, the relaxed control was. Sometimes Rozhdestvensky got his effect by leaning slightly into a note or phrase, as a sports car driver feels rather than steers his way around a curve. Once he folded his arms and stood back for a minute or so, listening and enjoying.

The orchestra responded with a performance of power, virtuosity, and — when Shostakovich required a fearful racket from brass and percussion — some of the biggest sounds the Philharmonic has ever made. The concert will be repeated at the Music Center Pavilion at 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

'Issues and Answers' to begin campaign coverage on Feb. 22

By LEE WINFREY
Knight News Service

"Issues and Answers," ABC's long-running weekend discussion show, will begin its television coverage of the 1976 presidential campaign this month by questioning four or five Democrats running in the New Hampshire primary.

Facing questions will be Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, Jimmy Carter of Georgia, Fred Harris of Oklahoma, Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, and possibly Sargent Shriver, former director of the Peace Corps. The show will be broadcast Feb. 22, two days before the voting in New Hampshire.

Peggy Whedon, producer of "Issues and Answers," outlined the show's campaign coverage plans in a telephone interview.

To try to keep itself from being smothered in campaign fodder during an election year, "Issues and Answers" tries to limit its primary coverage to a basic package of about six or seven shows, most of them keyed to some major event during the campaign.

Thus, "Issues" second campaign show of the year will be broadcast

Feb. 29, two days before the voting in the Massachusetts primary. It will feature Democratic candidates who are running in Massachusetts but haven't done much in New Hampshire: Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington, Gov. Milton Shapp of Pennsylvania, and possibly Gov. George Wallace of Alabama.

Later "Issues" shows concentrating on the campaign will be on April 25, two days before the Pennsylvania primary; June 6, two days before the California primary; and on July 11 and Aug. 15, the Sundays before the Democratic and Republican national conventions.

Ms. Whedon said at least two other campaign shows will probably also be run, their dates not set, starring President Ford and Ronald Reagan.

Asked how many presidential campaigners had ever turned down a chance to be on her interview show, Ms. Whedon indicated that that happens about as often as panhandlers turn down free money.

"The problem isn't the acceptance rate," she said.

"It's whether the week you want him is the week he's in town, or in the country, or available."

"Last week, for example, everybody wanted (resigned United Nations Ambassador Daniel Patrick) Moynihan on. We've had him on before and he's a good guest. But last week he wasn't going to do anything no matter what."

Ms. Whedon said she has seen no indication herself of the faded apathy among the voters that so many pundits have been talking about this year.

"We have every reason to believe the opposite," she said. "We had over 200 requests for transcripts on the (Sen. Hubert) Humphrey show we did last month. That's twice as many as usual."

About 760 "Issues and Answers" shows have been broadcast since the question-and-answer series began more than 15 years ago. Ms. Whedon said Humphrey held the record for most appearances, with 23, followed by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., in second place with 16.

Firm seeks 'stripping' ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission is being asked to ban multiple episodes such as game shows in the same week of television programs during the first hour of prime time, when network TV is restricted.

Former FCC Commissioner Kenneth A. Cox, attorney for Sandy Frank Program Sales Inc., said leading the hour with such episodes reduces diversity of programming and "shrinks the number of independent producers and distributors," such as Frank, which can survive.

The petition filed with the FCC this week objects to multiple showing — called "stripping" — of such programs as "Beat the Clock," "Hollywood Squares," "Let's Make a Deal," "Merv Griffin" and others.

It would exempt news and public affairs programs and apply only to the top 50 markets.

Frank informally made the proposal while the FCC was deciding over a year ago to ban network television, except for children's, documentary and public affairs, between 7 and 8 p.m. Eastern and Pacific Time and between 8 and 7 p.m. Central and Mountain Time.

The commission said then the proposal was not made in time to be considered in the proceeding, but invited Frank to make the proposal later.

"This is to a degree an interesting idea, and one which might appeal to numerous persons, without any axe to grind as one which should be adopted," the FCC said then.

"However, it is a radical departure, and might well be labeled, perhaps properly, as an 'elitist' kind of commission action — telling a viewer he cannot watch his favorite after-supper program two or five nights a week, but may view it only once and be content with less appealing fare ... on the other nights. Obviously, this would require substantial exploration before it could be considered for action," the FCC said.

In view of those comments, Cox said Frank has "decided to submit this formal request for rule-making in order to get its proposal before the public for comment and eventual adoption by the commission."

The petition said the prime time rule has achieved much of its goal of opening up the first hour of prime time to local programs or programs independently produced for national syndication.

But the independent producers who sell their program on a market-by-market basis "do not have the advantage of the networks' monolithic clearance and distribution systems" for such programs, the petition said.

"In these circumstances," Frank said, "the growth of the multiple exposure and stripping of programs — which is an easy way out for lazy station licensees — has both inhibited the healthy growth of the independent television program industry and retarded the optimum use of access time for local, community-oriented public affairs programs."

Frank said its study shows that out of 1,500 half hours in the top 50 markets about 428 are now occupied by programs which are stripped three or more times a week, and an additional 134 half hours are devoted to two episodes.

Tricounty Amtrak service faces new delays

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The start of train service sponsored by three counties to link Los Angeles and San Diego, as well as a separate intercity train sponsored by Los Angeles County alone, may be delayed because of escalating costs.

In a meeting Friday in Santa Ana, Amtrak officials told directors of the County Transportation Service Organization (CTSO), a confederation of Los Angeles, Orange and San Diego counties, of the rising costs.

Amtrak officials said train service cost has been raised from $266,000 annually for two trains to $410,000 yearly for only one train per day.

The revised cost estimates revealed at the meeting seemed to stun CTSO directors. Baxter Ward of Los Angeles, Ralph Clark of Anaheim and Louis Conde of San Diego, all supervisors in their respective counties.

They began a search for new funding, since Amtrak had warned for months that passenger service would not pay operating costs.

Starting dates for the intercity train service have been delayed

many times, and may be deferred once more from the planned starting dates of April 25 for the tricounty project and April 28 for the Los Angeles County-sponsored train.

Ward had conceived the Los Angeles County-owned train and, in the face of mounting financial hurdles, recently submitted new funding proposals which are under study.

Amtrak estimated costs of $9.98 per train mile and revenues of $3.51 per train mile, based on 225 passengers per train each way.

The CTSO would face an annual deficit of $615,000, Amtrak estimated, and would need new sources of funding from federal and state governments to guarantee operating costs.

Both the tri-county and Los Angeles County services would be on Amtrak-controlled lines owned by the Santa Fe Railway, which once operated commuter service on its own.

The three-county venture into the mass transit business came after governmental leaders complained that Santa Fe service was inadequate and the successor, Amtrak, also does not operate enough trains to meet passenger needs.

If CTSO started April 25, its operating budget would be $110,000 in the red by the end of the fiscal year. It would expand to a $615,000 deficit for the 1976-77 fiscal year, the estimate said.

The Los Angeles County train's costs would also soar, and be compounded by Amtrak's notation that its crew would have to stay overnight in San Diego, thus adding lodging and meals costs to the already-high operating estimates. It might be as high as $13 per train mile, it was estimated, with the result that operating deficits would mount.

Filings for election will begin Monday

From Our L.A. Bureau

The filing period for statewide and local elections opens Monday, County Registrar-Recorder Leonard Panish said Friday.

Although Monday is an official county holiday, he said his offices would be open at 8 a.m. to handle the anticipated initial rush to file papers.

FILING will remain open from Monday through March 12 at 5 p.m. However, if an incumbent for any Senate, Assembly, judicial or county office fails to file by that deadline, the law extends the filing period for an extra five days.

Partisan offices to be filled include that of U.S. senator, the seat held by Democrat John Tunney, as well as 17 congressional seats, four of which are shared with neighboring counties.

Other partisan offices to be filled include eight senatorial seats and 30 Assembly seats.

Nonpartisan offices to be filled include 56 Superior Court judgeships, 71 Municipal Court judgeships and one judgeship of the justice court for Catalina Island.

OTHER nonpartisan offices up for election are those of district attorney, held by incumbent John Van de Kamp; Second District supervisor, held by Kenneth Hahn; Fourth District supervisor, held by James Hayes, and Fifth District supervisor, held by Baxter Ward.

The registrar's office has been accepting declarations of intention to run for state legislative and judicial offices. That filing period ended Wednesday.

In the Long Beach area the following candidates had filed intentions to run for state offices, before the Wednesday closing:

Senate District 31—Long Beach Councilwoman Renee Simon, Democrat, and Sen. George Deukmejian, Republican.

Deukmejian currently represents the 37th Senatorial District, but the district lines have been redrawn and he must seek re-election to the Senate in the new district.

Senate District 33—Cecil Green, Norwalk; Louis Albert Newsome, Norwalk; Betty Wilson, Santa Fe Springs; Lawrence Walsh, Downey, and Gerald Olivet, Whittier, all Democrats, and Andy Harrison, Whittier; William Campbell, Hacienda Heights; Angel Luis Soto, Cerritos, and Phil Ortiz, Downey, all Republicans.

ASSEMBLY District 57—Incumbent Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, and Harold Ward, Long Beach, Republican.

Assembly District 58—Incumbent Fred W. Chel, D-Long Beach, and Jack W. Bentley, Long Beach; Dale L. Dykema, Long Beach; and James L. Wright, Long Beach, all Republicans.

have extensive experience in assisting refugees.

Topics for the five weekly forums are:

—Feb. 18, "Who Are We? Part I," a look at the historical background of Southeast Asians.

—Feb. 25, "Who Are We? Part II," a review of the cultural heritage of Southeast Asians.

—March 3, "Language Skills," an introduction to Vietnamese, Cambodian and English as a second language.

—March 10, "What Do We Do Next?" Presentations on short range problem-solving, cultural interaction and educational opportunities.

—March 17, "The Future of Southeast Asian Americans," longer-range problem-solving, vocational training and planning for jobs and citizenship.

Reservations for the course may be made by calling the Long Beach School for Adults.

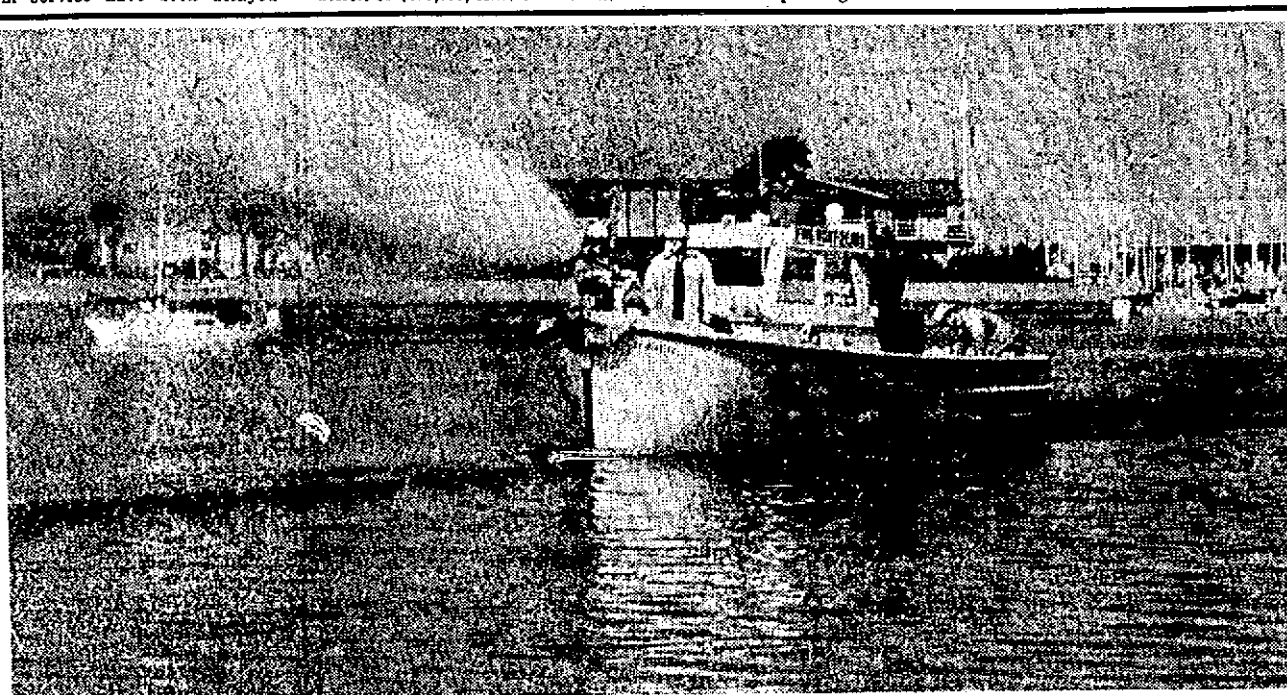

Freedom Train was parked during its Long Beach visit.

Work to be done under the contract includes construction of an 8-foot redwood fence, portions of which can be removed to provide access to the drill sites by heavy equipment, and the installation of a sprinkler system and landscaping.

Harbor Drive contract awarded

A $119,814 contract to beautify Harbor Scenic Drive next to drill sites J-1, J-2 and J-3 on Pier J has been awarded by the Long Beach City Council to Moulder Brothers of Glendale.

The drill sites are along the south side of Harbor Scenic Drive, across from the Queen Mary parking lot and in the area where the

Quartet mans Marina fireboat 3

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

When Johnny Olsen and Lee Adams were in the fifth grade together at Seaside Elementary School, they would skip school and play hide-and-seek on the double-deck Pine Avenue pier.

Olsen has a small sepia-toned picture in his scrap book of a tow-headed kid in a tanktop bathing suit standing in front of the pier.

"That's me," he said with a twinkle in his blue eyes. "I don't have any of Lee in this scrap book. Actually, we stopped hanging around together for a while...I think it was after we found out we were both going out with the same girl."

But that was years ago and time and circumstances have thrown the two together again.

Along with firemen Claude Vatter and Thurston Vance, the two are part of a Long Beach Fire Department crew that protects the most expensive property (per acre) in the city—the marina.

Adams is the captain of the four-man crew. Olsen holds Long Beach Fire Department badge number 1 which signifies he has more seniority than any of the other 450 firemen in Long Beach.

Outside the fire house, 221 Marina Dr., fireboat number 3 is parked in its slip.

The 38-foot craft has been in service since 1941 when it became the first of three fireboats in the Long Beach fleet.

A red turret capable of shooting 1,000 gallons of water per minute is mounted on the bow of the white-cedar-plank boat. Sophisticated equipment able to detect dangerous gas vapors is stored inside the wheelhouse, along with a resuscitator and other conventional fire-fighting equipment.

"We're trained to fight fires both at sea and on land," Adams said. "In fact, our jurisdiction stretches over a number of zones which includes the Marina Pacifica complex and houses that border the Alamitos Bay area.

"Gasoline vapors are the biggest fire danger at sea," Adams said. "One of the worst fires I can remember was the time a cabin cruiser blew up. We thought we had the fire out and were mopping up when the cabin exploded sending one of our men flying into the air. He landed in the water a few hundred feet away—dazed, but not a scratch on him. Man, that was one scary fire."

"One cup of gasoline has the explosive power of three sticks of dynamite," Adams continued. "I think boat owners sometimes forget how dangerous a little bit of gas really is."

Canvas pants with the cuffs neatly folded over yellow boots sat at the side of each bed in the bunkroom.

"It takes us exactly one minute from the time we hear the fire alarm, to get into our fire-fighting pants and boots and onto the boat with lines untied and ready to go," Vatter said.

Vatter has been a fireboat operator for 18 years, including five years on the Long Beach Harbor patrol.

The tall, muscular fire fighter walked through the fire station, pausing in a garage attached to the main building.

"This is where I sleep," he said pointing to a small bed in the corner of the garage. "I'm a light sleeper and I just can't stand the snoring that thunders through the bunkroom at night."

Olsen and Vance sat at a long table in the combined dining area and kitchen.

While Olsen told about plans for entering the 45-foot-mast head sloop he just finished building in an upcoming race, Vance looked hungrily toward the refrigerator.

It was Adams' turn to cook dinner and he had promised his specialty—chicken fried steak with mashed potatoes and gravy.

Redevelopment agency

15 suing to curb Lakewood auto mall

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

The Lakewood city redevelopment agency and several officials were sued Friday by 15 residents who have asked for an injunction halting a proposed auto mall.

The suit, filed by Long Beach attorney Norman Gottlieb, asks the Norwalk Superior Court to find that the agency's actions violate state redevelopment law, to void a pending lease agreement with Cannon Chevrolet and to prevent the issuance of $2.1 million in redevelopment bonds.

The city council, voting 4-1 as the agency board, in January approved a plan by City Manager Milton Farrell that would use the bonds to purchase 5.53 acres of land at the southwest corner of Lakewood Boulevard and Hardwick Street.

The land, mostly owned by financier S. Mark Taper, would be leased by Cannon, which is now located at the northwest corner of Hardwick Street and Lakewood Boulevard, for $54,000 annually.

Approximately $500,000 worth of the land would be immediately resold, according to the plan. No exact acreage was available.

The action was taken by the city to keep Cannon from leaving the city and taking $70,000 annually in sales tax funds with him. The agreement commits Cannon to build a new showroom worth a minimum of $850,000.

Gottlieb said that the lease does not conform to the original purpose of the auto mall and constitutes an illegal gift of public funds. This, the suit claims, is because public funds are being used for the gain of a private corporation.

Additionally, the agency allegedly failed to hold hearings required by the state, the complaint charges.

The suit, which came as a surprise to city officials, was filed in the middle of a council race involving three of the four who voted for the agency.

Farrell, when informed of the accusations, said they were "obviously not true." He had not seen the suit documents and could not respond specifically.

He noted, however, that the required hearings had been held and that there was no gift of public funds involved, as the money was being used to keep Lakewood economically healthy.

"This is sad news," Farrell said, "because it's nothing more than harassment. It's discouraging."

He did not know what immediate impact the suit could have on the complex auto mall deal.

The suit says that the net return to the city was only $54,000 in lease payments. Farrell pointed out that the improvements would attract another $30,000 in sales tax and that some of the property tax increases could be used for purposes other than retiring the bonds.

Named as defendants were the city council, the redevelopment agency, Cannon Chevrolet, Lakewood Center, Mark Hannaford, Wayne Piercy, Sheila Pokras, Charles Schweitzer, William Young and Larry Van Nostran.

Hannaford, now a Long Beach congressman, and Schweitzer, defeated in 1972, were on the council when it originally enacted the redevelopment statute.

Veterans Hospital officials plead for brain scanner

Medical-Science Editor

Officials at the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital are spending thousands of dollars to obtain services from a community hospital because they lack much-needed equipment, a physician told a Congressional hearing in Long Beach Friday.

Dr. H. F. Pribram, chief of the radiology service at the hospital, said the Veterans Hospital badly needs a CAT brain scanner—a device termed by many doctors as one of this century's major medical advances. Pribram termed the device the beginning of the jet age in radiology.

The scanner is an X-ray device that shows the brain area through a new technique known as computerized tomography. The procedure is also known as computed axial tomography.

But since the facility doesn't have one because of lack of funds, it must send certain selected patients all the way to Little Company of Mary Hospital in Torrance for a brain scan, Pribram said.

Taxicab fare alone for these patients comes to about $25, he said. Then there is the loss of six hours for an attendant. All told,

Pribram figures it costs $700 a patient to obtain a brain scan for diagnostic purposes.

Pribram was one of more than 15 persons who appeared before Rep. David E. Satterfield, D-Va., and Rep. Mark W. Hannaford, D-Lakewood, in the recreation hall at the hospital. The congressmen are members of the subcommittee on hospitals of the Committee on Veterans Affairs.

The doctor, whose specialty is neuroradiology, said that 100 patients have been sent to the Torrance hospital in the last five months. He added that the figure represents "a fraction of what we should be sending."

Pribram said every patient who has a seizure should have the benefit of a brain scan, to rule out possibility of a tumor, and every patient who enters the psychiatry service deserves the same test. The brain scan would show whether an organic illness might be responsible for any particular mental episode.

He said the hospital also needs a linear accelerator for the treatment of cancer. Instead, the hospital is working with "one of the first cobalt units ever to be installed."

Dr. Stanley van den Noort,

dean of UC Irvine College of Medicine, said research facilities at that hospital "are totally inadequate." A proposed research building has been deferred, but even that would now be inadequate, he added.

Hospital Director Edwin J. Klag said it's true the research building plans were shelved after an estimated $500,000 was spent in designing it.

However, he said, an outpatient building costing $9.4 million is scheduled for construction.

Klag denied accusations by veterans' spokesmen that there is a waiting list for admission to the hospital.

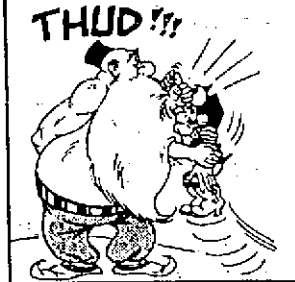

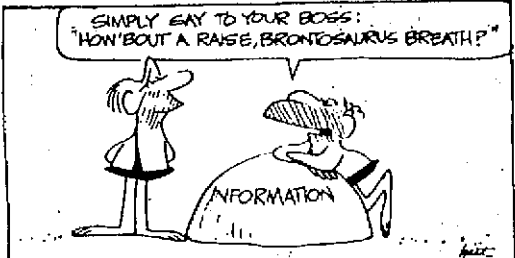

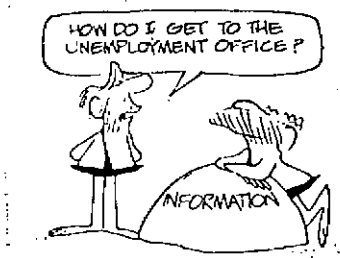

He added that the CAT brain scanner will cost $501,000 and is the top equipment priority for the hospital at the present time.

A nuclear medicine computer costing $38,000 also is needed, the hospital director told the congressmen.

Dr. Allan M. Warner, associate chief of the psychiatry service, voiced concern about budgetary cuts for the hospital's alcoholism program.

He said that only $190,000 is being requested but noted that 15 to 20 per cent of patients have some involvement with alcohol.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Give some thought to your property and possessions and take inventory. Get in a few brief visits, or invite someone you haven't seen for a while.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You have many well-wishers as long as you don't ask for definite help. Travel is favored unless you're fighting a tight schedule.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): If you'll leave others to their own devices, you have a chance to catch up on many minor personal items. Daydreams are normal; just come back to reality tonight.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Present a conservative public image, but forget about the shoptalk. Take out loved ones for an entertaining evening. Communications open belatedly and spread good news.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Enterprises slow down as your energy dwindle. Let matters stand while you think over progress made to date. Don't announce future plans.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Friends are eager to launch a new venture and anxious to share it. Look to see what they have in mind; it's likely to be harmless fun. Put off household repairs.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Concentrate on amusements and outdoor expeditions if conditions permit. Take along as many as you can. Let them earn or pay their own way.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Accept today's slow pace as a blessing. Devote energy you have to getting your home in tip-top order. Get rid of unconstructive habits.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A candid discussion clears off yesterday's disagreements, and advances personal enterprises. Once that's over and settled, pursue lighter pastimes.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Conditions improve if you let go of the past, focus on the present and try to be cooperative. Home life runs smoothly if you don't rush anyone.
